FRENCH CABINET IS OVERTHROWN, 463 VOTES TO 125

MILLERAND'S HAND IS SEEN

President Said to Be Bent on Dominating Government and Reducing Premier to Figurehead

BUT CHAMBER MAY OBJECT

Deputy Dumont Expected to Be Asked to Form Ministry—Allied Premiers May Postpone Meeting.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The French Government fell this afternoon. The reason for the fall of the Leygues Cabinet, which was by the extraordinarily heavy vote of 463 to 125, was the belief of the Deputies that the Premier had not been firm enough in his negotiations on the German indemnity and their fear that if he conducted the negotiations between now and May 1 Germany would get off too easily.

It is extremely interesting that the fall of Premier Leygues was engineered by President Millerand, whose Man Friday M. Leygues started out to be, and who has let it be known today that he will impose his own conditions on the man he asks to form the new Cabinet. This is a continuation of M. Millerand's fight to make the President of France the dominating personality in the Government rather than the figurehead his predecessors have been.

Old Leaders Balk at Taking Office.

It is understood that Millerand, who knew since last night that Leygues would fall today, was willing to have as his successor former President Poincaré, former Premier Briand or President of the Chamber Peret, but that each demurred at taking the position unless a free hand were given him. Accordingly, it is understood that the President will tomorrow ask Charles Dumont, a member of the Chamber to form a Cabinet. M. Dumont is a university professor.

M. Millerand's disapproval of Leygues dates from the London conference in the beginning of December, to which he sent him with instructions to obtain guarantees against the return of Constantine to the Greek throne. Not only did the Premier not succeed but he undertook commitments over and above his instructions. This is no more than Millerand often did when he was Prime Minister, but then the President thinks a new order of things is in force.

It is by no means certain that the Chamber will approve M. Dumont. One reason is that M. Briand, who is more or less boss of the Chamber, does not believe in Millerand's idea of what the powers of the French President should be, preferring that the Premier himself should remain the real head of the Government. It is noteworthy that fear that M. Clemenceau would seek to arrogate to himself supreme authority, as M. Millerand is trying to do, is what led the Parliament to refuse the Presidency to the old Tiger.

French Taxpayers Dissatisfied.

For some months now the French taxpayer, and especially the peasant, has been getting impatient about the German indemnity. He had been told for so long that the Germans would pay that he wanted to see the color of their money.

The French Finance Ministry is carrying a deficit of 35,000,000,000 paper francs, which is constantly growing larger and which the French taxpayer knows he will have to pay if the Germans do not. He has been wanting some definite assurance, as Raoul Peret said in his speech today. Yet in the three months M. Leygues has held office he has not brought forward any definite settlement. Indeed, he has seemed to wish to avoid fixing the total, leaving that for the future.

The action of the Chamber in throwing out the Leygues Government came on the second day of the new session, preceding which all the Deputies had been home for the Christmas holidays. During the vacation period they had found that French opinion generally was in favor of fixing the indemnity total before May 1, as prescribed in the treaty, on the ground that what was wanted was firm action in addition to allied unity, with full sanctions, as provided by the treaty, rather than an indefinite arrangement which was feared would allow Germany some loophole.

Another thing which has much irritated public opinion is that, with Germany owing France so much and obviously able to furnish the coal called for under the Versailles Treaty, France should be making money payments for this coal in accordance with the arrangement made at Spa. The taxpayer never has been able to appreciate the justice of this agreement.

Whatever is the outcome of the present crisis, whether Millerand can command a vote of confidence for his puppet Premier or whether the Chamber will force him to name an old-style Premier such as Poincaré, Briand or Vivani, one of he things certain to result from today's vote is the stiffening of France toward Germany on the indemnity question.

It means that on or before May 1 Germany is going to be told how much she owes, and also it will be pro-

Forbid Berlin Security Police To Wear Undemocratic Monocles

BERLIN, Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—The wearing of monocles by officials or members of the Security Police is forbidden in an order issued today by Minister of Interior Severing on the ground that it is an "affectation and a reminder of the monarchical days."

"Earnest minded officials," says the order, "should discard such trimmings in view of these hard times and in the interest of the democracy."

Men who complain that necessity, on account of the weakness of one eye compels them to wear a monocle will be subjected to rigid physical examination to determine whether they are fit for the force.

The newspapers, commenting on the order, remark generally, "Now the Republic is saved."

KILLING OF OFFICER STIRS WASHINGTON

JAPAN GRAVELY CONCERNED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Considerable official concern was manifested tonight when official dispatches were received from American naval officers in the Far East furnishing some details concerning the killing by a Japanese sentry at Vladivostok of Lieutenant Warren H. Langdon, an engineer officer of the United States cruiser Albany. The latest report from Admiral Gleaves, Commander in Chief of the Asiatic fleet, states that Lieutenant Langdon was in full uniform when shot by the sentry, also that both his clothing and the wound inflicted showed that Langdon was shot in the back.

The shooting of Langdon took place on Jan. 8 and he died several hours afterward. A cablegram from Consul David B. MacGowan at Vladivostok informed the State Department this afternoon that the Japanese Consul General at that city had called upon him and expressed profound regrets over the incident. An earlier dispatch from Admiral Gleaves to the Navy Department today said the commander of the Albany had reported to him that Japanese officials had called, offered medical aid, and declared their intention of making a strict investigation at once.

All the official information at hand shows unmistakably that representatives of both Governments in the Far East are much concerned over the matter. It is altogether probable they are afraid that misrepresentations of the affair might lead to undesirable consequences.

Admiral Gleaves, in a supplementary dispatch tonight, going more into detail, said "All Japanese officials are much concerned and call frequently, offering every assistance in their power."

The importance of ascertaining quickly the exact facts in the case is demonstrated by the action of Admiral Gleaves in proceeding from Philippine waters at once for the scene of the affair at Vladivostok. Admiral Gleaves informed the Navy Department in his first message today that he had left at noon on board the U. S. S. Elliott for Shanghai. There he intended to board the cruiser New Orleans for the rest of the trip to the Siberian port.

Tonight the Navy Department received a second dispatch from Admiral Gleaves. It gave conflicting versions of the affair as reported to him, on the basis of statements made by the Japanese sentry and by Lieutenant Langdon. Both agree that Lieutenant Langdon, who was returning to his ship, was flashing a hand lamp while walking in front of the Japanese division headquarters near the arch in Peter the Great Square, where the American officer was shot by the sentry. Lieutenant Langdon stated that he was returning to his ship, but the sentry claims that his own "suspicions were aroused" by the flashing of the lamp. The main divergence in the two stories is that the sentry claims that the Lieutenant fired at him first, while Lieutenant Langdon's story is that

Secretary Lays Before House Committee Official Data on America, Britain and Japan.

BEHIND IN SMALLER SHIPS

Superiority Over Japan in 1927, Under Her Full Program, Would Be as 1.4 to 1.

BLISS URGES A CONFERENCE

Powers Would Welcome Our Call, General Says, but All Should Agree to Disarm.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The first complete official picture of the relative present and prospective naval strength of the three leading naval powers—the United States, Great Britain and Japan—was presented to the House Naval Committee today by Secretary Daniels.

Mr. Daniels had been asked to present this Government's official facts as to the relative standing of the American navy as compared with the other navies of the world. He appeared with data furnished by his naval intelligence experts, which presented the latest official picture of the naval building programs of England, Japan and this country.

"It is not always possible," said Mr. Daniels, "to answer this question of the relative standing of the American navy accurately, for we do not always know whether all the building authorized has been undertaken, and whether all the data of all nations have been made public. But as to the large nations the information is fairly accurate.

"As far as we are able to determine from reliable sources of information, it is found that when the building programs as authorized and projected are completed the following general situation will exist:

"First. In reference to the British Navy. In major ships and in great gun power, the United States will be superior in total tonnage and effective fighting ships the United States will be approximately equal to Great Britain. The United States Navy, however, will be considerably weaker than the British Navy in light cruisers and the other ships used for protecting the main body of the fleet and in conducting blockading operations.

"We will be slightly inferior in submarines and will have no modern air craft carriers suitable for operating with the fleet. The lack of fleet aviation forces will place us at a disadvantage in comparison with Great Britain.

Comparison with Japanese Navy.

"Second. In comparison with the Japanese Navy. The United States Navy will be superior to the Japanese in total tonnage of effective ships in the ratio of 2½ to 1. If Japan should build her program, projected but not yet authorized, the ratio would be 1.4 to 1 in favor of the United States. We will be superior in total ships, destroyers and submarines, but inferior in battle cruisers and light cruisers."

Secretary Daniels submitted to the committee tables of the strength of all the navies of the world.

Paris Press Discusses McCormick's Shirts; French Editor Agrees $8.82 Each is Too Much

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, who sailed away from Europe the day before yesterday, took with him a dozen new shirts. They were of linen and were made to order by a well-known shirtmaker of the Rue de la Paix, which enjoys the reputation of being the most expensive street in the world, a fact doubtless known to Senator McCormick, who is no stranger to Europe.

There is considerable discussion in the French press over Senator McCormick's new shirts. This is because the Senator, although the possessor of more Chicago millions than he can ever spend, thinks he was overcharged for them at the rate of $8.82 each. Before he left Paris he gave the bill to an acquaintance to illustrate the way in which Americans were "done" in Paris. Inadvertently, perhaps, this bill came into the possession of the editor of L'Intransigeant, well known for its campaigns against profiteers. It is best, maybe, to give L'Intransigeant's comment:

"Since the armistice there have been many Americans who on returning home complained in their papers of what they had had to pay for certain articles here. In America a guest generally does not ask in advance the price of a hotel room or a piece of merchandise, because he knows just about what it will be. The personal fortune of the customer is never taken into account. French business men are often disposed to base their prices on the nationality or apparent fortune of the purchaser.

"One of the most important men who have recently come here from America, one of those of whose friendship we have need, has a very large fortune. Nevertheless, he was disagreeably surprised to receive a bill of 1,800 francs for a dozen linen shirts ordered from a shirtmaker of the Rue de la Paix. We have this bill in our possession. It was handed to us by a friend of the gentleman in question. Inasmuch as he is one of the proprietors of one of the biggest newspapers in Chicago, one may see that the behavior of his shirtmaker has threatened the commerce of France. Let us not thus put in jeopardy the good-will of well-to-do American tourists."

The price of 1,800 francs for a dozen shirts means 150 francs for each shirt. On the day the bill was paid the rate of exchange was 17 francs to the dollar, and therefore each of the Senator's new shirts cost him $8.82—that is, unless the Collector of the Port of New York makes him pay duty on them.

Gervase Elwes, English Tenor, Is Killed By Train in Boston Back Bay Station

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—Gervase Elwes, the English tenor, was struck by a train on his arrival from New York late today and died soon afterward.

The singer and his wife had alighted at the Back Bay Station. Mr. Elwes attempted to return to the conductor an overcoat which had fallen from the train, leaned forward too far and was hit by a car.

Gervase Henry Elwes was born at Billing, Northants, England, Nov. 15, 1866. He married in 1889 as his first wife Lady Winfride Feilding, daughter of the Earl of Denbigh. Their home was famous for its hospitality to musicians, including many who went there from America. They had two daughters and six sons. Mr. Elwes was educated at Birmingham, Oxford, Paris and Munich, and for a time was in the diplomatic service, becoming a professional singer in 1903. He was recently High Sheriff of Northamptonshire and in 1917 was created Knight of Malta.

Mr. Elwes was one of the most distinguished English musicians who have visited the United States. He was invited as guest of the New York Oratorio Society in 1909 to sing the title part in Elgar's "The Dream of Gerontius," a work in which he had appeared more than one hundred times in Great Britain. He also sang here at that time in Bach's "St. Matthew's Passion."

His performances in both the ancient and modern works are remembered as of supreme beauty and excellence. His powers as a song interpreter also were pronounced to be of the highest distinction. On his present visit, he had appeared in song recital in Aeolian Hall as recently as last Thursday.

176 SHOPLIFTERS CROWD COURTROOM

Multitude of Women, Young and Old, Arraigned for Holiday Season Thefts.

NINETY-EIGHT ADMIT GUILT

Grandmother Among Those Fined, While Twenty Are Sentenced to Day in Tombs.

Courtroom spectacles of recent years were overshadowed yesterday morning when 176 shoplifters and alleged shoplifters appeared in the Court of Special Sessions on the ground floor of the Criminal Court Building.

It required two courtrooms to accommodate the multitude of defendants and about an acre of the spacious vestibule to hold their frightened and whimpering children, their character witnesses and the relatives and friends who came to stand by in their hour of trouble.

The defendants, nearly all women, ranged in age from 16 years to 82. Very few gave outward appearance of poverty. Some were well dressed, some were smartly dressed and some were magnificently dressed. Occasionally, the eyebrows of one of the three black-robed Justices lifted a little as, when a name was called, a stately dame arose, swathed in furs, her face pentient under a forest of plumes.

Uniformed court attendants elbowed through the compressed ranks of lawyers, detectives, witnesses and defendants and frowned, hissed, shook their fingers and whispered vibrant threats at women who would weep in spite of the fact that their Honors had ascended the bench. Sharp intakes of breath were heard here and there as defendants made violent efforts to compose themselves. There were a few brief concluding sobs and a rustic and snapping [illegible] handbags, followed by the hurried refinishing of complexions.

Ninety-eight of the accused pleaded guilty. Chief Justice Kernochan said he thought not more than three or four of all the defendants were professional criminals. Of those who pleaded guilty, however, about twenty had impaired their amateur standing by robbing two or three stores before they were caught.

The 176 defendants included women arrested as far back as Dec. 5 last year. The cases of those who had been released on bail since that time were all postponed until yesterday in order to make it unnecessary for the store detectives to appear in court during the holiday shopping season, when they were needed most in the stores.

The minimum age of the defendants was necessarily sixteen years, because prisoners under that age are taken to Children's Court. Pleas of guilty were taken from two girls of 16 years.

The woman of 82 years was a grandmother, who appeared with her daughter and her adult grandson. She was small, white-haired, refined in appearance and apparently much perplexed by what was happening. A store detective explained to the Justice that he had not wanted to arrest the grandmother, but could not find any other means of curbing her fad of shoplifting. She stole at regular intervals, he said, always stole the same thing and was invariably caught.

The grandmother was fined $25. Most of the others were fined $50. A total of $2,275 was collected during the day, every fine being paid.

Twenty of the women had no criminal records, but they were sent to the Tombs for a day apiece, because stolen goods from several shops had been found on them when they were arrested.

Most of the women took their sentences calmly. A few made pleas for leniency. Several desired to produce character witnesses, and their hearings were postponed to a later day. The trials of those who pleaded not guilty also were postponed.

There was a slight stir in the courtroom when one man sought to intervene in favor of his wife. His words did not reach the bench, but what he said, according to those near him, was:

"I have punished her already, Judge your Honor."

A severe frown from a court attendant silenced him. The Justice waited a second, but he did not repeat his plea.

As fast as the sentences were imposed the defendants were ushered into another courtroom, where clerks worked at top speed, taking the fingerprints and pedigrees of the long line of shrinking and trembling women. Many of them were appalled, after going through the court scene, to learn they had this ordeal to face and advanced as if to a torture chamber.

Sixty-two of the defendants were arrested at a single department store. Most of the arrests were made after the shoplifters left the building, to obviate their plea that they intended to pay for everything before leaving the store.

According to estimates furnished by the heads of department stores to Chief Justice Kernochan, the losses to the big New York stores by shoplifting amount, at a conservative estimate, to $1,000,000 a year.

POLICE RAID CAFES UNDER EXCISE LAW

SALVIN'S PLACES CLOSED

Warning From Albany Believed to Have Aroused Police—3 Arrests on East Side.

Rigid enforcement of the State Excise law was begun when the police closed cabarets and cafés at 1 o'clock this morning, after having conducted a series of raids on saloons on the east side last night, arresting three bartenders on charges of violating the State Excise law by selling liquor without a license. One report had it that the activities of the police were stimulated by advices from Albany that all cafés and cabarets must be closed at 1 o'clock. Another rumor was that the tightening of the police restriction on drinking places and amusement centres was occasioned by Police Commissioner Enright as a result of the police graft inquiry.

In most instances the proprietors of the cabarets and cafés closed their places without hesitation, but there was an exception in the case of Reisenweber's, near Columbus Circle, where Pat Kyne, the manager, said he had no intention of closing the restaurant, and that he would stand on his legal rights. At 1:20 o'clock his place was still open, but two patrolmen from the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station were on duty there, ready to forcibly close the establishment when so ordered.

When the patrolmen answered the roll call in teir respective stations at midnight, they received instructions that they were to keep a close watch on violations of the State Excise law. They were commanded to use unusual vigilance in the case of cafés and cabarets which might attempt to stay open after the closing hour.

The activities of the police, which follow closely upon the renewed efforts of the Federal prohibition enforcement agents, did not take the cabarets and cafés entirely by surprise. On Tuesday night members of the police force went around among these establishments warning the proprietors that they would not be permitted to remain open after 2 o'clock Wednesday morning. This first warning, apparently, was not taken seriously.

Paul Salvin, who controls more than half a dozen such places in the theatrical district, said he intended to comply with the police instructions for closing at 1 o'clock, but he thought the police went out of their way in forcing him to close one or two of his establishments which, according to Salvin, catered only to the best class of trade. Among the Salvin cabarets that were closed were the FoliesBergere and Montmartre,, at Fiftieth Street and Broadway; the Palais Royal, Forty-eighth and Broadway, and Moulin Rouge, in the basement of the same building, and the Little Club in West Forty-fourth Street, between Broadway and Eighth Avenue.

These places were closed by members of the staff of Inspector William Boettler and squads of detectives from Police Headquarters. The uniformed police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station aided in the 1 o'clock closing order.

Thomas Healy, proprietor of Healy's Restaurant at Columbus Avenue and 66th Street, said his place was within the law inasmuch as the midnight show was concluded at 1 o'clock. He said he would continue to serve patrons who came in after 1 o'clock.

"I received no police order to close at 1 o'clock," said Mr. Healy. "If those wicked people down around the loop want to keep open with music and dancing, that's none of my affair. I'm not violating the law."

Earlier in the evening a series of round-ups of alleged Excise law violators on the east side was made by detectives of Inspector Thomas B. Underhill's staff. The appearance of the detectives caused no little excitement among the patrons of the raided saloons, but there was no other disturbance. The detectives in each case took away their prisoner and a quart of whisky, which they procured as evidence.

The first three bartenders arrested were taken before Magistrate Bernard J. Douras in Night Court, and held in $500 bail for arraignment today in the Day Court.

John H. Voege, proprietor of the café at 112 Centre Street, in the old days conducted by ex-Sheriff Tom Foley, was ordered by Federal Judge Learned Hand yesterday to begin at once the service of his sentence of six months in prison imposed on Aug. 10, 1919, for a violation of the Wartime Prohibition act. He will be required also to pay a fine of $1,000.

The Circuit Court of Appeals sustained the lower court in November last. Voege had obtained five stays of execution of the sentence under different pretexts. When another stay was asked yesterday, Judge Hand ordered the defendant turned over to the United States Marshal to begin the sentence.

John Fichtl, proprietor of Maennerchor Hall, 1,766 Second Avenue, was sentenced by Judge Hand to sixty days in jail for contempt of court for violating an injunction restraining him from the sale of liquor on his premses.

Six liquor dealers were sentenced by Judge Hand to fourteen days' imprisonment each for violating the Volstead act. One was sentenced to five days and eight were fined $200 each.

WANTS STATE DRY, MILLER IN MESSAGE TELLS LEGISLATURE

Scandal of Lax Enforcement of Federal Statute Intolerable, Governor Says.

PLANS NEW PENAL LAW

Enforcement Would Be Left to Prosecuting Attorneys — Excise Department Would End.

VOLSTEAD ACT THE GUIDE

"Honest Enforcement of the Law May Lead to Its Modification," He Adds—Bills Introduced.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—Denouncing the lax enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act by the Federal authorities, Governor Miller, in a message sent to the Legislature at its session tonight, recommended the enactment of a State Enforcement law in line with the Federal statute and providing for prohibition enforcement by local authorities throughout the State.

Incidentally, the Governor recommended the abolition of the Excise Department and the repeal of existing liquor laws, including the 2.75 per cent. beer law which Minority Leader James J. Walker of the Senate fathered and Governor Smith signed in the second year of his administration

The Governor's message follows:

Jan. 12, 1921

"To the Legislature: The open and notorious violation of the act passed by Congress to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution, the serious crimes and flagrant acts of corruption, committed in connection therewith, and the scandalous contempt for law engendered thereby, prompt measures to promote law and order, and to restore as far as possible respect for law by compelling obedience to law.

"Certain propositions authoritatively settled by the United States Supreme Court should govern our action, viz.:

"1. The Eighteenth Amendment 'is operative throughout the entire territorial limits of the United States, binds all legislative bodies, courts, public officers and individuals within those limits, and of its own force invalidates every legislative act, whether by Congress, by a State Legislature or by a Territorial Assembly, which authorizes or sanctions what the section prohibits.'

"2. The concurrent power to enforce the amendment conferred on Congress and the several States 'does not enable Congress or the several States to defeat or thwart the prohibition, but only to enforce it by appropriate means.'

"3. The Volstead act is the law of the land, universally operative regardless of action or inaction by the States.

"4. The amendment prohibits the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation and exportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes.

"5. The Volstead act defines intoxicating liquors as those containing one-half of one per centum or more of alcohol by volume which are fit for use for beverage purposes.

State's Duty to Enforce Law.

"I take it that there can be no difference of view upon the proposition that the present liquor tax statute of this State should be repealed at least in so far as it conflicts with the Volstead act. The question then arises whether further action should be taken by the Legislature, and if so, what?

"No action of the Legislature can make the Volstead act either more or less binding. That act is the law and so long as it remains on the statute books will continue to be the law binding on every one in the State, irrespective of any action the State may take or fail to take. The sole question is whether the State should adopt measures to aid in the enforcement of the law.

"After careful consideration, I have reached the conclusion that the State should itself aid in the enforcement of the law, and I base that conclusion principally on the following reasons:

"1. As it is the duty of the citizen to respect and obey the law, so it is the duty of the State to promote law and order by compelling, as far as possible, obedience to law. The Eighteenth Amendment as interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States confers concurrent power on the States to enable them to discharge that duty.

"2. The present conditions are intolerable. According to current reports, the law not only is being open and flagrantly violated, but has become the cause of the most scandalous corruption. When war prohibition went into effect the law-abiding in the liquor business discontinued the traffc. The lawless took advantage of the situation to make unlawful gain and the illicit traffic thus engendered disturbs the good order and corrupts the morals of the community. The State cannot remain indifferent to that condition. No citizen who desires social order and well-being can remain indifferent to it irrespective of what his views on the subject of prohibition may be.

"3. The Federal Government can enforce such a law only at enormous expense and with an army of agents in every State.

"4. That manner of enforcement will strongly tend to break down State power, the maintenance of which is essential to the preservation of our scheme of government.

"5. The prohibition of manufacture and importation may most effectively

Report That Strong Note Has Been Sent to Mexico

Copyright, 1921, The New York Times Co.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12.—Although official circles deny receiving a note from the United States, it is learned that the American State Department has sent a very strong note regarding the decision of the Supreme Court here in the Naica Mining Company case. The decision ordered the return of the mine from the ownership of the American company to its original Mexican owners.

The note is said to characterize the decision as unjust, remarking that unless proper protection to American owners is given the State Department will be obliged to find means to protect American rights.

TO HOLD INAUGURAL ON CAPITOL PORCH

Harding Will Take Oath and Speak From Platform to Crowd on Steps and Plaza.

LARGE STAND ABANDONED

President-Elect's Expressed Wish to Let People Hear Is Met by Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—At the request of President-elect Harding received by telegraph today by Senator Knox, the inaugural ceremonies will be held on the east porch of the Capitol and not in the Senate chamber, as Mr. Knox suggested in a telegram yesterday to Mr. Harding. But no big stand will be erected, as has been customary, and the exercises will be of the simplest character.

In his message to Senator Knox, as Chairman of the joint Congressional committee, Mr. Harding showed again his partiality for front porch speaking, referring to his campaign speaking at Marion and requesting that the ceremony be held out of doors if it could be done without special expense.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12, 1921.

Hon. Warren G. Harding,
Marion, Ohio.

The committee suggested the inside inauguration subject to your approval, as we understood that it might be your preference, as you named it first in your telegram.

Understanding now that, weather permitting, you prefer the east porch of Capitol, I am sure the committee will gladly so arrange it, and I am calling a meeting at once for that purpose. P. C. KNOX.

The joint committee will meet tomorrow, when it will undoubtedly vote to comply with the President-elect's wish. So the oath of office will be administered and the inaugural address delivered from the steps of the Capitol, as has been customary. Erection of a large stand will be omitted for reasons of economy.

Under the plan now contemplated there will be no more than a small platform from which the new President will deliver his address. Those who wish to see the ceremony will be obliged to stand on the steps of the Capitol or in the plaza, which will be available to all.

Contracts Are Suspended.

About $4,000 worth of lumber had been contracted for in preparation for erecting the stand. The contracts have been suspended and it is intended that the rest of the $50,000 appropriated for the ceremony at the Capitol shall be left in the Treasury. A meeting of the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia was to have been held today to act on a pending resolution to appropriate $60,000 for extra police, information booths and other things, but no quorum appeared. Members of the committee said that in view of the wishes of the President-elect the appropriation did not seem necessary.

Edward B. McLean, Chairman of the local inaugural committee, instructed today the Chairmen of all his committees to stop activities that call for expenditure of money. About ten of the thirty-two sub-committees will probably be retained. These have to do with accommodations for visitors, public safety, finance, illumination and other matters that cannot well be overlooked.

In spite of the wish of the President-elect for a simple inauguration, it is probable that Washington will be crowded with visitors on March 4. The city is already unable to find comfortable accommodations for its resident population, which was greatly increased by the war, and it will be difficult to find room for the expected army of visitors.

At a meeting of the Washington Restaurant Association it was agreed there should be no increase in restaurant prices during the inauguration period.

The President-elect's decision to have the inaugural out of doors, where it can be witnessed by thousands of people, is attributed here to the criticism that with an indoor ceremony the public generally would be excluded and the spectacle witnessed only by Senators and Representatives, the Diplomatic Corps, the Supreme Court and about 800 non-official spectators in the galleries. Experience has shown that these spectators would be almost entirely the wives and daughters of Senators and Representatives.

NAVAL AERONAUTS PATCH UP PEACE; ALL FRIENDS AGAIN

Lieut. Kloor Issues Statement Laying Blame for Quarrel on Racked Nerves.

DUE TO THEIR SUFFERING

Intense Cold, Hard Work, Lack of Sleep and Snowshoe Irritation Upset Them All.

START ON WAY TO NEW YORK

Balloonists Will Stop Three Hours in Toronto, Due Here Tomorrow, 10 A. M.

Special to The New York Times.

MATTICE, Ont., Jan. 12.—The three American navy balloonists who reached here yesterday from Moose Factory announced tonight before their departure for New York, where they are to arrive at 10 o'clock Friday morning, that peace had been restored among them. A statement issued by Lieutenant L. A. Kloor Jr., as commander of the free balloon which landed the men in the wilderness of Northern Ontario, characterized the quarreling which culminated yesterday when Farrell swung on Hinton's jaw as "petty." The sensational outbreak when Farrell accused Hinton of double-crossing him was attributed to the nervous exhaustion incident to thirty days of hardship. Lieutenant Kloor read the statement to newspaper correspondents in the presence of Lieutenants Hinton and Farrell, who concurred in it. The statement said:

"In regard to the controversy between the two passengers who accompanied me on the flight of Free Balloon A-5598, Lieutenants Stephen A. Farrell and Walter Hinton, I wish to make it definitely clear that this controversy was entirely and in every respect the outcome of overwrought minds brought on by the hardships and grueling struggles that had to be endured on the trip over the trail to Mattice. On several occasions during the trip after a long and tiresome walk at times one or two of us would become grouchy and at the slightest irritation would make a fuss. These quarrels were only on the spur of these moments and temporary disagreements.

Quarrels Quickly Ended.

"Almost as quickly as they would start they would end, and all hands were as usual the best and strongest of friends. I also wish to state that as commander of the free balloon which I flew to Moose Factory I had perfect liberty to select any of the officers at the station I wished to accompany me on the trip and authorization would be made by my commanding officers.

"In picking my passengers, Lieutenants Farrell and Hinton, I selected them because they were two of my warmest friends and were themselves the warmest of friends. During the trip the three of us had been the best of friends and have sacrificed for each other mutually and without partiality and have fought this battle out as one composite group of shipmates and in accordance with the traditions of the great United States Navy did all we could to uphold our own dignity and its dignity, and will ever be brothers and the best of friends. Such petty quarrels as may have occurred will not lessen our affection for one another.

"Today, after the first real night's rest since leaving Moose Factory on Dec. 28, all our differences have been composed and our close friendship renewed, and we cannot emphasize too strongly that there is not and has not been in our party any misunderstanding of other than a petty and passing nature."

Farrell Not "Double-Crossed."

After the statement had been approved by the three officers, Farrell declared he had become convinced Hinton had not "double-crossed" him by causing the sale and publication of letters to Mrs. Hinton in violation of an agreement between the three that they would withhold all accounts of their experiences and share in the proceeds of a narrative of the adventure written by Kloor, with Hinton as collaborator.

To his declaration during the argument which followed the navy men's arrival that they had not been instrumental in bringing about the sale of the letters, Hinton then added the assertion that he had written upon the letters "Not for publication," in accordance with the agreement that all three should so mark the letters they sent from Moose Factory by the Hudson Bay Company's mail packet train.

The question of how the letters reached print in violation of the phrase was not entered into, at least while the correspondents were present. Since his arrival here Farrell apparently had receded from his position that Hinton's letter had presented him in an unfavorable light.

He had conquered his bitterness of yesterday over being pictured as offering his body to the others for food, as going through the woods "apologizing to Heaven for his sins" and the like, at least to the extent of refusing to discuss that phase of the controversy.

Ignored Incident of Words.

It was pointed out to all three that Kloor's statement, while covering the actual publication of the letters, did not reconcile the diametrically opposed statements of Hinton and Farrell as to what happened during the four days they were fighting their way through the woods. They made it plain that they were deliberately ignoring the issue of facts, since they deplored the whole affair and believed the best way to minimize it and consign it to oblivion was to drop all further discussion.

So eager were they to convey to the world an impression of friendly cordiality that they posed this afternoon for pictures which represented them as reaching the railroad station at Mattice together and participating amicably in the reception offered them. They sent a request to moving picture photographers to take more pictures of them later in the day, which were to have presented them as coming along the Missinabi trail together and being met en route by correspondents.

The correspondents were not called upon to decide whether they would participate in this little bit of artificial history, because it was discovered that two of their Indian guides had departed and a third declared that it was too cold to take the dogs out on the trail unless they were to have a real run. For these reasons the packet train could not be reconstructed, and that part of the picture plan was dropped.

When they discussed matters in Divisional Superintendent Way's private car, which they are occupying, the men gave every evidence of renewed friendship. They called each other "Louis" and "Walter" and "Steve." Hinton and Farrell patted each other on the knee every now and then as they talked, and all three laughed and joked over their experiences.

Two Balloonists Still Haggard.

A real night's sleep appeared to have brought Kloor back into the pink of condition. The youngest of the party and much of a boy in looks and actions, he had recuperated so rapidly that he seemed perfectly normal and well. Hinton still was haggard and tired eyed, and Farrell, to the lay observer at least, still bore every sign of having passed through a harrowing adventure.

Farrell's whole appearance is that of a man on the ragged edge, and the signs of impending nervous collapse are readily discerned in his face. He struggled hard today to give the appearance of perfect recovery, though admitting he had passed through a terrific mental strain, but no one who looked at him or talked with him could doubt that the navy officer who hurled epithets at brother officers in a foreign country yesterday was anything but responsible for his acts. In fact, as one pieced out a more complete tale of their experiences from fragments of conversation it became more and more of a wonder that the blow-up which was precipitated by news of the publication of Hinton's letters did not come somewhere along the trail. The two older men were on the ragged edge, particularly from lack of sleep and denied rest. Perhaps by a fuller realization of their peril than came to their younger commander, they gradually lost their power to control their reaction to unfavorable environment.

It is known now that during the last few days as they fought their bitter way along the trail it took but the merest trifle to snap their overwrought nerves and set them at one another.

Hardships of Return Trip.

The cold of those days in which, almost unfed and unprotected, they were lost in a wilderness that seemed never to end got into their morrow. Before they were really thawed out they set out upon the track to Mattice. It had been intended that they should ride by turns in the cariole, but the dogs proved unequal to the strain. Manfully they assumed their share of the burden, breaking trail mile by mile with the experienced and toughened Indians. At times it was so cold the moisture from their breath would freeze to their eyelids, they would have to strip off a glove and thaw out the minute circles with warm saliva from their mouths. When they halted for tea the thongs that bound their snow shoes to their ankles would freeze and shorten, and their feet would be cramped and pinched so that they were blistered and sore. Farrell, being short and thickset, the most of his trouble was with his feet.

Kloor and later Hinton were attacked by "mal de racquettes," the snowshoe sickness which affects the nerves and muscles of the leg and makes every lift of the shoes a torture. The Indians were merciless in forcing them on when they suffered most, well knowing that if a man so seized once stopped and stiffened it might be weeks before they could travel again. They did not reach the extreme stage where it became necessary to tie a thong to the toe of the snowshoe and lift it by hand at each step, but in the scrambling about incident to making camp and preparing food they suffered so much they would stoop at each step and lift their feet out of the snow with their hands. Only in a sense were they passengers with the packets train.

Balloonists Had Hard Work.

There were not enough Indians along to assist the work, and they shared in passing and hauling the sleds when they froze to the roughened trail. They cooked and chopped wood and helped care for the dogs, and on extreme days, when the cold bit through all their wrappings, tired nerves and muscles and fretted mind were almost unable to sustain the toil. Special moccasins were made for all three by the Crees at Moose Factory, and besides those they wore three pairs of blankets and heavy wool socks, but their feet nearly froze at times, particularly during the three nights they were snowed in in their collapsible tent—stove, blankets and mufflers, mackinaws, &c., were not blizzard proof, and sleep, if it came at all, was fitful and unrefreshing.

Farrell, in fact, admitted today that he had no real sleep since he left Moose Factory on Dec. 28 until he returned last night. To loss of sleep above everything else he attributed the incidents of the day of arrival, which he deplored with every appearance of sincerity. Though all three are worried today over the outcome of the quarrel and the attack, they are hopeful that their physical and mental condition will be taken into consideration and that they will discover in the States a disposition to forgive and forget. They were encouraged today when they failed to receive from Secretary of the Navy Daniels any word other than brief acknowledgment of the receipt of Kloor's telegraphic report, coupled with permission of the men, since it had been given out, to give interviews and to sell their stories if they wished and could.

Kloor, with Hinton's help, began a 10,000-word narrative of the journey. He did not complete it at Moose Factory and so labored over it at night in the tent along the trail, driving his pencil by the light of candles he fashioned himself from the tallow the Indians carry to mix with cornmeal for the dogs. They had hoped to barter this narrative of their adventures for enough money to repay the expenses of their long absence. Under strict regulations they would receive from the navy only their pay, plus 8 cents a mile travel pay for the trip from Moose Factory to the Rockaway Naval Air Station.

High Cost of Living in Far North.

They were cordial in praising their treatment by the Hudson's Bay Company after they reached the little trading post on the shore of James Bay, but said they found things far more expensive than they were in New York at the peak of the high cost of living. For the trip down they had to pay for Indians, dogs and equipment. As examples of prevailing northern prices they said sugar was 50 cents a pound and ordinary hard candy was 75 cents a pound. They found their pay checks awaiting them and a considerable sum made up by Lieutenant A. W. Evans of the Rockaway station, who collected it from brother officers in order that they might not be short of funds because of departmental red tape.

Awaiting them here were messages from the wives of Lieutenants Hinton and Kloor expressing gratification at their safe return to the railhead and telling them to hurry home.

In replying to his message, Farrell assured his wife if there was anything in prayer the boys must have been saved through the prayers of his little daughter Emily, who, his wife said, had pleaded for them unceasingly during the long days when all the world believed they must have perished somewhere in the North. Farrell is taking Emily a present. It is a little bag of hard candy that he got at one of the Indian Christmas celebrations at Moose. He admitted that at times along the trail the temptation to eat a piece was almost irresistible, but the candy is intact. There were a number of celebrations while they waited for the packet train to be made ready. There were Christmas trees decorated with candles, with precious eatables carefully preserved from year to year, and the Indians got little presents of the flashy sort in which they delight. The Americans got gifts of candy and Canadian pins and little British flags.

Leave Mattice for New York.

The three balloonists left here at 6 o'clock tonight on the Canadian National Railways bound for New York. Lieutenants L. A. Kloor Jr., Stephen A. Farrell and Walter Hinton decided not to delay their route in order to accept any of the welcomes and congratulatory ceremonies offered them by Canadian cities along the way. They are worn and tired from their thirty days of hardship, and spurred by messages from the wives of the two older men they determined to lose no time along the way.

The train stops twenty minutes in Cochrane and the citizens of that town are to be mustered at the station to greet them. They will have but three hours in Toronto if the train is on time, and such hospitality as the city and the Rotary Club can cram into that brief period probably will be extended to them. There will not be time enough for the luncheon or smoker that was contemplated.

The navy officers will travel on the National to Cochrane, where they will leave the division superintendent's private car and occupy drawing rooms on the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario to North Bay. The Grand Trunk will take them from North Bay to Suspension Bridge, where they will go via the Lehigh Valley to New York. They are due in Toronto at 3 o'clock tomorrow evening. They leave there at 6 and should be in New York at 10 o'clock Friday morning. The present plan is to take them directly into the Pennsylvania Station; from there they plan to go immediately to the Rockaway Park Naval Air Station to report to the commanding officer.

Lieutenant A. W. Evans of the Air Station has started north with clothes for the men, and is endeavoring to connect with them at Toronto. The touring Pullman which served as press headquarters for correspondents of newspapers and press associations of the United States and Canada was attached to the train. They will go as far as Toronto, where a special Pullman is to be provided for the airmen and such of the newspaper men as continue on to New York.

On their last day in this northern country the whole party got another taste of real Winter. The thermometer was five below and a bit of wind added to the discomfort.

Cordial Reception at Cochrane.

Special to The New York Times.

COCHRANE, Ontario, Jan. 12.—A rousing reception was given Lieutenants Hinton, Farrell and Kloor on their arrival in Cochrane tonight by the Cochrane Board of Trade. The train stopped only twenty minutes and the reception was held in the waiting room of the station, where President Stevens of the Board of Trade introduced the citizens and addressed the aeronauts, congratulating them on their fortunate landing. Lieutenants Hinton, Farrell and Kloor in brief speches acknowledged the courtesies extended them in Canada, and Lieutenant Farrell gave a short account of their landing.

NAVY TO DIG DEEP INTO BALLOON TRIP

Court of Inquiry Will Take Up Flight, Sale of Letters and Quarrel at Mattice.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Every aspect of the flight of the American naval balloonists to Canada will be thoroughly investigated by a naval court of inquiry. Secretary Daniels said the order for the inquiry would be issued from Washington, that the personnel of the court would command respect and that the precept would direct that the court "should investigate everything."

Earlier, Secretary Daniels had contemplated leaving the matter to the Commandant of the naval air station at Rockaway, but after ascertaining that there was a strong feeling in Washington that all features of the flight should be officially scrutinized, Mr. Daniels decided to order the court of inquiry. The order has not been prepared, but will be ready within a few days, it was asserted.

The instructions to the court will be broad enough to allow it to go into the object and purpose of the flight, the preparations made for contingencies, the loss of the Balloon, whether it was properly equipped, the incident at Mattice in which Lieutenant Farrell knocked down Lieutenant Hinton, and allegations relative to the sale of letters or stories from some of the balloonists to the highest bidders.

Secretary Daniels said Lieutenant Stephen Farrell, who figured in this incident, can, if he wishes, bring before the court any statements he may regard as offensive, and if he does not want this matter taken up by the general court of inquiry Mr. Daniels said he would be at liberty to ask a special court with respect to matters affecting himself.

The Secretary issued a statement expressing regret over the altercation between Lieutenants Farrell and Hinton. The statement read:

"It is most regrettable that it has seemed that after doing the work that challenged the admiration of the world in a number of historic incidents the glory of it has been dimmed and marred by personal differences, sometimes jealousies and sometimes sore feeling. The glorious record of the navy in the Spanish-American War lost in a measure the glow of its achievement by the courts of inquiry and differences which followed it, and even in the late World War where the navy won world renown it was not free from this unfortunate public exhibition of differences.

"And now in this case where these young men have endured great hardships and set new standards it is to be deplored that there should have been any personal conflict or altercation."

Secretary Daniels was asked whether the Navy Department knew the balloon intended making its flight from Rockaway and replied that the department had not prior knowledge of it, but that commandants of air stations had authority to order out balloons and airplanes in practice flights.

It was predicted today that perhaps more officers than the three who made the flight would be called before the Court of Inquiry, and it was considered quite probable that the court will seek to ascertain how the Hinton and Kloor letters became public, and whether other officers had anything to do with making them public, in the face of Secretary Daniels's instruction that the balloonists should report to the department before preparing statements for publication.

EARLIER AIR TRIP OVER WILDS.

Commercial Aviator Covered Cochrane Trail in Two Hours.

Had Lieutenants Kloor, Farrell and Hinton been lost in the Canadian wilderness in the Moose Factory district six months or a year from now they undoubtedly would have been sighted by commercial airplanes plying over routes there now under contemplation, according to F. G. Ericson, during the war chief engineer of the Imperial Munitions Board, who described yesterday how he caused the air region out of Moose Factory to be charted last summer. Mr. Ericson, who is now head of Ericson Marine and Aircraft, Ltd., spoke yesterday at a luncheon given in his honor by C. F. Redden and Inglis M. Uppercu in the Hotel Astor.

"We left Hamilton early in July on a thousand-mile hop across the wilderness of the north woods with five passengers and moving picture apparatus. We made a short hop first to Toronto, and then headed for Cochrane, the railhead northermost in Ontario. It may be interesting to note that we used a flying boat on this trip. We flew from Cochrane to Moose Factory in two hours, a distance which if traversed with canoe or dog sled takes sometimes a month, depending on climatic conditions.

"The plane we used was the first seen in the region, and the wonder it caused among the Indians as well as the trappers can be imagined. The fur interests in that section are keenly interested in the development of commercial air lines as an aid to their business, and before the present year is over routes undoubtedly will be started."

Decline Money Offered by Canada.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 12.—Monetary assistance offered by the Dominion Naval Department to the three United States balloonists at Mattice, Ontario, was declined with thanks by the officers, who said they were well supplied with funds, it was learned here today.

WHY MRS. HINTON GAVE OUT LETTERS

Lieutenant's Wife Says She Released Them on Permission of Navy.

DENIED IN WASHINGTON

No Authority Given by Secretary Daniels to Wives—Denied That Flight Was a "Joy Ride."

Mrs. Addie Hinton, wife of Lieutenant Walter Hinton, last night gave out this statement:

"It was entirely on my responsibility that the letters were made public. My husband, at the time I permitted the publication of his story, was on his way from Moose Factory to Mattice, and naturally knew nothing about the etters being given out.

"As was pointed out in The World, which first printed Mr. Hinton's messages to me and to Lieutenant Talbot, they were not written with any idea that they were for the general public. They were for us alone. In fact, there was a paragraph at the end of Mr. Hinton's letter to me, advising me not to give any information to the press.

"I would not have done so, in the ordinary course of affairs, but I received a special permission from the Navy Department to release the news that my husband sent 'because the whole country was eager to hear from the missing men,' and on that account I allowed The World to print the letters.

Praised Lieutenant Farrell.

"I would like to make particularly clear the fact that there was no thought in my mind that the letters would reflect upon the courage or ability of Lieutenant Farrell—quite the contrary. Indeed, when I read my husband's remarks about Mr. Farrell I at once declared, and so did such friends as read the letters, that Lieutenant Farrell was a true hero, and we all said we thought he was the bravest man of the party, since he offered to sacrifice himself so that the others might proceed faster.

"It was unfortunate that there should have been any difficulty between the two men, who were good friends, and I was rejoiced to hear tonight through the press that they had shaken hands and called off the trouble. I hope they will get back home with the same feeling they had when they sailed away.

"Whatever blame is to be given for the episode I wish to accept. My husband had nothing to do with the affair at all and had no means of knowing what I did with his letters. Again I would like to say that I gave them out only because there was such a great public demand for information about the men who had been rescued after their great adventure."

Denied at Washington.

No official permission was granted by Secretary of the Navy Daniels to the wives of the navy balloonists to publish their letters, according to a Washington dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES. Secretary Daniels, after the letters were published in The World, said:

"I had expressed my views already on premature publication and have nothing more to say. I had no control over the ladies to whom the accounts were written."

It is understood from an authoritative source, the Washington dispatch continues, that while the Navy Department could not order the wives and friends of the officers not to publish the letters, it was hoped that the fact that Secretary Daniels had announced that the balloonists would be instructed not to talk for publication until after they had made their official reports, would have weight with those to whom letters were written.

Nothing is known at Washington of any permission by the Navy Department to Mrs. Hinton to publish her husband's letters.

Mrs. Farrell Suppresses Letter.

Mrs. Stephen A. Farrell admitted yesterday that she had received a letter from her husband at Moose Factory, but that he had admonished her not to make public any part of it. She received a telegram from him yesterday, which read:

> Mattice, Jan. 12.
> Will arrive Pennsylvania station Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Love to all the family. I am in fine physical condition.
> STEVE.

There was some doubt yesterday about the time of arrival of the aeronauts on Friday. At the Rockaway Air Station officers said they had been informed that the aeronauts would arrive at the Pennsylvania Station at 10:20 o'clock on Friday morning.

The New York Central Railroad obtained permission yesterday from the Navy Department to put a private car at the disposal of the aeronauts from Toronto to New York over the Central Lines, and a party of officials started at 8 o'clock last night from the Grand Central Terminal to pick up the private car at Buffalo. The railroad invited Mrs. Farrell and Mrs. Hinton to be the guests of the management on a trip to meet their husbands, but neither accepted.

Balloon Trip Was Authorized.

The test trip of the navy free balloon A-5598 was official and the reason the three aeronauts did not have a store of food and other supplies was that they had no idea that a storm would sweep them north, according to Commander Damon E. Cummings, commandant of the Rockaway Air Station.

Commander Cummings, speaking unofficially, said the flight was an official test trip in the regular routine of duty at the air station and that he had signed the order authorizing the journey about five days before the men started away.

COLUMBUS CITY HALL BURNS

Council Has to Flee and Many Records Are Probably Lost.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 12.—Columbus City Hall, one of the oldest public buildings in the city, directly across the street from the State House, was destroyed by fire tonight. Nearby business blocks, at first threatened by the flames, were saved, except for slight damage to roofs.

The blaze started on the third floor in a gymnasium from an unknown cause. Children playing on the same floor escaped in gymnasium costumes, and the City Council, in session in the building, also took hasty adjournment and fled to the streets.

Many valuable records were destroyed, it is believed, although steel filing cabinets were counted on to have preserved some of the most valuable ones.

Council members, estimating the damage to the building and contents at $300,000, said steps would undoubtedly be taken at once to rebuild. No insurance was carried on the building, it was said.

FOR BARGE CANAL RETURN.

Miller Asks Legislature to Request Congress to Act.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—In a message to the Legislature tonight Governor Miller called upon the two houses to memorialize Congress to adopt the Wadsworth resolution, which asks that the Federal Government discontinue the operation of towboats and barges on the State canal system.

Poland China Hog Brings $11,300.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 12.—Announcement of the sale of Model Giantess, Third, a big type Poland China, said to be the biggest brood sow in the world, for $11,300 was made today. The sow was sold by the Colvert Brothers at Oxford, Ind., to Ray Atkinson of Fowler, Ind. The sow's Spring litter of pigs was sold for $15,000.

HOUSE ADDS $600,000 TO PROHIBITION BILL

Allows $7,100,000 for Enforcement After Gallivan Proposes Grant of $100,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Dry forces in the House won a victory this afternoon when, by a vote of 86 to 48, they obtained an increase of $600,000 in the sum appropriated for enforcing prohibition during the fiscal year beginning July 1. The Federal Enforcement Division originally asked for $7,500,000 for this work, but the sub-committee in charge of the annual Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill cut the sum by $1,000,000. This afternoon, on motion of Chairman Volstead of the Judiciary Committee and author of the famous law, the increase was forced through the House, making the total $7,100,000.

Before the decision was reached, however, the "wets" had considerable amusement out of the "drys." Representative Gallivan of Massachusetts offered an amendment setting the amount for prohibition enforcement at $100,000,000. Only a few minutes later Mr. Gallivan said he was perfectly willing to withdraw his amendment in favor of a substitute offered by Representative Stephens of Ohio to give the Prohibition Enforcement Division $1,000,000.

In demanding the increase, Mr. Volstead said "every dollar" appropriated would come back to the Government in taxes and fines. The act should be enforced, he said, and if the appropriation was cut the country would be heard from.

"Well, I want to see more money come back into the Treasury," said Mr. Gallivan. "Why limit this return to $7,100,000. Let's go the whole distance. I want to help the incoming Administration. Let's get back one hundred million dollars. The gentleman's (Mr. Volstead's) legal adviser told me the other day that before he got through he would have Massachusetts spitting cotton. I had the great pleasure of replying to Mr. Wayne B. Wheeler that so far as I could see the only Commonwealth in the land spitting cotton was Massachusetts. I meant she was the only State where prohibition is being enforced.

"I want to see the movement in which my friend from Minnesota leads spread its benign influence in every far-reaching part of this country. Without $100,000,000 it is impossible to enforce this act, and therefore I hope every sincere friend of prohibition will vote for my amendment."

When later Representative Gallivan offered to withdraw his amendment in favor of the much lower one presented by Representative Stephens, the House broke into loud laughter. The Gallivan amendment was lost by a standing vote of 115 to 12, the Stephens amendment by a lusty viva voce vote and then the Volstead amendment was carried by a standing vote.

JAPANESE CONFERENCE ON.

Property Rights of the Japanese in This Country Considered.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The addition to the existing commercial treaty between the United States and Japan of a section designed to protect the property rights of Japanese in America is now under informal consideration by Roland S. Morris, United States Ambassador to Japan, and Ambassador Shidehara of Japan, it was learned today.

The subject, it was said, has been discussed by the two Ambassadors in their conversations here looking to a solution of treaty problems involving the status of Japanese nationals in the country, especially as affected by the California anti-alien land law.

The conversations so far are understood not to have involved the question of allowing civil rights for Japanese, which would include full rights of naturalization and suffrage.

SLEUTHS HELD FOR KILLING.

Two Pennsylvania Rail Guards Shot Man on Freight Car.

Joseph H. Smith and Terence McGovern, detectives of the Pennsylvania Railroad, were released in $10,000 bail each when arraigned yesterday before Judge Richard H. Doherty in the County Court in Jersey City in connection with the killing in the railroad yard of William J. Bock, 24 years old, of 236 Franklin Street, Buffalo.

Detectives Hughes and Black of the Jersey City police arrested Smith and McGovern after they returned from Philadelphia as guards on a trainload of silk. They said that one of the men shot Bock while he and August Lemoreaux, 19 years old, of 25 South Street, this city, and James H. Gibson, 21 years old, of 48 Market Street, San Francisco, were standing on top of an empty freight car in the railroad yard. Smith and McGovern refused to make any statement about the shooting.

Takes Over Universal Savings Bank.

The Bowery Savings Bank has acquired by merger all the assets, has assumed all the liabilities of, and will carry out all the contracts made by the Universal Savings Bank, according to Henry A. Schenck, President of the Bowery Savings Bank, and Wilbur F. Brown, President of the Universal Savings Bank. The Bowery Savings Bank also will carry on the business formerly transacted by the Universal Savings Bank, at 149 Broadway, they said.

20 Years for Robbing a Chauffeur.

Michael McDonough of 325 East Thirty-seventh Street, one of a gang who robbed many chauffeurs and taxicab owners, was sentenced yesterday to twenty years in Sing Sing Prison by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions, for holding up and robbing Alfred G. Lindsell, a chauffeur, of 328 East Thirty-fourth Street. McDonough and a companion, who escaped arrest, hired Lindsell to drive them to an east side flat, where they induced the chauffeur to enter a dark hall and threatened him with a revolver and knife, taking $17.

EMPLOYERS VOTE FOR THE OPEN SHOP

WANT RAIL COMPACT ENDED

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—A blow against labor unions was struck here today at the National Conference of State Manufacturers' Associations here, at which twenty-two States are represented, when resolutions were adopted pledging support for the open shop and urging the repeal of the present national railroad wage agreements.

There was considerable discussion concerning exactly what constitutes an open shop, some speakers saying without qualification that they would not employ unionists in their factories, but the vote was taken with a clear understanding that the resolution did not propose any discrimination against the owner of a union card merely because of its possession.

The resolution on this subject read:

"It is recognized as fundamental in this country that all law abiding citizens or residents have the right to work when they please, for whom they please, and on whatever terms are mutually agreed upon between employe and employer, and without interference or discrimination upon the part of others.

"We hereby express our purpose to support these fundamental principles of the American plan of employment by the maintenance of the open shop. We urge upon our members to secure by discussion and education the active support of workers, merchants, bankers and professional men and all other elements of their respective communities in favor of American ideals and the open shop."

The resolution urging the Railroad Labor Board, which during the day continued to take testimony at the Great Northern Hotel, to cancel the present national wage agreements and open the way for local agreements was based on this argument:

1. Railroad conditions vary widely in different sections of the country and standardization of working conditions on railroads tends toward standardization in all industry, which would reduce productive efficiency throughout the country.

2. The continued prohibition of piecework in railroad shops will not only increase railroad expenses but will make it more difficult to maintain piecework in other industries and thereby reduce efficiency and increase expenses.

3. The railroads are now compelled to pay employes for work that is not done and to pay them two or even more days' pay for one day or less of work.

4. The present agreements prohibit preferential promotion for efficiency and discharge for inefficiency; they prevent the railroads from obtaining sufficient employes for some departments.

The resolution protested against the creation of National Boards of Adjustment as sought by the railroad unions.

The conference also passed resolutions protesting against the restriction of immigration without regard to the fitness of the applicant for admission to the country.

SIGN OPEN-SHOP COMPACT.

Amalgamated and Sonneborn & Co. of Baltimore Reach Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 12.—Henry Sonneborn & Co., Baltimore's largest manufacturers of men's clothing, signed an agreement today with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America to run until May 31, 1922, by which the open shop is established at the Sonneborn plant and the firm receives greater rights in disciplining employes. No change in the wage scale was made and standards of production remain the same.

The next step will be to end the strike affecting five of the larger clothing manufacturing establishments and a few of the smaller ones and involving about 1,500 workers. With the Sonneborn agreement out of the way, it is believed a concerted effort to get together with the manufacturers will be made by the union, and that a general market agreement will be concluded.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America reported at their general headquarters here yesterday that "the attempt of the New York clothing manufacturers to create a nation-wide lockout" had failed signally so far as the Baltimore market was concerned. The union reported "settlements," involving the large Baltimore clothing firm of Henry Sonneborn & Co., and predicted a general adjustment of the Baltimore situation, which is said to antedate the clothing controversy here by some weeks.

Woman Forger Sentenced.

Miss Harriet Cohen, who said she lived at 24 State Street, East Orange, N. J., and was formerly a private secretary for B. G. Fernald, an engineer at 2 Rector Street, was sentenced yesterday to three years in the State Prison for Women at Auburn, for forging the name of her employer to a check for $64, sent in the mail to his office. In imposing sentence Judge Talley said Miss Cohen had been convicted of forgery in 1908 and in 1913.

Sailor Jailed for Boomer Theft.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Jan. 12.—A sentence of six months' imprisonment at hard labor was imposed today on Archibald Chapman, a seaman on the steamer Olympic. He had been charged with stealing a diamond ring valued at $10,000 belonging to Mrs. L. M. Boomer, wife of the New York hotel man.

USE LABOR'S CAPITAL IN AID OF PLANT

Machinists' Union Official Tells How Mortgage Was Bought to Continue Operations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—Labor's answer to recent legal and legislative setbacks may be to fight capital with capital itself.

An experiment, called "the Norfolk idea," conducted by the International Association of Machinists, is being much discussed, and, it is said, is about to be repeated on the Pacific Coast. The "Norfolk idea" is the use of capital and credit of organized labor in the fight to force employers to meet its demands.

As explained by E. C. Davison, Secretary of the machinists, there was a strike in the Crescent Iron Works at Norfolk, Va., late in 1920. The outstanding obligations of the Crescent Iron Works were bought by the union and control having thus been gained, support was furnished through extension of credit and the active co-operation of affiliated branches of organized labor.

Mr. Davison, one of the originators of the idea, estimated today that his association saved more than $200,000 cash in that contest, while the saving to its members was probably double that amount.

When the Iron Masters' Association declared for an open shop in the Summer of 1920, investigation showed that there was an outstanding mortgage of $40,000 on the Crescent works a few days overdue. Mr. Davison, acting for the union, tried to buy the mortgage, but the bank, holding it, refused to sell. Further inquiry disclosed that many of the banks' depositors were members of unions. Steps were taken which resulted in a sudden decrease of the institution's deposits. The offer to buy the mortgage was then renewed and the bank consented to the sale.

A "show-down" with the management of the works followed, Mr. Davison said, the outcome being the reopening of the plant as a union shop.

"The Crescent shop had employed forty machinists," Mr. Davison said, "but these were working overtime. We obtained the adoption of a schedule which permitted the employment of sixty men on an eight-hour basis, and later to the use of three shifts a day. By changing the personnel so as to allow each employe to get in three days a week, we soon had this plant giving work to more than 360 men, all but forty of whom would have been idle under the old system."

Influence of the union was utilized to obtain orders for the plant. This was accomplished largely through co-operation with members of the Norfolk Pilots' Association, and through the unionized crews of foreign ships which put into Norfolk.

NORFOLK, Jan. 12.—At no time has the Crescent Iron Works been under union labor control or management, said W. U. Fielder, President of the company, tonight. The machinists' union came to the rescue of his company to help a "friendly" shop more than to combat capital, he asserted.

He said that when a strike was declared, involving practically all the machine shops in the city, his concern, which was friendly to organized labor, signed up on the union's terms. A mortgage for $40,000, held by a bank, was a few days overdue, and when the company asked a renewal the bank refused. Whereupon, said Mr. Fielder, the union, by arrangement with the company, bought the mortgage.

THREATS TO R. M. TURNER.

Wealthy Greenwich Resident Won't Discuss Menacing Letters.

A report was circulated yesterday in Greenwich, Conn., where it gained credence, that Ross M. Turner, a wealthy stock broker with offices at 500 Fifth Avenue, this city, and a home at Palmer's Hill, near Greenwich, recently had received at his business address several letters, apparently written by an illiterate foreigner, threatening harm to his nine-year-old son, Ross. Mr. Turner is also said to have been warned that his home would be burned. When an effort was made to get Mr. Turner to confirm this report at his office, he declined to discuss the matter.

Friends of Mr. Turner say that no demands for money apparently have been made of the stock broker, who is at a loss to explain the reason for the threatening letters, because he is unable to recall any person to whom offense might have been given. When the first warning was received in a letter opened at his office by his secretary about four weeks ago, it is said, Mr. Turner was at first inclined to believe it was the act of a joker or a lunatic. A second letter with warnings similar to those of the first was received by Mr. Turner at his office on Christmas Eve, and still a third was handed to him on New Year's Day, according to the report. All were in the same handwriting.

'Unknown Person' Killed McGuinness

The Coroner's jury in Jersey City investigating the death of James F. McGuinness, a squad chief of the Prohibition Enforcement Department at Bayonne, N. J., on Christmas Eve, failed to throw any new light on the mystery. The verdict, made public yesterday, was that McGuinness "came to his death on Dec. 24 by a pistol shot fired by an unknown person."

Silk Unions Fight a Longer Day.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 12.—Representatives of the organized silk workers of Paterson declared tonight that the union organizations are opposed to increasing the number of hours of work, a decrease in wages or the open shop. About 40 per cent. of the 25,000 silk workers here are union members. About 10 per cent. of the mill employes are working three days a week and the rest are idle.

WANTS STATE DRY, MILLER DECLARES

be enforced by the Federal Government, but the other prohibited acts can best be enforced by local officers.

"6. The State may render effective aid in preventing all of the prohibited acts, thus lessening the necessity of Federal enforcement and directly contributing to the maintenance of law and order essential to the security of every citizen.

New Department Unnecessary.

"I do not think a State department to enforce the law is either necessary or expedient, and I recommend the repeal of the existing liquor tax law, which will necessarily abolish the Excise Department. Care should, of course, be exercised in such repeal so that its operation may be prospective only. Pending proceedings and prosecutions might well be committed to the Attorney General.

"As the manufacture and sale for certain purposes is not lawful, it may be an aid to enforcement to have certificates therefor issued by some State agency upon the payment of a fee sufficient to pay the cost thereof and upon giving an undertaking to comply with the law, with sufficient penalty to assure compliance. That might well be committed to a bureau in the State Tax Department.

"The law should define the prohibited acts in as simple and concise language as possible, conformable to the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act. Penalties for a violation of the act should correspond with those prescribed by the Volstead act, and I think a prosecution under the latter act should bar one under the State act.

"There should be provision for seizure and forfeiture of liquor illegally possessed, as well as for prosecution of offenders.

"I think that suitable enforcement provisions should be incorporated in the penal law and the Code of Criminal Procedure, and that the enforcement of the law should be confided to peace officers and prosecuting attorneys, as is the case with other laws. That will, at least, make it possible for law-abiding communities to prevent the flagrant violations of law now occurring in their midst. It should make it possible to prevent flagrant and open violations of law anywhere. I am not unmindful of of the fact that it is difficult to enforce such a law in any community where public opinion does not support such enforcement, but we have nothing to do with the policy or the wisdom of the law. That has been determined in the manner provided by the Constitution, and we, who are sworn to support the Constitution, must take it as we find it.

"The honest enforcement of the law may lead to its modification; the tolerated disobedience of it can only breed disorder and create contempt for all law.

"I urge the speedy passage of an effective enforcement act conformable to the act of Congress on the subject.

"NATHAN L. MILLER."

Bills carrying out the Governor's recommendation were introduced in both Houses immediately after the reading of the message. Senator John B. Mullan of Monroe offered the measure in the Senate and Assemblyman Bert P. Gage of Wyoming, in the Assembly.

Minority Leader James J. Walker attacked the measures. He declared the 2.75 per cent. beer bill, which he sponsored to successful enactment last year, was a "better enforcement measure against whisky today than any other that could be written."

"You won't prohibit with prohibition," he warned, "and the sooner this State puts itself on record for sobriety instead of prohibition the sooner we can return to decent living."

He ridiculed Federal enforcement of the Volstead act, declaring that under it "there has not been a thirst from the Atlantic to the Pacific which has not been satisfied at a greater price and with poorer stuff.

"Judge Miller tells you that the result has been scandalous. Now he asks for State enforcement of prohibition. There has been no prohibition, because prohibition does not prohibit."

Turning to Majority Leader Lusk, Senator Walker added: "You will have to admit one year from now that you have not progressed one inch politically if you do what the Governor asks you to do."

The bills were referred to the Senate Taxation and Retrenchment Committee and in the Assembly to the Excise Committee.

After their session tonight the Senate and Assembly adjourned to meet Monday evening.

The abolition of the Excise Department will mean a saving to the State, $88,000 having been appropriated for the maintenance of the department during the present fiscal year. Of that amount $65,000 is for salaries.

State troopers, according to the report of Major George F. Chandler, Superintendent of the State police, submitted to the Legislature tonight, seized $700,000 worth of liquor which was being illegally transported during the last year. Other seizures, one of $225,000 worth of opium and the recovery of $575,000 worth of stolen property, brings the total value recovered by the department in the last year to $1,500,000.

The liquor seizures were made in connection with highway law violations, the report states. Most of the arrests came about because "bootleggers" violated speed laws or drove at night without lights.

WHITMAN GETS WORD OF 'MAN HIGHER UP'

Vaguely Identified as Somebody of Importance in the Police Department.

MAY RESULT IN INDICTMENT

Visitors to District Attorney's Office Recall the Becker Case and Grafting Convictions.

The Whitman-Swann investigation into alleged corruption in city departments progressed yesterday to the first mention of a "man higher up," who was vaguely identified as a man of importance in the Police Department. Whether a uniformed man or otherwise may appear today, when it is possible that he will be indicted for grafting.

Ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, who is in complete charge of the investigation, and his assistants, questioned nineteen policemen who are employed in the fur district. Later Mr. Whitman said he had obtained evidence sufficient to place before the Grand Jury. Several indictments may be asked, one of them being that of the "higher-up."

If there is an indictment, it probably will be for a violation of Section 1826 of the Penal law, which forbids a public servant to take fees from private persons for doing his duty. It has been charged that certain fur manufacturers, during the recent strike, paid fees to stimulate policemen to "do their duty" against unlawful picketing. Mr. Whitman would not specify the nature of the charge or charges regarding which he questioned the policemen.

The alleged "man higher up," who became a popular character during the investigations by Mr. Whitman after the Rosenthal murder, was not the only reminder yesterday of those piping times in the District Attorney's office when Lieutenant Charles Becker and four gunmen were convicted of murder and several policemen and police captains were convicted on charges related to graft. One of the visitors to the District Attorney's office yesterday was Bernard Sandler, the lawyer for Sam Schepps and others who confessed that they instigated the murder of Rosenthal and insisted that Becker was in it, too.

Another visitor was Charles Plitt press agent for Becker, who figured prominently in the Becker case. The highest of the persons convicted at that time were Police Inspectors. Other "higher-ups," like "the man with the Van Dyke beard," escaped identification.

Mr. Whitman admitted yesterday that he had sent to restaurant proprietors for certain information. He refused to explain why he wanted to talk to them, but added: "I don't want anyone to get the idea that it is in relation to 'hootch.'"

One of those questioned was Albert Janssen of the Hofbrau. Another person sought as a witness was Mrs. Louis Bustanoby, proprietor of the Beaux Arts Café, but she said last night that she had been sought by mistake and that an apology had been made for troubling her.

Process servers from the District Attorney's office appeared at the West Thirtieth Street station last night and served subpoenas on Sergeants Frank Dunn and Charles Mooney and Policemen Joseph H. Oakes and Arthur S. Goodwin in connection with the Whitman investigation.

he had walked past the sentry a distance of six feet before there was any shooting and that the sentry fired first, the ball striking him in the back. Both versions agree that after the sentry fired the Lieutenant replied with two shots.

Secretary Daniels tonight issued this statement:—

"The Navy Department has received the following dispatch from Admiral Albert Gleaves, Commander in Chief of the Asiatic Fleet, giving further details of the shooting of Lieutenant W. H. Langdon, engineer officer of the U. S. S. Albany, by a Japanese sentry at Vladivostock:

"'Japanese officer reports as follows: Sentry claims his suspicions were aroused by seeing a foreigner flashing a hand lamp; that he ran across the street and called to him to halt, and that as he came near the foreigner fired one revolver shot at him; that he fired his rifle and then the foreigner fired two more shots and sentry fired one more shot. Sentry claims that he ran back for the guard, but that the foreigner had gone when sentry and guard returned.

"Langdon's statement is as follows: That he was returning to ship, using a hand lamp, and when he was on the sidewalk on the side opposite to the Japanese division headquarters, the sentry ran across the street, taking the position 'charge bayonets' to the left and about six feet in front of him; that he halted until the sentry said 'Amerikanski,' to which he replied that he was and walked on past the sentry; that when he was about six feet beyond the sentry, sentry fired at him, the ball striking him in the back, at which he turned and fired two revolver shots. The sentry then permitted him to proceed to the ship.

"Langdon was in full uniform, and both the clothes and the wounds show that he was shot in the back, the ball passing out at left side of chest.

"Japanese officials are much concerned, and call frequently, offering every assistance in their power. The result of the investigation will be reported to you."

The records of the Navy Department show that Lieutenant Langdon was born in Brandon, Vt., on March 10, 1888, and first entered the naval service as an enlisted man. After five years and six months' service, and while on board the battleship Rhode Island, he was appointed a machinist on Nov. 30, 1915. He was promoted to Ensign on Aug. 15, 1917; to Lieutenant, junior grade, on Feb. 1, 1918, and to Lieutenant on Sept. 21, 1918. During the World War he served on board the U. S. S. Montana.

Varying Versions Heard in Japan.

TOKIO, Jan. 12.—While official reports concerning the shooting of an officer of the American cruiser Albany at Vladivostok still are lacking, unofficial accounts, widely at variance as to the circumstances and the exact time it occurred, continue to be received. One of these is that the officer was passing along a street toward his ship when he was shot in the back by a Japanese sentry without provocation, from a distance of six feet.

Some time after the shooting occurred, according to another report, an American official informed the Japanese headquarters that the wounded man was Lieutenant W. H. Langdon, Chief Engineer of the Albany, who died after regaining his ship.

A press dispatch states that a sentry outside Japanese headquarters at 4:20 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 8 observed a foreigner using an electric torch. He challenged him three times, receiving no reply. The foreigner walked away unconcernedly and the sentry pursued him thirty yards to ask whether he was an American or a Russian. The foreigner replied, "I don't know," and then, flashing the torch with his right hand, is said to have drawn a revolver and with his left hand fired at the sentry, who returned the fire. The foreigner ran off reeling. Other soldiers soon collected and found a pistol and a stream of blood.

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—Lieutenant W. H. Langdon lived when ashore with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Langdon, in the Jamaica Plain section of this city. Word of his death came first from the Navy Department and caused the collapse of his mother.

Lieutenant Langdon was to have left Vladivostok a month ago, but the breaking of a propeller on another cruiser kept the Albany at that port. In a recent letter to his father he wrote that Siberia "seems to have gone crazy. A man is safe here only when he has his hand on his revolver."

SAYS GERMANY IS AMERICA'S FRIEND

Military Critic Salzmann Here, Thinks Two Nations Are Russia's Only Hope.

According to Emil von Salzmann, the military critic of the Berlin Vossische Zeitung, who arrived yesterday from Berlin on the Swedish-American liner Stockholm, the only salvation for Russia will be for German business men to rebuild her industries with the aid of American capital.

"When the peace treaty is signed in the Spring between the United States and Germany," he said, "we shall go ahead. The two nations of the future will be America and Germany. There is a great resemblance between them in their business ideas and views of life generally. Germany is recovering steadily. Before sailing I made a tour through Bavaria, Westphalia and other parts of the country and found the people hard at work. The German workmen have discovered that they do not gain anything by strikes.

"We are getting along very well with the American and British forces in the occupied territories, but the French troops insist on searching private dwellings for firearms and this has caused a lot of bad feeling."

"Do you believe there is any truth in the cabled reports from Holland that the ex-Kaiser is likely to return to Germany as a ruler?" he was asked.

"No," Mr. von Salzmann replied, "there is no chance for a monarchy, and I do not think the ex-Crown Prince wishes to return. I have known him personally for many years and was his guest several times during the war. When things have settled down in Europe he will retire to his estates in Silesia and lead the life of a country gentleman.

"The German people have a great regard for Americans, and that is why they think that the two countries should get together and settle the Russian question, and they also want to get into closer touch with England."

Mr. Salzmann, who was regarded as one of the foremost cross-country riders in Germany before the war, said that he intended to spend two weeks in New York and then go to Japan and China via San Francisco, and investigate conditions in the Far East.

Another passenger on the Stockholm was Gustav Helling, head of the firm of Froding & Co., paper manufacturers of Gothenburg, Sweden, who said the price of news print was half that of a year ago. It would be still lower by the Summer, he said.

PRUSSIAN MIDWIVES STORM THE ASSEMBLY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Hundreds of midwives of Berlin and its surrounding towns invaded the Prussian National Assembly yesterday to attend a hearing on the question whether obstetricians should henceforth enjoy a semi-official status and receive, besides their minimum fees, an annual salary of 3,600 marks and have each her own exclusive sphere of employment.

The measure was introduced by the Socialists on the ground that 100,000 children had perished because the proletarian mothers had been unable to obtain proper advice and help from midwives.

So great was the interest of the midwives that soon all the galleries were filled, and even the press gallery had to be opened to them. But the women ill rewarded the Chairman's courtesy by their noisy behavior, some even taking an active part in the legislators' discussion and calling the opponents of the bill all kinds of unladylike names. These opponents were mostly reactionaries who, as one Democrat asserted, simply fought the present bill because they hoped to get credit for passing a similar measure in the new Legislature which they hoped would show an anti-Socialist, if not a reactionary majority.

The sponsors of the bill asserted that in the present circumstances only the midwives who helped the children of war profiteers, gambling-house proprietors, butter merchants and pastry cooks into the world were able to make a decent living, and that 90 per cent. of the midwives had hardly the means to exist because poor mothers were unable to pay them.

"You wait till you become a father, and we'll all strike!" shouted one red-faced woman from the gallery when an arrogant Junker representative made a rather frivolous criticism of what had been said in favor of the bill. Thereupon all the midwives arose and became so demonstrative that their chairman threatened to clear the gallery—an action which had a calming effect.

Finally the reactionary motion to recommit the bill was defeated, and the midwives left the building with voluble demonstrations of thanks.

TO HOLD INAUGURAL ON CAPITOL PORCH

> Your telegram received. I am deeply grateful to your committee for its action in arranging for the simplest possible program for the inaugural ceremony. It is wholly pleasing to me to take the oath of office in the Senate Chamber if such is the decision of your committee.
> However, I am not unaware of a natural and becoming popular interest in the President-elect assuming his official obligations, and I would gladly have the simple ceremony on the east porch of the Capitol, weather permitting, provided it can be arranged amid such facilities as are afforded without special construction for the occasion.
> I do not forget that during the late campaign which culminated in my election I spoke frequently to the people from the front porch of my home, and they were courteous enough to stand and hear me amid accommodations less comfortable than the Capitol steps and plaza afford. If this seems impractical to your committee it deserves no further consideration.
> The abandonment of public expenditure and the end to all suggestion of individual outlay have put an end to my own concern and mere detail of oath taking which your committee deems best will meet my ready assent.
> WARREN G. HARDING.

Mr. Harding also sent this telegram to the Chairman of the District Inaugural Committee:

> In discharging the Inaugural Committee and sub-committees please convey to the members my grateful appreciation of the unfailing consideration given to me and the generous bestowal of time and means in preparing an inaugural program.
> Though we are putting all celebration aside, I trust there will be the same good will and good wishes in the hearts of all of Washington and all the country which were so generously made manifest by you and all your associates. Gratefully yours,
> WARREN G. HARDING.

The plans for an elaborate inaugural ceremony never had the President-elect's hearty approval. Returning from Panama, Mr. Harding sought opinion from persons traveling with him as to the effect of his following his wishes in the matter and merely walking from the Senate Office Building to the Capitol, taking the oath, and proceeding unostentatiously to the White House. Representations that thousands of people would be disappointed by such a course led Mr. Harding to approve the customary ceremonies.

Since his insistence upon limiting expenses to the minimum, as contained in his messages of Monday to Knox and McLean, echoes of the outcry from residents of the District of Columbia have reached Marion, and Mr. Harding thereupon sent the message today to Knox.

COOLIDGE AGAINST DISPLAY.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 12.—The stand taken by Senator Harding against extravagant display at his inauguration was endorsed in a statement today by Calvin Coolidge, the Vice President-elect.

"I am in entire harmony with the expressed wishes of Senator Harding to have the inaugural ceremonies simple and free from extravagance," said Mr. Coolidge. "In the nature of the case they are held for the public and ought to be of such a nature that the public can participate without the expenditure of a large sum of money. I feel sure that Senator Harding's judgment is correct and will meet with general approbation. I can see no other position that he could take when the Government is attempting to reduce extravagance."

WILL SELECT CABINET ON HIS FLORIDA TRIP

Harding May Leave Marion Without One of the Portfolios Being Actually Settled.

MARION, Ohio, Jan. 12.—At the same time that President-elect Harding is shaping details of his inauguration he is continuing his work on the Cabinet problem and consummating plans for his vacation trip to Florida. No announcement on either subject was forthcoming today, but it was indicated that there might be some definite news regarding both in the near future.

The President-elect's conferences in Marion on the association of nations, Cabinet and other subjects are almost at an end. He has much accumulated routine to clear away before he goes South, but it is known that he has made few appointments beyond the end of the present week. The likelihood that virtually all the decisions on Cabinet appointments will be made in Florida increased today, and there were indication that Mr. Harding might leave Marion without making a final choice for even one of the ten portfolios.

He will confer further on the subject with some of his party leaders during his stay in the South, but he has declared his intention of going on a hunting and fishing trip through the Everglades the first two weeks.

Much speculation in connection with the Cabinet was aroused by the retirement today of A. W. Mellon of Pittsburgh from the Directorate of the Pennsylvania Railway. Mr. Mellon, who has been endorsed for Secretary of the Treasury by Senator Penrose, conferred with Mr. Harding last week.

It was assumed here that one feature of the Cabinet question was discussed by Mr. Harding today with Colonel William Boyce Thompson of New York, a close friend of Chairman Hays.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Jan. 12—Colonel William Boyce Thompson, of New York, was among Senator Harding's callers today. They discussed financial and economic conditions. Later Colonel Thompson said.

"We are now under the painful process of getting back to the law of supply and demand. The world has been consuming at a fearful rate since 1914, but not producing in like measure, because under the conditions of war it was impossible. Warehouses are empty and shelves are bare. The public works and utilities, not only of the nations that were in the war but everywhere, have suffered, because it has been impossible properly to maintain them. There must be restoration of all these things.

"While the nations of the world are clamoring for raw materials with which to turn out finished products, the position of the United States is particularly assured, because this country is the one country that has an apparent surplus. We have the things that the rest of the world needs and the problem is simply to reorganize so that there may be, as early as possible, a restoration of proper trade and distribution.

"Senator Harding is giving a helpful and wise consideration to these problems, and it seems to me that we are extremely fortunate at this time to have a man of Senator Harding's mind and temperament to deal with these problems."

WILSONS WILL MOVE MAR. 3.

Plan of the President to Accompany Harding Unchanged.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Changes in the plans for the inauguration of President-elect Harding will not interfere with the intention of President Wilson to accompany his successor to the Capitol, where the latter will take the oath of office. Mr. Wilson will then make his first appearance at the Capitol in more than a year and a half and also his last appearance as President. After Mr. Harding takes the oath of office he and Mrs. Harding in accordance with custom are expected to entertain Mr. and Mrs. Wilson at luncheon.

President Wilson, it was learned today, plans to leave the White House March 3 for the house here which he recently bought. The house is expected to be vacated by the present occupant February 15, and as soon as some alterations have been completed, the moving of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson's personal belongings from the White House is to begin.

Many of President-elect and Mrs. Harding's belongings, including some of those in their Washington home, will probably be moved into the White House during inauguaral week, and it was said today that Mrs. Harding or a representative of the future first lady of the land might visit the White House within a few weeks to arrange preliminary details.

REVIVE JEFFERSON MYTH.

Old Dispute as to Whether He Walked or Rode to the Capitol.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The old dispute as to whether Jefferson rode horseback to take his oath of office or walked to the Capitol is revived by plans for simplicity in the coming ceremony.

One writer, who gives as his authority an "English traveler," says Jefferson rode horseback and tied up his horse near the site of the Congressional Library. This story has come down to the present generation as an example of Jeffersonian simplicity.

Another writer, however, denouncing the horseback story as a myth, declares that Jefferson intended to ride to the Capitol in state with a coach and four, but his coachman, "Jacky" Eppes, failed to get the horses on time, and Jefferson walked, so as not to be late. This writer points out that Jefferson's lodgings were within 100 yards of the Capitol, and that walking the distance was not remarkable.

NEW GUN IS TESTED FOR 200-MILE RANGE

French and Belgians Have a Weapon Expected to Surpass Famous German Cannon.

NEW PRINCIPLES APPLIED

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—While the Allies are talking over disarmament, the French and Belgians are testing a super-long range gun estimated to be able to fire a shell 200 miles.

The French and Belgian military authorities are endeavoring to keep particulars of the weapon secret, despite Article VIII. of the covenant of the League of Nations, wherein the signatories are pledged to inform each other concerning their armaments.

I am able to give certain plans regarding this super-Bertha after a careful investigation involving considerable research.

The first tests were held near the end of December on the Belgian artillery range at Vivegnis, near Liège. The tests lasted six days, and were held under the supervision of the French inventor, Lieut. Col. Maze, and French and Belgian staff officers.

The small model used as the testing gun was the size of a French 3-inch field piece, built along special lines. The inventor has named the gun "Turbo" because, turbinelike, the projectile increases its speed after leaving the gun.

The remarkable range of the gun is claimed on three factors—the explosive used, the gun itself and the projectile.

Improvements and refinements on the shell are said to reduce resistance, permitting a longer range with the same initial speed. This is made possible through a sharp pointed nose and a flattened rounded end. The big Bertha type hurled shells thus constructed.

But air resistance is but a minor factor, and only slight added range was secured in this way. Small gains also are claimed through alterations in the gun itself. The special barrel used is capable of withstanding a pressure of 3,000 kilograms per square centimeter.

Thus as the speed of the departing shell could not be increased by a higher pressure than this limit, the only way possible was to secure better utilization of the same pressure. This put the problem up to the propelling charge.

Modern explosives are divided into two classes—high speed, or rapid-burning explosives which transform the whole charge into propulsive gas instantaneously, and slow-burning, whose transformation to propulsive gas requires some hundredths of a second before being complete. Part of the high speed powders give their kick to the shell so as to develop maximum pressure immediately. Then as the shell travels through the rifle barrel the pressure falls rapidly, because the space is increased for the same volume of gas created.

Slow burning powders continue production of gas after the shell starts, and the kick continues with a pressure which scarcely decreases until the projectile emerges from the muzzle.

That is why when designed for high speed powder the gun barrel grows thinner at the muzzle, as it is unnecessary for the muzzle to withstand the same pressure as the breech.

Discovery of an explosive which continued to exert its maximum pressure until the shell left the gun resulted in construction of the German big Berthas, which now have been developed further into the "Turbo" type.

Nitrocellulose powder, such as is used by France and Italy, is more easily controlled, as it is slower burning than the nitroglycerine powders the Germans used.

Experiments with and close study of the Big Bertha captured in November, 1918, at Mezieres furnished the elements for Colonel Maze's invention.

The inventor claims a 300 kilometer range as against the 125 kilometer range registered by the Big Bertha in bombarding Paris from the St. Gobain forest.

FINE YOUTHS IN ESCAPADE.

Special to The New York Times.

YORK, Pa., Jan. 12.—Motoring to San Francisco on a trip of adventure, Fred C. Osterath Jr. of "Woodnorton," Germantown, Pa., 17 years old, and Albert Lunberg, 511 West 146th Street, New York City, students at the Bordentown, N. J., Military Institute, saw their plans end this afternoon, when their automobile crashed into a trolley car.

The youths, when taken to Police Headquarters, told how they had run away from school yesterday, stole a limousine belonging to Osterath's father, and were on their way to "fame and fortune." They were held for several hours on a technical charge of recklessly operating a motor vehicle.

While they were nearing Philadelphia, about 4:30 o'clock this morning, they were held up by two highwaymen, they told the local police. Osterath was robbed of $30 and Lunberg of $15, they said.

The father of the Osterath boy came here tonight, paid the boys' fines and took them back by auto to the Bordentown institution.

FRENCH CABINET IS OVERTHROWN

claimed what the French army will do to Germany if she does not pay.

The picture of enormous dividends by German industrial concerns while French industrial concerns remain in ashes as the Germans left them has produced an effect on the French mind difficult to overrate. If France is willing that Germany should reconstruct herself, she does not intend that this shall be done at the expense of France or by the use of resources due France under the Peace Treaty.

The effect this strengthening of policy will have on the relations between France and the Allies cannot be forecast at such an early date.

The whole business of upsetting the Cabinet was very cut and dried and lasted only an hour and a half. The first part of the session was taken up with a speech by Raoul Peret, thanking the Deputies for electing him to the Presidency the previous day. In his speech and the applause given to his declaration that the country was impatiently waiting more positive results of the victorious peace there was an indication of what was about to happen.

"The French people," said M. Peret, "as victors would never accept the humiliation, which was at the same time a defiance of justice, of the defeated enemy tearing up engagements he had signed."

No fewer than six interpellations were scheduled for the afternoon on the financial, agricultural and general policy of the Government, and one on relations with England. M. Leygues asked from the tribune that these interpellations be postponed till after the 19th, so that the Government could go to the allied conference feeling it had the support of the Chamber. He urged that negotiations were now going on with the Allies for holding this conference and that debate would weaken the Government's position. For this reason he wanted an expression of confidence.

Several Deputies, however, demanded immediate discussion of the interpellations and among them were some leaders of National Bloc or Centre Party, such as M. Bonnevay, who theretofore had consistently supported the Government. M. Bonnevay blamed the Premier for having raised the question of confidence instead of giving an explanation to the Chamber as to how the Government intended to meet the grave questions which would arise at the Premiers' conference. When this conference had been held discussion of the Government's policy would be too late, he pointed out.

This speech made it perfectly clear that the Government would be defeated. The voting took only twenty minutes and immediately the President of the Chamber had announced the result the Cabinet filed out.

Tonight M. Leygues will hand his resignation and that of his colleagues to President Millerand, who will summon the Presidents of the Chamber and Senate so as to observe the form at least of consulting them as to who the next Premier should be. In the circumstances it is not thought that the new Ministry can be formed for a few days and postponement of the Premiers' conference is expected to result.

"In the case of Japan," he said, "368,370 tons of sixty-eight ships are projected and have been approved by the Government, but so far as known no appropriations have been made for these ships."

GREAT BRITAIN.

Battleships	None
11 Destroyers	14,390 tons
5 Light cruisers	38,780 tons
Battle cruisers	None
19 Submarines	21,970 tons
1 Destroyer leader	1,750 tons
Cruisers	None

Total—36 units; 76,890 tons.

UNITED STATES.

11 Battleships	421,900 tons
38 Destroyers	48,100 tons
10 Light cruisers	71,000 tons
6 Battle cruisers	261,000 tons
43 Submarines	38,100 tons

Total—100 units; 842,100 tons.

JAPAN.

3 Battleships	112,050 tons
15 Destroyers	16,710 tons
9 Light cruisers	51,800 tons
4 Battle cruisers	160,000 tons
10 Submarines	8,500 tons

Total—41 units; 328,460 tons.

Mr. Daniels said that in addition to this authorized program Japan had a "projected" building program of:

4 Battleships	149,850 tons
30 Destroyers	33,420 tons
4 Battle cruisers	160,000 tons
30 Submarines	25,500 tons
Total, 68 units	368,370 tons

Secretary Daniels presented figures showing the relation that will exist after the completion of the authorized and projected building programs in 1925 (1927 in regard to Japan) as follows:

Great Britain, 1,665,332. United States, 1,617,282; Japan, 689,656. To the Japanese total must be added 268,270 tons projected for completion for 1927, but not yet authorized, making a grand total of 1,057,926 tons.

Secretary Daniels also submitted diagramatic sketches prepared by Commander Pye, U. S. N., showing the relations of the navies in tonnages of different classes of ships as existing at the present time and as they will exist upon the completion of authorized and projected building programs.

From studies made on this subject, he said, the following ratios will exist in 1925 between the United States and Great Britain as follows:

(a) In total ships the United States superior in ratio of 1.35 to 1 by tonnage. Approximately equal in numbers.

(b) In destroyers Great Britain superior in ratio of 1.04 to 1.

(c) In light cruisers Great Britain superior in ratio of 3.2 to 1.

(d) In battle cruisers United States superior 1.4 to 1 by tonnage. Equal in numbers. The battle cruisers of the United States will be more effective fighting ships.

(e) In submarines Great Britain superior in ratio of 1.4 to 1. It must be noted also that the United States will be entirely lacking in air craft carriers of the first line, destroyer leaders or cruisers of the first line.

With reference to Japan, he said, the following ratios would exist in 1925:

a. Total ships, United States superior, 2.9 to 1.

b. Destroyers, United States superior 8 to 1.

c. Light cruisers, approximately equal in tonnage, Japan superior in numbers.

e. Submarines, United States superior 8 to 1. Both navies will be lacking in aircraft carriers, first line; destroyers, leaders and cruisers, first line.

"If the projected program of Japan for 1927 is completed," said Mr. Daniels, "and if the United States does not begin another program, the relation with the Japanese navy will be materially changed and the ratio will be as follows:

"In battleships, United States superior about 2 to 1, instead of 2.9 to 1 as in 1925.

"In battle cruisers, Japan will be superior to United States 1.5 to 1.

"Careful attention should be given to the fact that the United States has no aircraft carriers for the fleet and none are yet authorized. Great Britain has four aircraft carriers, Japan has none, constructed or authorized.

"The construction of aircraft carriers must be given serious consideration. Much progress has been made in developing the naval aircraft to a point where it can effectively operate with the fleet at sea. While the results do not yet permit saying definitely to what extent this force of the fleet can be developed, yet it is strongly indicated that the air force will become an essential unit in the fighting fleet."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—An American call for a world disarmament conference would be welcomed by the great powers of Europe and would disclose "the next Germany" should any nation refuse to agree to disarm, General Tasker H. Bliss declared today before the House Naval Committee.

The General gave to the committee the impressions he had gained through discussions of the subject with European statesmen and soldiers while a member of the Supreme War Council and later of the American Peace Commission. He said there was an immediate and sincere desire overseas for disarmament, but added that until a definite agreement had been reached he would not "disarm one American soldier or lay up one American ship."

"Our present form of civilization cannot stand the great strain of military preparation much longer," General Bliss declared. "The World War was a terrific strain on civilization. The next war will be very much worse. Fear is the basis of war preparation. This is a business proposition, and we should determine whether there is any real basis for the fear that causes these great military and naval programs.

"I do not care what the Cabinets of the world think. The masses of the people, who pay the taxes, have the vital interest in this subject."

The House committee concluded temporarily its disarmament hearing pending discussion by the members of its future program, but may examine other witnesses later. Chairman Butler, who recently returned from a conference with President-elect Harding, said that "within a very few months definite action will be taken along the lines we are discussing here."

WIFE FINDS AYRES A SUICIDE IN HIS DEN

FRIENDS PUZZLED BY ACT

Locked in the den in his home on the second floor of the Hendrick Hudson, Riverside Drive and 110th Street, Abraham Ayres, wealthy man, was found last night, a bullet through his left temple. He died an hour later in Knickerbocker Hospital.

Although the police reported the death as a suicide, their investigation failed to establish a motive for self-destruction. Friends of Mr. Ayres, who were summoned to the hospital, also were puzzled by the act.

Seemingly in bouyant spirits, Mr. Ayres, who was 44 years old, left his home in the afternoon to visit the New York Athletic Club, Sixth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, of which he had long been a member. Half an hour later his wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Smith five years ago, also went out. She returned just before 6 o'clock, the chauffeur of his limousine, Edward Piola of 1,459 Amsterdam Avenue, accompanying her to her suite to carry some articles she had purchased.

Mrs. Ayres rang the doorbell, but got no response. So she entered the apartment with a latch key. Standing in the short hallway, she heard groans. They were traced to Mr. Ayres's rest room, which he had reserved to himself and had fitted up with valuable rarities and referred to as his den. The door to the den was locked on the inside.

Finally, aided by two elevator operators, the door was forced. Mrs. Ayres, entering first, found her husband stretched face down on an Oriental rug in the middle of the room. A pistol was near by, and the unconscious man was clad only in a bathrobe.

While the chauffeur endeavored to resuscitate Mrs. Ayres, who had fainted, the elevator man telephoned the West 125th Street Station and a policeman had the injured man taken to the hospital, where an operation failed.

W. D. Hutton, a member of W. E. Hutton & Co., stock brokers at 60 Broadway, said Mr. Ayres had been both a friend and client for many years. The broker was called from his home at 257 West Eighty-sixth Street to the apartment by the wife.

"Mr. Ayres traded in stocks," he said, "but always on a small scale. I saw him during the day and he was cheerful, and he then told me that he was on his way to the New York Athletic Club. He was in good financial condition and he had, so far as I know, no cares or worries. His only illness that I know of was a slight cold which he had had for the past several days. His home life was happy and he was a member of an old New York family.

"I think he must have suffered a fit of temporary insanity," he added, "for he had never even hinted at suicide to me or any one else."

John H. Tennant, managing editor of The Evening World, also a personal friend, called at the Ayres home.

"He was a man of means," said Mr. Tennant, "and not at all the type who might be expected to commit suicide. I've known him for about fifteen years, dating back to the days when he was a member of the Princeton football team."

Inquiry disclosed that Mr. Ayres had been a substitute fullback on the Tiger team in 1898, participating in several important contests. He was graduated in 1899 from the New Jersey university.

CLEVELAND CHIEF FINED.

Held in Contempt for Failing to Apply 8-Hour Law to Firemen.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 12.—Safety Director Anton Sprosty was sentenced today to ten days in jail and fined $500 by Common Pleas Judge Levine for contempt of court growing out of Sprosty's failure to heed the court order to put into force the eight hour work day in the city Fire Department.

Judge Levine gave Sprosty three days in which to enforce the order and heed the contempt action. Failing to do so, the Court said, he would order Sprosty committed to jail, and compel him to pay the $500 fine.

In answer to the Court's ruling Sprosty declared that he had been advised by the City Law Department that to permit certain members of the Fire Department to work more than eight hours a day was no violation of the court order. He said that he had acted solely on the advice of City Law Director Wood.

Wood said he would take the case to the Court of Appeals immediately and ask for a stay of execution while the higher court considered the merits of the action.

TWO MEN ARRESTED IN ROBBING HOMES

EX-CONVICT IS CAPTURED

Four Robbers Beat Up Man on Street and Escape—Two Held in Fur Theft.

Despite the assertion of Police Commissioner Enright Tuesday night at a meeting in the Merchant Truckmen's Bureau that there was "no semblance of a crime wave in the city," policemen early yesterday captured two men robbing homes in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and another policeman failed to capture four footpads who robbed a man at Jane and West Streets.

The screams of a woman coming from an apartment house at 50 West Ninth Street, in Greenwich Village, attracted the attention of Policeman Massey. He got to the house in time to see Daniel Blasio, 30, of 104 Bedford Street, dropping from the fire escape to the sidewalk. He grappled with the man and dragged him in the direction of Sixth Avenue in pursuit of another man.

The second man escaped. The policeman took Blasio to the apartment house, where Miss Elizabeth Mann, occupying an apartment on the third floor, said robbers had stolen a pocketbook containing $12 from a bureau while she slept.

Blasio was held to the Grand Jury in $2,500 bail.

Less than twenty-four hours after his release from Sing Sing Harry Cook, 25, negro, was held for examination on charges of attempting to rob two homes in the Borough Park section. The negro was arrested after a chase of seven blocks, in which a policeman fired six shots at him.

Soon after midnight a negro entered a bedroom occupied by Mrs. Inez Cave, a negro domestic in the house at 8,678 Bay Parkway, and her daughter Frances, 12. The girl was awakened when the intruder bumped against her bed. She screamed and the robber fled. Policemen were scouring the neighborhood two hours later when one heard cries from the residence at 2,080 Eighty-fourth Street. He saw a negro running across a lot. The policeman went in pursuit of the man, firing as he ran, and another policeman captured Cook. At the Eighty-fourth Street house Solomon Rodnick identified the negro as a man he found ransacking a bureau. Mrs. Rodnick's screams had attracted the policemen.

Four bandits held up Roy Frisen, 31, of Shadyside Avenue, Summit, N. J., as he was walking through Jane Street, near West Street, soon after midnight. When he refused to hand over his watch and money two of the men struck him with blackjacks, inflicting injuries which, it was said at St. Vincent's Hospital, might prove fatal. Policeman Kennedy heard Frisen's cries, but the robbers had escaped before he reached the scene.

Magistrate Sweetser held Abraham Feldman, 31, of 18 East Eleventh Street, and Morris Geroff, 29, of 1,648 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, without bail for examination Friday in connection with the theft of furs valued at $15,000 from a warehouse at 170 West Twenty-fifth Street. Policeman Clancy told the Magistrate a watchman blew a police whistle shortly before dawn and that he saw Feldman and Geroff run from the building. When the policeman threatened to shoot the two men stopped.

Three Arrested When $50,000 Worth of Gloves Are Recovered.

Thefts of approximately $100,000 worth of supplies from army stores on Governors Island by means of forged orders were revealed yesterday through the arest of Joseph L. Kelly, in charge of the army warehouse on the island, and Isidore Brier and Edward Clevan, two of his assistants.

The men were arrested after 20,000 pairs of buckskin gloves were seized as they were being delivered to a warehouse on South Street. United States Commissioner Hitchcock held Kelly in $25,000 bail, Brier in $10,000 and Clevan in $1,000.

The gloves have a retail value of $50,000.

HEAVY LOSS REPORTED ON BURGLARY RISKS

Insurance Companies Put It at $5,000,000 for 1920—Changes in Policies Planned.

A meeting of officials of all burglary insurance companies was held yesterday at the office of William B. Joyce, President of the National Surety Company, 115 Broadway, to discuss the increasing losses which have been facing the companies in the last year and a half.

A loss of more than 20 per cent. above premiums and other receipts has been met by the companies in the last three months. Five companies in 1920 reported losses of more than $1,500,000, and it is estimated that the total losses for the year are more than $5,000,000.

"The present intolerable conditions must be changed," said Mr. Joyce. "It probably will surprise the public to know that the burglary insurance companies are uniformly losing money."

A thorough reformation of methods of issuing burglary insurance was said by F. H. Kingsbury, Secretary of the Globe Indemnity Company, to be imperative. He would eliminate blanket insurance on personal property in residences.

"There is no doubt," he said, "that many elements in the business have not been based on the best judgment. There have been many claims of an improper character, claims which are open to question, and which would be done away with through specific insurance on residences, so that the inventory might show just what was covered by the policy and rates fixed accordingly."

At the present time one policy covers the entire contents of the home. If jewelry and such valuables were covered by one policy with a rate based on the assumed risk, and the other contents by another policy, the loss to the companies would not be so great, Mr. Kingsbury believed, and the rates on ordinary real property would be less. He added:

"Bank losses have been growing all over the country and are not now regarded as a good risk. Losses of stock, messenger losses, which used to be regarded as good risks, are not so regarded now. They have grown greatly in the last two years. There have been many peculiar disappearance losses in homes cases where there was no suggestion of burglary, but where valuables have disappeared. There are many unsatisfactory angles to the situation, and they can be abolished only by an entire reformation of the burglary insurance methods."

Mr. Kingsbury said the questions raised at the meeting, including that of specific policies, had been referred to the Burglary Insurance Association and that some changes would be adopted to help both companies and public.

HOLD POLE AS ARSON HEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 12.—Arrested on a charge of being head of a gang which has been sending threatening letters to school officials and defacing school property, John Shroka, a Pole, is being held in the county jail here while the authorities and States troopers investigate his possible connection with the arson ring which operated for three months in this district, burning schools, churches, homes, mines and other property worth more than $5,000,000. Shroka was held for court tonight on a charge of blackmail.

Shroka was arrested in Brownsville last night and the police made no secret of their belief that a real start had been made in the rounding up of the members of the arson ring.

The gang of which Shroka is said to be the head, in addition to sending threatening letters to school officials, has chiselled crosses in the stonework of school buildings and then inserted a black wooden cross in the cavity.

EDGE FIGHTS BILL AS TARIFF 'RAINBOW'

Tells Senate That Fordney Measure Might Close World's Markets to America.

HARRISON OFFERS BIG RIDER

Fordney Declares Permanent Tariff Will Be Framed Despite Obstacles.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Opposing the enactment of the Emergency Tariff bill, which has passed the House and is soon to be reported by the Senate Committee on Finance, Senator Edge of New Jersey, in the Senate today declared that in his opinion it was very doubtful if the measure would produce enough revenue "to make it worth its salt." The passage of such legislation as was proposed, said Senator Edge, might lead to closing against America the markets of the world as a result of prohibitive exchange rates, if not by retaliation, on the part of the countries against which the emergency tariff would operate.

"In considering any tariff legislation, even so-called emergency measures," said Senator Edge, "it is imperative that Congress view the problem from the greatly changed trade relations brought about by the war."

The United States, he continued, could not have "the cake and the penny both." He added that the most ardent protectionist must recognize the unfailing rule of business that if exports were to increase, which meant increased production and more work, the United States must receive payment in either cash or goods in order that the wheels of industry might continue to go round.

Warns of "False Prices."

"When the wheels stop running," Senator Edge said, "the bread line forms, and any tariff which, in effect, acts indirectly yet effectively as an embargo against imports through exchange rates or in other ways would, with few exceptions, in my judgment, result in only closing the market for American products. It would necessarily reduce prices to the producers where every effort apparently is being made by Congress to increase them, would depress the labor market and certainly would not result in that business development and prosperity which full production and world trade naturally bring about.

"Congress never can help business or industry or agriculture by trying to create false markets or false prices by artificial methods, and it should discourage this chasing of the will-o'-the-wisp. newal of confidence at home, and then "Congress is feeding American business on the shadow when it demands the substance; no pot of gold is to be found at the end of a legislative rainbow.

"We cannot possibly get the other fellow's money by financing the other fellow with money advanced by the American Government, as is proposed through the resuscitation of the War Finance Corporation. Such a scheme will only add to the huge indebtedness already owed by foreign nations to the United States.

"We who have stood for protection will stand for protection and always will stand for protection of American industry and agriculture, business and labor. But we still must recognize the other elements that conditions have introduced into the situation and I for one must repeat that in view of these known facts our consideration of the Emergency Tariff bill before the Senate should be with an eye to the future and not alone with the thought that it is going to help, even temporarily, any class of citizens proportionately to the distress it may cost in the long run. We well may encourage imports along certain advantageous lines and by so doing improve the exchange rates for the countries from which the imports come, thus enabling them to buy more and more from us and encouraging their trade with us."

Harrison Offers Bulky Amendment.

What appears to be the final blow to the emergency tariff bill was administered today by Senator Harrison of Mississippi. He offered as an amendment the Little bill, which is in effect a recodification of the laws of the United States. This bill is actually a huge volume, and if Senator Harrison insists on it as an amendment to the Fordney when the Senate Finance Committee reports the tariff measure, the Little bill can be read for days.

This would constitute an effective step in a filibuster by anti-protectionist Democrats. Senator Harrison has already offered the soldier bonus bill, involving five plans, and a $50,000,000 reclamation scheme as amendments, so he is well fortified with material. Other Senators have many amendments ready, some sincerely wishing new articles protected in bills and others preparing only for a filibuster.

Stories that the Democrats would split sufficiently on the bill to allow its passage were discredited today by Democratic leaders. They said that only a few Southern Democrats, such as those desiring temporary protection for sugar, would vote "aye." The bill has been laid aside by the Senate Finance Committee for a day or so, but will be considered on Friday by the committee and reported not later than Monday.

There was no lull in the work of the Ways and Means Committee, which is framing permanent tariff legislation. Witnesses representing metal producers and industries using metals were heard today, practically all asking for higher rates of duty on products.

Fordney Promises General Bill.

In the course of the hearing Chairman Fordney asserted that even though the permanent bill was being created amid chaotic conditions of varying foreign exchange and fluctuating wages, the work of evolving the legislation would go right ahead, and the bill would be reported. This pronouncement was brought forth when Representative Garner of Texas, a leading Democratic member of the committee, drew from H. L. Henry of the Geneva Cutlery Works the statement that it would be impossible at this time to create a workable tariff act because of world conditions.

Dr. John A. Matthews of Pittsburgh, who appeared before the House committee as the spokesman for the crucible steel industry, said:

"An equitable degree of protection for the labor and capital engaged in the big steel industry would be secured by a scale of duties ascending with the import valuations. The higher the import value the higher should be the rate of duty because almost without exception the increased valuation of steel is due to the additional proportion of labor represented in its production.

"There has been much adverse comment on the subject of selling American goods abroad cheaper than at home. With tonnage steels this is possible. With crucible steels it is impossible, unless these were sold below cost."

Say German Industry Is Rebounding.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—Particular attention was given by witnesses before the Ways and Means Committee today to discussion of the rapid recovery of German industries from the wreckage of the war. Those industries, it was testified, had recuperated more rapidly than American business men had ever believed possible, and the committee was urged to prepare a barrier against the inflow anticipated.

German labor has accepted the conditions of its homeland, as is historically true of the race, the committee was told, and now is working, thousands in the most highly skilled branches, at wages below those paid prior to the war. The question of whether the pay of the workers would ultimately go up or down was submitted to the committee for determination in the drawing of a new tariff law.

ARCHBISHOP HAYES SAILS.

Leaves for Rome to See the Pope and Will Be Away Till Palm Sunday.

The Most Rev. Patrick J. Hayes, Archbishop of the Catholic Archdiocese of New York, sailed yesterday for Rome on the Italian liner Pesaro, which had his blue flag with white cross flying at the foremast.

Archbishop Hayes said that he was going to Rome to present to the Pope a report on the Archdiocese of New York and also his report as head of the Catholic Chaplains of the American Army and Navy during the war. "It is my first visit since 1914," he said, "when I was present with Cardinal Farley at the coronation of the Pope."

In the Archbishop's party were the Very Rev. Mgr. Joseph P. Dineen, his secretary; the Rev. Stephen J. Donahue, assistant secretary; the Rev. Vincenzo Arcese of St. Joseph's Convent, Sullivan County, and the Rev. John B. Kelly, who has been the spiritual adviser of the Catholic Big Brothers. It was said that the Archbishop expected to return before Palm Sunday.

Increased Fare Hearing Tuesday.

The Public Service Commission will hold a public hearing next Tuesday morning on an application by the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway Company for permission to increase the fare between St. George, Port Ivory, South Beach and other nearby beaches, from 6 cents to 13. An injunction prevents this company, along with other intrastate railroad companies, from charging the 20 per cent. increase in passenger rates allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

BRITISH CELEBRATE LEAGUE'S FIRST YEAR

Films of Geneva Assembly Shown—Lloyd George Message Urges Open Dealing.

KING SENDS COMMENDATION

Grey Declares Future Peoples Will Not Part With Organization Set Up.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—To celebrate the first anniversary of the League of Nations and to emphasize that it is now working actually, the League of Nations Union held tonight a mass meeting in Royal Albert Hall, with Lord Robert Cecil, H. A. L. Fisher, Viscount Grey and George Barnes as the principal speakers.

One of the features of the evening was a display of motion pictures taken at the Geneva Assembly. When the idea of filming the gathering was first mooted objections were raised on the ground that it would be undignified. Publicity managers, however, urged that the League needed public support and that millions of people in Great Britain alone would see the pictures, and so the work was done.

The film is impressive enough with its views of war devastation in France and figures of the cost of armaments, but statesmen suffer at its hands. It shows a number of the leading members of the Assembly addressing the gathering from a platform on which the Secretaries and officials are seated. To give the pictures life they are run so fast through the machine that the speeches seem to have been delivered in the midst of wild confusion. Messengers run madly to and fro behind the speakers, the Secretaries turn the pages of their records back and forth and the presiding officers carry on frantic conversations with each other.

King and Premier Send Messages.

LONDON, Jan. 12 (Associated Press).—At the mass meeting tonight under the auspices of the League of Nations Union there was a distinguished gathering of prominent men and all the foreign embassies and legations were represented.

A message was sent to the King expressing congratulations for the League's good start, and a message from Prime Minister Lloyd George was read in which he said he was convinced that the League would be successful in proportion as it represented all nations and as these nations insisted upon fair and open dealing with each other.

Lord Robert Cecil said that, in consideration of the difficulties with which the League had been beset, it was no small boast that it was still living. He believed that if Great Britain would really lead the way toward the publicity the Premier mentioned, there was hope, amounting to certainty, of success.

Viscount Grey expressed the belief that in the future people would no more think of parting with the League than of exchanging civil government for civil war.

In the course of the meeting the King sent a reply to the union's message declaring his faith that in the League "lies the sure guarantee of peace, and only in the fulfillment of its high ideals can the generations to come be saved from desolating wars."

SOVIET CONGRESS STORMY.

Lenin Accuses Mensheviki of Being Tools of International Capital.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 12.—A special dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende from Helsingfors says that according to anti-Bolshevist Russian journals anything but concord reigned at the recent Pan Russian Council Congress at Moscow. Serious disagreements arose, one meeting breaking up in disorder because the noise made speaking impossible.

The Menshevist Leader Dan violently attacked the Government's peasant policy, whereupon Lenin characterized the Mensheviki as the tools of international capital. He admitted that the Government looked first after the interests of labor, but did so only to assure the victory of Bolshevism, and that this discrimination would not continue.

The Social Revolutionary Volsky seconded Dan, pointing out that the Government terrorized the peasants by means of Red troops.

Bukharin, the leader of the extreme Left, accused the Commissioners of treason against the cause of the proletariat and of an inclination to luxury.

Zinovieff violently attacked the provincial Councils, which he charged were not equal to their tasks. The best Communists had been sent to the front and many had perished there, he said.

UP-STATE GETS ALL COMMITTEE PLUMS

This City Again Ignored in Assignments in Both Houses of the Legislature.

ONLY NINE CHAIRMANSHIPS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Although on the basis of both election returns and party enrolment figures New York City has its valid claim for exceptional consideration at the hands of this Republican Legislature, the up-State Republicans, who are in control at the Capitol, will continue to treat it as "the enemy's country." That became apparent when assignments to the standing committees were announced in the Senate and Assembly at the session tonight.

In the distribution of chairmanships and places on important committees members from the City of New York have been treated quite as niggardly as in the past, when discrimination was justified by the up-State Republican masters of the legislative show on the ground that New York was a Democratic city.

The committees on the affairs of cities in both the Senate and Assembly, although they handle more legislation affecting New York City than they have measures affecting all the other cities in the State put together, will be headed by up-State Republicans. In the Senate the honor goes to Rochester with Senator John B. Mullan Chairman. In the Assembly the city of Yonkers drew the prize. Assemblyman George Blakely of Westchester, who was appointed Chairman, calls that city his home.

In the Senate, where Senator Alvah Burlingame Jr. and Charles C. Lockwood of Kings were continued as Chairmen of the important committees on the Judiciary and on Public Education, New York City men got five out of twenty-five Chairmanships, and did not fare as poorly as they did in the Assembly, where only four out of thirty-one were awarded to members from New York City.

Aside from the committees in the Senate to which reference has been made, the chairmanships bestowed on city members were all posts at the head of committees of minor importance. In the Senate, William L. Karle of Queens was appointed Chairman of the Committee on Commerce and Navigation; Senator Schuyler M. Meyer of New York, Chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections and Senator William T. Simpson of Kings, Chairman of the Committee on Penal Institutions.

In the Assembly, Miss Margaret L. Smith of New York, the only woman member of the Legislature this year and the first woman member to be made Chairman of a committee, will preside over the Committee on Social Welfare. Assemblyman Frederick Wells of Kings continues as head of the Committee on Military Affairs. Assemblyman Joseph Steinberg of New York was made Chairman of the Committee on Claims, and Assemblyman James H. Caulfield of Kings Chairman of the Committee on Commerce and Navigation.

Not a place on the Committee on Rules which during the final weeks of the legislative session virtually controls all unfinished legislative business, was bestowed on a New York City Republican. Two Democrats, Minority Leader Charles D. Donohue and Assemblyman Frank J. Taylor of Kings, get seats on this committee.

MORE RENT LAWS OFFERED AT ALBANY

Welfare Bills Also Introduced and Five Measures to Repeal Daylight Saving.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—Among the great mass of bills introduced in the Senate and Assembly tonight were five to repeal the Daylight Saving law. A repeal bill was passed at last year's session, which was vetoed by Governor Smith. All the introducers of new repeal bills are up-State men.

Several housing bills and welfare measures were included in the big batch, which approached a record for this early in the session.

Assemblyman Benjamin Antin, Democrat, of the Bronx, introduced one of the housing bills. It would amend the New York City Municipal Court code to provide that in rent actions, where the defendant defends on the ground that the rent is unjust, unreasonable and oppressive, the plaintiff's costs shall be governed by the amount of his recovery in excess of the rent deposited.

Amendment of the Municipal Court code to provide that an action for the rental, statute use or occupation of real property or to recover possession of it must be brought in the district where the property is located, is asked by Assemblyman Samuel Dickstein of New York.

A bill offered by Assemblyman William Lyman of the Bronx, would require owners or agents of dwelling houses occupied by more than three families to file with the New York City Tax Board statement of monthly rentals, encumbrances, rate of interest and the like. Where the rental exceeds 10 per cent of the assessed valuation the assessors shall ak $1,000 for each 10 per cent in excess of the original 10 per cent.

Assemblyman Noel B. Fox, New York, Republican, offered two concurrent resolutions providing for the reconstruction of the State Government. He would have twenty-one departments. The offices of Secretary of State, Treasurer and State Engineer would be appointive instead of elective.

Provision for changing exemption figures under the State Income Tax law from $1,000 and $2,000 to $2,000 and $4,000 for single and married men, respectively, is made in another bill offered tonight by Assemblyman Ralph Halpern, Queens, Republican.

Public garage and motor vehicle repair shops hereafter will be obliged to notify police authorities and the State Highway Commissioner if the manufacturer's number on a machine has been apparently altered or removed, if the Legislature approves of a bill offered tonight by Assemblyman Albert H. Henderson, Democrat, of the Bronx.

The usual welfare bills made their appearance, Assemblyman Lyman introduced them. One would prohibit employment for more than eight hours a day of any person in a mill or factory except watchmen. Overtime work could not exceed three hours a day at time and a half. The second measure authorized the Governor to appoint a Mother's Welfare board of three members. It would appropriate $1,000,000. This money would be used for the support of mothers whose husbands are dead, have deserted them, are in jail, are in an insane asylum, or unable to provide for them and the children account of ill health, or physical disabilities. The measure also provides for the establishment of County and City boards. The third measure introduced by Mr. Lyman would create a three-headed commission appointed by the Governor, and fix a minimum wage for women and minors in industry. The bill appropriates $200,000.

Assemblyman Thomas M. Cosgrove of Richmond introduced a bill establishing a Department of Ferries in New York City in charge of a commission to be appointed by the Mayor. The new department would take over the ferry duties now reposing in the Commissioner of Plant and Structures.

WOULD EXPEL JAGER AS JERSEY RESIDENT

Assembly Resolution Also Accuses Brooklyn Socialist of Maligning Wilson.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—Inquiry into the qualifications for office of Henry Jager, Socialist Assemblyman from the Fourteenth Kings District, was asked tonight in a resolution offered by Assemblyman Rowe of Erie. The resolution was referred to the Judiciary Committee, where are other resolutions providing for the expulsion of some or all of the Socialist Assemblymen.

The resolution declares that at the time of his election Jager was a resident of New Jersey and as such not eligible for election to the Assembly.

The resolution also asserts that Jager was convicted on April 4, 1917, "of the crime of disorderly conduct in that he had made certain inflammatory and seditious public speeches and therein denounced the President of the United States of America as a murderer, for which he was duly sentenced to a penal institution for a term of six months, which sentence he duly served."

Assemblyman Jager denied to newspaper men that he had denounced the President as a murderer. He said that he was convicted of disorderly conduct, although there was no corroborative evidence, and served only three months of his sentence, being then released.

He also denied that he is a resident of New Jersey, insisting that his residence was and had been in Brooklyn for "some time." Mrs. Jager, he said, lived in New Jersey because of ill-health.

"It seems strange," he added, "that a member of the Republican Party, the party which has been attacking the President for so long a time, now finds it is his duty to defend him."

Charles Solomon, Socialist leader in the House, said that in his opinion the resolution, in so far as it applied to the residence of Jager, was "a perfectly proper matter for investigation by the Assembly."

At a rooming house at 158 South Second Street, Brooklyn, last night, the proprietor, Max Joachim, said that Assemblyman Jager had lived there "about a year," sleeping there nearly every night and keeping his clothes there.

Also the Transcontinental Mail ESSEX—One of Four ESSEX Cars That 4 Times Broke the Record Across America

In order to have space for a more elaborate exhibit than would be possible at the Automobile Show, the Essex will hold its own show this year in our salesrooms.

We have particularly in mind the greater convenience this affords to the many hundreds who are interested specifically in the Essex.

A feature of our show will be the display of one of the four Essex transcontinental record breakers.

How often you must have heard Essex owners speak of their immunity from repair needs and motor troubles that are a constant source of annoyance in less durable cars.

That sort of dependability you can look forward to with assurance that enthusiasm has not overtold the story.

The consistent goodness that nearly 50,000 owners have found in the Essex is a proof that carries more conviction than even the famous endurance records it has set.

CRITICISES HIGH FARE SET ON STATE ROADS

Up-State Commission Says I. C. C. Levies First-Class Rate on Third-Class Service.

REPORT GOES TO ASSEMBLY

Legislature Is Told That Branch Lines Are Not Entitled to 3.6 Cent Rate Imposed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—The Up-State Public Service Commission, in its annual report submitted to the Legislature tonight, severely criticised the Interstate Commerce Commission order requiring payment of 3.6 cents per mile on New York State railroad lines. The commission declares that the people of the State are paying a first-class rate for a second-class and in some instances a third-class service.

"One result of the passenger rate of 3.6 cents per mile so made applicable to the New York intrastate rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission, regardless of State statutes and of State control, is that the fixing of such rates rests upon the assumption that the quality of the intrastate service is taken as a whole equal to the quality of the interstate service.

"As a matter of common knowledge, such is not the fact. It is true only to a small degree, and applies only, if at all, to the main lines. The passenger service on the branch lines penetrating all parts of the State is notoriously not of the same quality as to speed, or wholesomeness, or comfort, or reliability, or value to the passenger. All except the main lines are single track, carrying both passenger and freight traffic, and the freight traffic is too often given preference over the schedules of passenger trains.

"Passenger trains on all but the main lines mostly carry express and large quantities of milk and cream cans, which must be loaded or unloaded at every station, a process requiring much longer time than taking on and leaving off passengers. In short, the order of the Federal commission compels the great mass of intrastate passengers to pay a first-class rate for a second-class, and, in many cases, a third class, service, solely because some of the traffic of such roads, in many cases a negligible percentage of the whole, moves across the State boundary."

The report stated that the commission felt it to be its duty to test in the courts the power of the Federal Government to deprive the State of power to regulate capitalization of corporations organized under its own laws.

Some good is seen in Federal control, for the commission says that the work of the Interstate Commerce Commission in connection with representatives of the New York Central on the advisability of the installation of automatic train control in the larger steam railroads will result in the "first definite step toward automatic train control being undertaken in the State in 1921, and the result will be of more than State-wide importance."

The commission again asked that the Legislature extend its power over rate-fixing for street car companies.

"Increased rates on nearly all electric railroads have been required during the last two years," the commission declared, and added that the public response had been characterized "by fairness and good sense."

MILLER TO LIMIT CLEMENCY.

Says He Will Bar Appeals Seeking Review of Court Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—Applications for executive clemency hereafter will not be considered where a review of evidence already reviewed by the Court of Appeals is asked for, Governor Miller declared this afternoon.

The Governor laid down this policy in the appeal of Ramon de Negri, Mexican Consul General in New York City, for clemency for Augustin L. Sanchez and Enrique Garcia, Mexicans who have been sentenced to be electrocuted at Sing Sing on Jan. 24 upon conviction for murder in Olean, N. Y. The Governor deferred action on the appeal.

"Of course, the Governor in the exercise of executive clemency should not undertake to correct mistakes either of jurors or of the courts," declared Mr. Miller. "I mean to say that decisions on questions that are properly submitted to the jury or to the court must be final. The Court of Appeals exists to review trials and in murder cases to correct mistakes of jurors. The Governor cannot review these cases for the purpose of correcting such mistakes. Of course, the Governor having this responsibility must examine these cases, but on questions submitted to a jury the Governor cannot—certainly I shall not—exercise executive clemency because I might have reached a different conclusion."

NO EARLY ACTION ON LOCKWOOD COMMITTEE

Demand for Extenson of Scope and Power Not to Be Taken Up This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—There will be no consideration this week of the resolution providing for extension of time and powers of the Lockwood committee investigating the housing situation. Senator Lockwood of Kings, Chairman of the committee, is anxious to have a public hearing on the resolution before the Senate Finance Committee and the Assembly Ways and Means Committee when they are organized, which will not be until next week.

In the face of strong opposition against giving the committee blanket powers to probe insurance companies and banking institutions, which, it is contended by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the Lockwood committee, have hobbled building by diverting their available assets to Wall Street for speculative purposes, Senate Leader Clayton R. Lusk tonight made public a statement which no one at the Capitol interpreted as an indication that he would lend the weight of his influence to the support of the committee's demand.

Senator Lusk said: "So far as I have learned, in talking with members of the Legislature, there is a unanimous sentiment on their part to continue the Lockwood committee with all of the powers necessary to complete a full and sweeping investigation of the housing situation.

"The resolution introduced in the Senate at its opening session had to be referred to the Committee on Finance as it carried an appropriation. The resolution cannot be introduced on the Assembly side, under its rules, until next Monday night.

"The legislative committees have been appointed and will organize for work early next week. At any time after their organization the members of the Finance and Ways and Means Committees will be ready to confer with the members of the Housing Committee and their counsel, at their convenience, as to the necessary provisions of the continuing resolution."

A representative of the real estate interests said tonight that the New York City realty men were not in any way interested in the proposal to probe insurance companies and banks. He added that at present builders and real estate men depended on other sources for mortgage loans. The banks in New York City, he said, had on an average 52 per cent. of their available funds out of 60 per cent. while the law permits them to use for that purpose, invested in mortgages or building loans.

ARGUE SMITH-TOWNER BILL.

Educational Measure Is Attacked and Defended at Civic Meeting.

Arguments for and against the Smith-Towner bill now before Congress, which would establish a Federal department of education with a secretary in the Cabinet, were advanced at a meeting of the Woman's Department, National Civic Federation, in the Cosmopolitan Club yesterday. Dean Andrew F. West of Princeton University, said that the measure would subject questions of education to political influence, and declared the Cabinet was already too large.

"Who is going to guarantee that the Secretary of Education would be appointed for his knowledge of the subject, and not as a political reward?" he asked.

The Smith-Towner bill was advocated as the best medium for ridding the country of illiteracy by Professor George D. Strayer of Teachers' College.

REPORT TO CITY BAR HITS JUSTICE FORD

Committee Takes Him to Task for Letter to Papers on Court Assignments.

UPHOLDS APPELLATE POWER

Fitness of Jurists Should Be Considered in Choosing Work, Say Noted Lawyers.

Attorneys and members of the Bench were keenly interested yesterday in the reply to Justice John Ford of the Supreme Court which the Committee on the Judiciary of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, led by William D. Guthrie, incorporated in its annual report submitted on Tuesday night in executive session at 43 West Forty-fourth Street.

Justice Ford, in a letter to Governor Miller published on Nov. 29 last, criticised the method of making assignments by the Appellate Division, suggesting "partisanship, favoritism or malice." The report of the Bar Association's committee termed this suggestion "preposterous upon its face." The eminent lawyers who joined with Mr. Guthrie in terming Justice Ford's complaint "unsound in law and unfounded in fact" were Lewis L. Delafield, Henry W. Taft, Alfred P. W. Seaman, Francis M. Scott, De Lancey Nicoll, William N. Dykman and Isidor J. Kresel.

"The attention of your committee," set forth the report, "has been called to a letter which appeared in the daily newspapers on Nov. 29, 1920, signed by Justice John Ford of the Supreme Court and addressed to Governor Miller, but evidently intended for general publication.

Justices Could Not Answer.

"The letter is devoted to a criticism of the manner in which the Justices of the Appellate Division in the First Judicial Department have exercised the power entrusted to them to fix the time and place for holding Special and Trial Terms in this department and to assign the Justices to hold such terms. Naturally the Justices whose official acts have been thus criticised have felt a delicacy about replying to a communication not addressed to them. For this reason and also because of the evident pains that were taken to give publicity to the letter, your committee feels that it should report thereon to the association."

The report then refers to the constitutional convention of 1894, when a Mr. Cornwell endeavored to amend the article in the Constitution which reads: "The Justices of the Appellate Divisiin in each department shall have power to fix the times and places for holding Special and Trial Terms therein, and to assign the Justices in the departments to hold such terms," &c., by striking out the words "Appellate Division" and inserting the words "Supreme Court," so that it shall read, "The Justices of the Supreme Court," &c.

Root Opposed Change.

"Mr. Root, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, then said: 'I hope the amendment of Mr. Cornwell will not prevail. It would introduce very great confusion and would do away with one thing which I think is of some importance. I do not wish to say anything against any Justice of the Supreme Court, but they are the only body of public officers that I know of anywhere who have the absolute power to determine what they shall do, when and where they shall do it, and whether they shall do it or not. I do not believe that a judicial system is perfect unless it provides in some way in which the duties may be prescribed, which it shall be incumbent upon a Justice of the Supreme Court to perform.'"

Chester B. McLaughlin, now a Judge of the Court of Appeals, also opposed the change and it was voted down.

The report of the Bar Committee adds:

"The suggestion that the Justices have been actuated by 'partisanship, favoritism or malice' is preposterous upon its face, and is sufficiently answered and refuted by a review of the names and characters of the eminent Justices who have sat in the Appellate Division during the twenty-five years that the court has existed.

"That the Justices of the Appellate Division have been influenced by their knowledge of the personal qualifications of individual justices to perform certain kinds of judicial work we do not doubt.

In out opinion the Justices of the Appellate Division would fail in the proper performance of the duty expressly imposed upon them by the Constitution if they did not give due regard to the personal equation in making the assignments of Justices to hold special and trial terms.

Ford Suggestion Opposed.

"The curious suggestion is made that the assignments of Justices should be so made as to enable each Justice to 'make the most of himself,' by which the writer seems to mean that the Supreme Court should be so constituted as to be a sort of post-graduate law school, for the completion of the education of Justices who were imperfectly educated when elected. This view is interesting only because of its novelty, and seems to require no comment.

"We note with especial regret the offensive reference to Justices assigned from other departments to sit in the Appellate Division as 'carpetbaggers.' The provision of the Constitution is that a majority of the Justices designated to sit in the Appellate Division in any department shall be residents of the department, leaving it optional with the Governor to designate a minority of any Appellate Division from outside the department, and every Governor since the Appellate Divisions were created has freely exercised this power when occasion required.

"The several non-resident Justices who have been, from time to time, assigned to sit in the Appellate Division in this department have, without exception, been learned, industrious and in every way most satisfactory, and no small measure of the high esteem in which that court has been universally held has been due to the services rendered by these non-resident Justices.

"Your committee, therefore, is of the opinion that the complaints embodied in the letter of Justice Ford are unsound in law and unfounded in fact, and it is confident that the Justices of the Appellate Division in fulfilling the duty of assignment vested in them by the Constitution and the judiciary law have uniformly been actuated solely by the desire to secure, so far as possible, that distribution of judicial work which would produce the most useful and satisfactory results. It is submitted that they have been remarkably successful in this attempt."

WAR FLIER FACES ABDUCTION CHARGE

NOW HELD IN NEWARK

Couple Intercepted at Station—Father Charges Aviator Already Has Wife.

Mabel C. Sandberg, 17 years old, is back in her parents' home in Jamaica and Charles A. Lindsay, 28 years old, a former army aviator, is under arrest in Newark, N. J., facing a charge of abduction in Queens County because of his alleged cave-man methods of love making. Lindsay is being held to await extradition to Queens. At present he is held in Newark on a charge of carrying a loaded revolver.

Lindsay, whose home is in Pittsburgh, Pa., has been stopping in Newark for some time. He was stationed at Mitchel Field, near Garden City, during the war and met Miss Sandberg at a party given by Jamaica girls for soldiers. Since the war he has called on Miss Sandberg, according to the story told to the police, and while she did not frown upon his visits, she refused to become his wife, at least until he proved to be all that he said he was.

John Sandberg, a painter and decorator, the girl's father, demanded references from Lindsay and is said to have been furnished a list of Pittsburgh addresses. Replies began to reach Sandberg Tuesday, he told the Jamaica police, and the first one he opened, he said, announced that Lindsay had a wife in Pittsburgh. Sandberg told his daughter, but she refused to break an engagement to accompany Lindsay to a Jamaica theatre in the evening. On the way home after the performance she told him she never wanted to see him again.

"But you're going to marry me, and you'll do it tonight in Newark," Lindsay is quoted as having said, according to the Jamaica police.

They say he then drew a revolver and ordered the girl to accompany him to Newark. Frightened, the young woman complied, and they went to the Jamaica railroad station to await a train for Manhattan. While there Miss Sandberg excused herself, entered a telephone booth, called up her home, and told her father of her predicament.

Lindsay becoming suspicious, according to the police, instead of waiting for a train, took Miss Sandberg to Manhattan on the elevated railway. When Jamaica detectives, notified by Mr. Sandberg, went into the station the couple had vanished. But the officers telephoned to the Newark police and Lindsay was arrested as he and Miss Sandberg alighted from a train in that city. According to the information received by the Jamaica police, a loaded revolver and a can of ether were found on Lindsay. A formal complaint has been lodged with the Jamaica police and extradition proceedings will be instituted at once, they say.

STATEN ISLAND GAS RATE UP

Referee Grants Increase From $1 to $1.25 a Thousand Cubic Feet.

Staten Island users of gas will pay $1.25 a thousand cubic feet after today. William K. Welch, President of the New York and Richmond County Gas Company, announced last night that H. S. Sewell, a referee appointed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, had granted the higher rate.

The rate has been $1 a thousand cubic feet, which the company contended was insufficient to pay any return upon the investment.

Erasmus Hall Academy — Flatbush — 1826

When the Town of Flatbush was the County Seat

THE old Dutch town of Flatbush was until 1833 the County Seat of Kings County and was the centre of the judicial, political and educational life of all the old Dutch and English "County Towns", now merged in Brooklyn. There was the old Erasmus Hall Academy, erected in 1786, to which repaired the youth of the county, many of them afterward distinguished in public life.

The old Academy still stands in use as part of the splendid Erasmus Hall High School, an indication of the permanence of Brooklyn's institutions. Progress founded upon old traditions and old time standards characterizes the Spirit of Brooklyn, the Home Town.

Ours is a Brooklyn institution, full of the friendly, helpful, spirit of the Town. This is Letter No. 12 of a series written to all of you about a matter which is vital to your success.

If you have missed any of the previous letters and would like to have copies I will mail them to you.

President-elect Harding, of Ohio, and Governor Miller, of New York, certainly have their feet on solid ground as regards waste of public funds. Both show their sympathy with the NATIONAL THRIFT MOVEMENT, which now appears to be swinging around the circle very effectively.

Thousands of converts are coming forward and pledging themselves to take care of their money henceforth and to invest it where it will do industries (the backbone of our country) and themselves a lot of good.

The suggestion of President-elect Harding, made to Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, and to E. B. McLean, in charge of local inaugural ceremonies, that his inauguration on March 4 be made very simple and thrifty has been accepted very generally as a wise and patriotic move.

It will certainly be an innovatoin to inaugurate a President of the United States in a thrifty way, but it indicates very clearly the trend of the times.

Keeping a lot of money in the United States Treasury instead of wasting it on "a show" is very much more practical, and the people at large will recognize that President-elect Harding proposes to carry out the pledges he made during his campaign.

Governor Miller, of New York, who has a judicial and analytical mind, knows that the need of the hour is economy in the administration of the business affairs of the State, so he has started and will carry through a Thrift Movement in State affairs.

You know, of course, that he has set apart the week beginning Monday, January 17, and ending Sunday, January 23, as THRIFT WEEK for the State—thus indicating his conviction that the NATIONAL THRIFT MOVEMENT is vital to the country.

All men, apparently, in public life, in professional life and in business life, are greatly impressed with the absolute necessity of everybody practicing Thrift and investing their surplus in sound securities, which will cause speedy resumption of all business industries throughout the country.

Henry L. Doherty & Company are in entire accord with the positions taken by President-elect Harding and Govern- of Miller—not as Republicans—but as citizens and business men, for they see very clearly that ECONOMY, which is THRIFT, is the only thing that will rehabilitate quickly the business of the Nation and put it on a sound basis.

They are in entire accord with the NATIONAL THRIFT MOVEMENT.

They want to do their part in filling the air with GERMS OF THRIFT, so that everybody can inhale them and get them into their systems, never to come out again.

These GERMS will not make anybody sick; they will not make anybody feel mean; on the contrary, they will be a GREAT TONIC. They will put PEP and CONFIDENCE into everybody.

Economy Is Thrift
Thrift Is Common Sense
Common Sense Is Prosperity

There is a cry going up here, there and everywhere: "Spend your money, buy now, relieve manufacturers and merchants of their surplus stocks, keep your money in circulation."

Henry L. Doherty & Company, in urging the people to practice Thrift and to invest their money in safe securities, which will earn them money steadily, are not opposed to WISE BUYING, but they are opposed to EXTRAVAGANT BUYING.

The Thrift they have in mind is the kind that will keep people supplied with money always, so they can ALWAYS BUY.

Steady buying is the backbone of business, and please remember that ONLY THE THRIFTY CAN BUY STEADILY.

If all workers were thrifty and owned the solid securities of the country there would never be any business depression.

Now, this Little Red Thrift Book is a convenient and enduring pocket-piece, which one should carry always and read and re-read, because every time it is read it will emphasize the value of practising Thrift.

It contains a reproduction of an interview with Mr. Henry L. Doherty, which was published in the New York Tribune, Sunday, Feb. 29, 1920, and is as follows:

The National Vice

Our national vice is extravagance. We have many people who resent the fact that other people have accumulated wealth and they have not, and yet there are dozens of men I have known from boyhood who have consistently spent everything which has come into their hands and were temperamentally so constituted that they would have spent every cent they received, no matter how much it might have been.

A Fool Question

It may seem like a fool question, but the man who has no capital and resents the fact that others have should seriously ask himself:

"How long will it take me to get rich if I continue to spend everything I get?"

Conserving and Spending

A determination to save, if carried to fruition, teaches a man how to spend intelligently and how to get the greatest value for what he must spend. Intelligent and discriminating buying would, to a great extent, make profiteering impossible.

Charity

If thrift could be made pretty much a general thing throughout this country its effects would be more far-reaching than most people imagine. It would mean better morals, less misery and greatly lessened demands for charity. Trace back every individual case of the need for charity and see how far you have to go to find that the need is due to lack of thrift.

Thrift and Crime

Trace back the history of every crime and every criminal and see how often crime and criminals are the result of lack of thrift. I asked a celebrated police officer several years ago what would be the reduction in crime and prostitution if thrift were generally practiced. He did not then think it would bring a very great reduction, but he never forgot our conversation and generally referred to it whenever we afterward met, and each time he would estimate a greater reduction in crime and prostitution, and he said the last time we talked that if thrift were generally practiced crime would be reduced by 60 per cent.

Pleasure of Thrift

To start and maintain a consistent plan of laying by requires more self-will and determination than many persons possess. When they reach a certain point, however, it ceases to be a hardship to them and becomes a pleasure. It has taught them how to save, how to spend and how to invest, and often leads to a fortune so vast as to be unnecessary and troublesome and of no use except the fun of playing the game.

Opportunity

This is the day and age of opportunity, and we live in the country of the greatest opportunities. Opportunity must pass each man's door not once, but often.

But opportunity is not apt to stop and knock at the door of the man who is but an indifferent workman. Most fortunes have been built by laying by small initial amounts, but when opportunity knocks the man who has not practised thrift or who has no credit must let opportunity go elsewhere, and opportunity will seek out the man who is known to be thrifty.

Rich and Poor.

The fact that laying by and investing are first a hardship and later a pleasure, and often become a mania, is one reason why, on one hand, we have many people who are quite rich and, on the other hand, a great many more people who never have anything ahead, and this in a country where opportunities are very nearly equal. But still more remarkable is the fact that for every rich man who makes a fortune we can all point to a dozen men who had greater natural advantages to make their fortunes, but did not.

We are told that the rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer. That is plain "bunk." The great majority of the rich people of to-day were the children of the poor people of a generation ago.

National Resources

Many people are discouraged from practicing thrift in the belief that all of the wealth that can be accumulated has been accumulated. This is ridiculous. Nobody knows accurately at this time what the accumulated wealth of the entire country is, but relatively it is quite small when measured by national standards. For centuries we have been converting the natural resources of this country, which cost us nothing, into wealth, and yet the entire amounts laid by which represent our accumulated wealth, both private and public, would not be sufficient to support us on our present scale of living for a period of ten years, even assuming we could convert this wealth without loss from the form in which it now exists into the things we would need to live on. In less than ten years everything, including the house over our heads, would have to be sold to furnish us with what we consume.

What Thrift Does

Here is another example: If the workers of the country should save 10 per cent. of their salaries and wages, and this were invested at 6 per cent. interest, they would in a single generation accumulate more wealth than has been accumulated in all of these centuries and all of these generations.

Here is still another example: If one family had come to this country at the time Jamestown was settled with a capital of $7,000, and this fund, together with its proceeds, had been continually invested at 6 per cent. ever since, this one family alone would now have a greater wealth than our entire accumulation of wealth.

Every one working for better morals, better citizenship, better conditions of charity subjects, can perhaps attain the desired end more quickly by working to make thrift universal than by working along his present lines.

Don't you believe that the above message, distributed widely, will do a lot of good? Don't you think it will make workers particularly realize the need of always having some money laid by and safely invested?

Don't you think it will have a splendid influence with school children who have yet to start the battle of life and who should know before they start that they will get along in the world much faster and with greater happiness if they learn the lesson of thrift?

TURNING IT OVER ENTIRE.

The withdrawal of Ambassador Wallace from the meetings of the Supreme Council at Paris is but a part of a large decision to which President Wilson has evidently come. This is to make no further attempt to deal with the aftermath of the war, but to turn it all over to the incoming Administration. There is really nothing else for the President to do. All his efforts have been opposed and frustrated by the Republican Senate. No proposal, no suggestion of his would get a moment's tolerance from the Republican managers. They would not let him attempt to lift the post-war burden. The only course, then, is to pass it on to them entire.

They have professed to want it so. Their protest has been that they alone were competent to solve the big questions. Their party is the only one "fit to rule." It has the "best minds" and nearly all the patriotism of the country. The Democrats have snarled everything up. Republican shears are ready to cut all the knots. The "too vast orb" has no terrors for the eager and confident Republicans. Bring on your world problems. The Republican Party finds instant solution.

This complacent attitude will not, in all probability, persist long after March 4. When the Republicans find out the true dimensions of the task handed to them by Mr. Wilson they will have a new complaint to make of him. Why did he leave tottering Austria to fall upon their shoulders? How negligent in him to do nothing to put the great debt owed us by Europe in the way of final payment! All the left-overs of the Versailles Treaty—the Sarre Valley, Silesia, Danzig, Turkey, Armenia, reparations, alien property, trade agreements, and so on—will fall in one heavy mass upon the new Administration. If it then groans and heaps fresh reproaches upon President Wilson, he will be entitled to smile and to say grimly: "You would have it, Georges Dandin."

And what answer will the Republican Administration make when Europe asks what is to be done? The new and weak republics will demand American help, or at least some definite formulation of American policy. They will wish to know how the United States intends to help stabilize an insecure world. The reply they will get is that we are going to "codify" international law. Envoys and Ambassadors will go to President Harding to press upon him urgent matters of debts and loans and commerce and humane relief and territorial safeguards and projects of disarmament and plans for the prevention of war. According to present appearances—according to the most authentic and reiterated dispatches from Marion—he will say to them: "Can't "you see that we are busy codifying "international law? After that work "is done—and it may easily take ten "years to do it—come around again "and we will see what we can do for "you."

RADICALS SUPPRESS RADICALS.

At the recent conference of the Labor Party in London an attempt was made to capture the meeting. A man who declared that he represented 250,000 unemployed workingmen rushed to the platform to offer a motion and to make a speech. The Chairman at once ordered him to sit down, and that great champion of free speech, Mr. Arthur Henderson, "put his arms round him and pushed him back into his seat." The intruder retired to the gallery, whence he shouted as the conference adjourned: "You are nothing but a crowd of lazy fakers!"

This is one more proof how hard it is for extremists to put up with extremists. They rage at being held within limits themselves, but turn into vigorous suppressers as soon as men more violent than they seek to usurp their power.

PUTTING THE TARIFF BILL TO SLEEP.

Senator Capper of Kansas, who makes a specialty of farmers, sends lugubrious words to his weekly organ in Topeka:

> We seem bent on protecting quails and shoddy manufacturers, and putting farmers in the unprotected class with rattlesnakes, chinch bugs and pocket gophers.

Surely the farmers should be removed from a list of the unprotected that includes such objectionable company. Mr. Capper explains that he doesn't believe in protection for a class, but the farmer is fundamental and universal, and his interests "are "so inextricably mixed with the in-"terests of all America that a just "protection to him is a benefit, in "fact a necessity, for the entire na-"tion." Just protection is a hard thing to come by, and Mr. Fordney's Emergency Tariff bill, so blithely dumped upon the Senate by the House, seems likely to find even an excess of anesthetics among the grave doctors at whom Vice President Marshall looks with such twinkling eyes.

Senator Penrose promptly turned from an opponent to a friend of the bill. The farmers are useful in the Republican business, but an impromptu and piecemeal protection measure has little chance of becoming a law. All the other children in the Republican household are crying for their share of the plums. Senator McCumber is concerned about wheat. Mr. La Follette, a home protectionist and a tariff reformer for other States, has passionate thoughts to express in behalf of Wisconsin cheese. Every dairy cow is kicking. The dairy interests are aroused. Butter from Canada, Denmark, Australia, Argentina, New Zealand, competes with the native product. In 1919 9,500,000 pounds of butter and substitutes were imported, whereas the exports were only 34,500,000. Can this regrettable state of things go on? Why, the Danish co-operative dairies have planned to export 50,000,000 pounds a year, say four days' supply. American milk and condensed milk, butter and cheese, and so on, must be protected against the pauper labor of Europe and Canada. The sugar growers, veteran criers for Government help, demand that the bill be sweetened. An interminable procession of super-protectionists is descending upon Washington, and the time is short.

Yet the ungodly in the Senate are acting as if its time were like Goethe's, everlastingly long and broad. Dozens of amendments, jocose or impertinent, chloroform sponges of the enemy, are pending or will be offered. Mr. Thomas of Colorado and Mr. Harrison of Mississippi mean to lighten the slumbers of the unfortunate project by tacking to it the Soldiers' Bonus bill and the Immigration bill. This process of overlaying protection's sweetest child can be continued indefinitely. The most unkindest cut of all comes from a Senator who hides his name from expected and just obloquy. He threatens to introduce as an amendment and have read the bill for the recodification of the Federal statutes. It is estimated that the reading of this little trifle would keep the reading clerks busy for a fortnight. There is no end to the unworthy devices of the adversaries of Mr. Fordney's masterpiece. While it is a humbug bill, it may be hard work to humbug the farmers when all these arrangements for preventing its passage are displayed before their eyes for weeks. About the best thing that can be said about it is that it is a deliberate and cynical joke.

ELECTRICAL INSPECTION.

More than eighteen pages of the issue of The City Record of July 16 are devoted to a republication of the Electrical Code of the city with amendments proposed by Nicholas J. Hayes, Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity. Commissioner Hayes in transmitting his recommendations to the Board of Aldermen says that the proposed amendments conform to the latest revision of the National Electrical Code. That may be true so far as the statement concerns technical practice in installation. It can hardly be true of two of Mr. Hayes's amendments, which seem to have a peculiarly local flavor. As a hearing on these amendments is to be given by the Board of Aldermen tomorrow at 2 P. M., it is well that the nature of the amendments should be understood in advance.

Under the present code, licenses are issued to persons engaged in installing or repairing electrical appliances by a board of seven members, consisting of an officer or employé of the department, a master or employing electrician, a journeyman electrician, an underwriter's electrical inspector, an electrician in the employ of a Public Service Commission of the city, an architect or builder of at least five years' practical experience and a real estate owner or broker. The members of this board are appointed by the Commissioner and usually hold office during the term of a City Administration. Commissioner Hayes in one of his amendments proposes that appointments shall be made "annually," and that the board shall pass upon the fitness of applicants "during the calendar year"; and the Commissioner is vested with the power to remove any member of the board and fill the vacancy. This scents too strongly of patronage to escape the suspicion that that was the motive. The members now serve without compensation. After providing for annual appointment, the next step very likely would be a provision for the payment of salaries to members of the board. Unless Mr. Hayes is able to offer sound reasons for such a change, that amendment should be defeated.

The Commissioner also proposes an amendment providing that fees shall be charged for inspection, service and certificates of inspection. No such charge is now made. It is estimated that this amendment would impose a tax of from $200,000 to $250,000 annually upon the owners of buildings in which electrical work is done. An examination of the enormous budget and its equally startling deficit may have suggested this new source of revenue. No argument is needed to show that it would be bad policy to put any new obstacle, even a slight one, in the way of the building industry in New York City.

These amendments are opposed by the Real Estate Board, by the Electrical Contractors' Association, by the Board of Fire Underwriters and by the Merchants' Association. They appear to be uncalled for and objectionable.

THE BALLOON FLIGHT INQUIRY.

In the naval court of inquiry that will be called under the regulations to determine how and why Balloon A-5598 was lost it will be in order to bring out and put in the record every circumstance relating to the voyage from Rockaway Park to the Moose Factory district and the subsequent adventures and conduct of the balloonists. The Navy Department is capable of making a thorough investigation, and should be allowed to make one without interference or supervision by Congress, which has more public business than usual to attend to. The balloon flight that ended without a tragedy in the Hudson's Bay wilderness is not of sufficient importance to warrant the intervention of Congress, although that does not seem to be the view held by Senator King of Utah. There are aspects of the affair that the department is naturally concerned about: the purpose and arrangements of the flight, the scientific value and the management of it, the unseemly row between Lieutenants Farrell and Hinton at Mattice, and the question that has been raised of an intention to make an adventure of it and pecuniary profit out of an account of the experiences of the crew.

From the story of the flight frankly told by Lieutenant Stephen A. Farrell it would appear that the balloonists were not equipped and rationed for an endurance test or for an ordeal in the Canadian wilderness. He himself received only about an hour's notice of the expedition. All that was given out about its object to the newspapers was an intimation that a practice flight was intended for the study of air currents. The instruments carried did not point to any serious scientific undertaking. "It "was just a little balloon hop for us "to get practice and experience," Farrell is quoted as saying. Apparently, Lieutenant Kloor, the commander, was the only balloon officer. "Hinton had never been up in a balloon before." The rations consisted of eight sandwiches and two thermos bottles of coffee. No water was carried, because a landing on the following morning was contemplated. At 8 o'clock in the evening of the day of departure the voyagers were over Wells, Hamilton County, and in the morning they sailed on before a brisk but not violent wind, being then far to the north of Wells. Lieutenant Farrell says that they could have "valved down [at Wells] and that "would have been the end of the "thing, but Kloor wanted to keep "going and we were all agreeable."

The fascination of making a record doubtless carried them on until they found themselves over a wilderness and were "worried some." The end was a descent into a forest, and the balloonists who had started out so gayly were lost, with their lives in hazard. The Navy Department will give them credit for their pluck and persistence, but the duty is none the less peremptory to determine whether such a venture was authorized, whether in any sense it was necessary under the conditions of weather prevailing, and whether the flight was properly conducted.

MISSING EMERGENCIES.

For some weeks the Senate Immigration Committee has been searching for the emergency which it had been assured confronted the country. Thirty agitated witnesses have been examined in support of assertions that "millions of aliens would flood the "United States, increase unemploy-"ment and create economic chaos." The figures of the movement from the old countries to the new show no abnormal alteration of ratio between arrivals and departures, according to the summary of the evidence by the committee's Chairman. Moreover, there is not steamship accommodation sufficient for the millions who were said to be about to flood the country.

There was another emergency "dud" yesterday. The railway workers had discovered that the railways were diverting $750,000,000 of earnings, which might have gone into their wage fund, instead of into profits of private equipment companies. The spokesmen for the railways accused of conspiracy with the bankers to ruin the credit of the railways cruelly remarked that the allegations had nothing to do with the subject before the Railway Labor Board, and that no attention would be paid to them. In a hoarse aside there was a remark that the difference in the costs of the work done by the railway shops and the shops of the companies was due to the fact that the railways had only reckoned materials and labor, and that the company shops included items of interest, depreciation and overhead, which were debits for the railways, too, but were not included in those particular accounts.

There are other collapsed emergencies. A few days ago many believed what they were told, that there was not coal enough to go around and that foreign money from ruined Europe would buy more than rich Americans could spare. Now it is announced that the foreign buyers have more coal of their own than they expected. They are so oversupplied with coal imports that they are canceling contracts, and the bottom has fallen out of the export coal market. Coal is still too dear and coal profiteers are still at work. Prices of certain sorts of coal are advanced a shade on the excuse that buyers' unbalanced takings make an abnormal scarcity. The days are lengthening and the cold is strengthening, but the price of coal is not rising. That is not because there is more coal, but because the panic is over. It was a real fright while it lasted, but it passed as soon as it was discovered that the Government was relaxing its measures for relief because they were more nearly a cause than a remedy. The Government's priorities, and orders that some districts should be supplied in advance and preference and at certain prices, canceled coal contracts at lower prices and thus supplied the speculators with "free" coal sold to the highest bidders. When the bidding stopped there was not more coal, but there was cheaper coal and more coal than in any other year but one.

Another emergency missing is the housing shortage. There are no more houses, but there are fewer evictions. The Legislature is in session, but there are no more demands for relief, perhaps because of the miscarriage of the earlier statutory reliefs. Landlords and tenants have discovered that it was better for them to get together than to rely upon laws to put either at the mercy of the other. Resist the calamity monger and he will flee from you, is the maxim suggested by the missing emergencies. Also, it is ancient wisdom that the Lord helps those who help themselves. If the troubles through which we have passed have reduced the disposition to look to Government for assistance, the missing emergencies will not have been wasted while they were with us.

THOSE BLONDE WOMEN.

The passage of the Volstead act having failed to introduce the millennium, our moral protectors are constrained to find other explanations for the continuing deplorability of these times. Satan was always an expert in disguises; he could change himself into a little black dog or a big black cat or a gentleman in red doublet and hose. No wonder the moralists are unable to decide which of his manifestations is still responsible for the existence of evil in human life. Perhaps it is Sabbath desecration or the movie menace; perhaps, as a professor's wife suggests to the Wellesley girls, it is jazz music; and perhaps, as an optometrist suggests to his fellows in convention, it is ultraviolet rays.

We are much impressed by this last theory. "Do you want to make Chicago safe for husbands?" asks the optometrist. "Then deport the blonde "beauties to Moose Factory or some "other cold northern region. Blondes "don't really belong in the Chicago "latitude; they're irritated by the "ultra-violet rays of the sun. So "from an excess of nervous energy "they pull the Cleopatra stuff." This explains a good deal—particularly in Chicago, which by sheer determination has made itself the most ultra-violet city in the United States. There was a time, before the Fair, when Chicago was notoriously and too often proudly infra-red. But a little group of public-spirited men spent their money like water and succeeded in transplanting a large quantity of culture to the lake shore. A recent Chicago novel was announced by its publisher as celebrating the arrival of Chicago as the musical capital of the United States. The note surprised readers who had found the story concerned chiefly with the lapses of a blonde woman, but the ultra-violet hypothesis explains it. Chicago has bought culture, but at a terrific price in blondes.

Passing from Chicago to a region which has a favorable trade balance in culture, we find the girls at Wellesley warned against the jazz demon. Mrs. Augustus Trowbridge expresses unimpeachable sentiments which might have been uttered to young girls, and probably were, by the Empress Livia, the first Mrs. Augustus. "The chil-"dren of the boys and girls of this "generation," she laments, "will not be fit to live."

Probably not. It may be doubted if any generation has ever been fit to live; certainly none ever has been in the opinion of the generation before it. But a generation which found the world more comfortable and on the whole more kindly than it had ever been before, and let it run violently down a steep place into the sea, is in no position to make ungracious remarks about its successors. We have loaded them down with a mortgage on the old homestead; that ought to be a sufficient legacy without the added burden of moral reflections. The next generation may have a little more sense than our own; it can hardly have less. Not a Sunday passes in Summer without the arrest of some girl on one of the bathing beaches near New York for the insufficiency of her bathing suit. Out in Milwaukee the District Attorney has just decided that waitresses in a beach café, who have been wearing bathing suits while serving meals to shoe retailers attending a convention, must go home and put on their clothes. One excess creates the other; perhaps the next generation will at least understand that a bathing suit is not immoral in itself; that it is in place on a bathing beach and out of place at a convention of retailers. The human race has never been fit to live, but it goes on living.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Not Now as Safe as Formerly.

Something between an inclination and a purpose to put on automobilists, as such, enough of additional taxation to pay the whole expense of highway maintenance throughout the State is reported by the observers of legislative activities, and they also say that the new Governor seemingly regards the plan with favor.

The owners and drivers of motor cars are now so numerous, and they are so well divided through all the economic strata except the very lowest, that they are, or ought to be, able successfully to defend themselves from the imposition on them of excessive tax burdens. There does linger, however, a little of the old antagonism they aroused—and too often earned—in the days when they were few in number and their machines, being used for pleasure only, or at least only in the hope of getting pleasure, were classed, properly enough, among luxuries.

Then no legislator needed to be careful in his treatment of the motor folk, and the more roughly he used them the more popular with the majority of his constituents was he likely to be. Now times have changed. Automobile owners are far more numerous than the owners of horses and carriages formerly were, and, really, their cars having become the vehicles of the general population, there remains for putting a special road tax on them little more reason than that it is easily collected.

At present farmers constitute no small part of the automobile class, and that is a fact upon which up-State legislators—and up-State Governors—would do well to reflect before they add to the expense of maintaining a car.

A Visitor With a Purpose.

Perhaps the most amusing of the several amusing things which Mr. Chesterton has said since he proved his confidence in the stability of our country by stepping on the edge of it was the statement that he had "come over here to see America."

That was a good joke in its way, but not good in the way in which he has taught us to expect his jokes to be good, and all his friends here must be wondering that he did not use his customary frankness. He, much more safely than not a few recent predecessors who have arrived on the same mission as his, could have ventured to speak right out in meeting, and to admit that he came to acquire something other than information.

It is a perfectly honest purpose, and nobody will begrudge his large attainment of it, for doubtless he will make full return for all he gets, and, however satisfactory his tour, he only will be collecting on account for the debt we long have owed him. If only he will prove himself that rather rare bird, an English literary light who not only has something to say worth hearing—lots of them have had that—but one who has a limber tongue and can make himself heard, his glory will be great. Also his reward.

We have had painful experiences with members of the class he so amiably represents, some of them remote in time and others recent. But we have had highly pleasing experiences with them, too, divided in the same manner, so he has good examples to follow, as well as bad ones to avoid.

What Does Interest Such Men?

One man, a linen importer, when under examination to ascertain whether or not he was qualified to serve as a juror in the Brindell trial, said that he never had heard either of Brindell or of the Lockwood committee. He would admit only that once he had seen a headline that might have referred to the case, but he insisted that he had "passed it by." Another man, a sales manager, declared that he had read nothing about the Lockwood inquiry and that though he recalled having seen Brindell's name in a headline he had not read the article. As both were under oath, it must be presumed that they told the truth, and suspicion that they misstated the facts either to get into or to keep out of the jury box must be dismissed for lack of evidence.

Acceptance of their statements as true is difficult for most of us, and, for about as many it gives a sensation that is as much humiliation as surprise to have to realize that there are in New York business men who either do not read the newspapers at all or else pass over in their reading of them a matter not only as important as the work of the Lockwood committee, but as interesting as it ought to have been from any one of a dozen points of view, political, economic and moral, to any man literate and intelligent enough to find his way about city streets.

Not infrequently, indeed, one makes astonishing discoveries as to wide blank spaces in the minds of women in regard to current events, but women, somehow, are more easily excusable than men for not reading the daily papers. Whoever so does excuse them, however, is far from complimentary to them, and by doing it he would, and certainly should, offend a far greater number of women than he pleased. But for a man not to keep himself decently well posted on the day's larger happenings implies something worse than negligence or laziness, and certainly he is unworthy to take part in determining another man's right to liberty or property.

A Rejection Hard to Explain.

Both of the men who confessed to complete ignorance of Brindell and the Lockwood committee were rejected as jurors, and neither the defense nor the prosecution had to use up a challenge to get rid of them. They were dismissed by the court as obviously unqualified for service. That the lawyers on neither side wanted them is easily understood, but not quite so clear is the reason for the court's action. That is not because a Judge, personally, would want to accept them, but because there would be some difficulty in measuring the difference between such men and a good many of those who do get into jury boxes, and get there less in spite of than because of having closely similar ignorance of what is going on about them.

Theoretically, of course, it is not the possession of knowledge and opinions that disqualifies a man for jury duty, but there is a strong disposition to reject a man because of it, just the same, and the search, nominally, for jurors with open minds is lamentably apt to end in the selection of jurors with minds that are empty and pretty sure to remain so.

SALES TAX OPPOSITION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The position taken in your editorial article of Jan. 9, that the opponents of the general sales tax include most of those who have given particular study to the general aspects of taxation, is justified. Just as "experts" in finance oppose a heavy tariff barrier, particularly at this time, just as "experts" oppose the revival of the War Finance Corporation, so similar thought opposes any serious general sales tax. Prominent among these opponents is Dr. T. S. Adams, general tax adviser of the Treasury Department since 1917, formerly Chairman of the Advisory Tax Board, one who is remarkably free from personal bias and combines with wide learning rich experience in the actual administration of tax laws, State and Federal. The Tax Committee of the National Industrial Conference Board heard advocates and opponents of the sales tax fully and impartially; the committee was composed of hard-headed representatives of industry, and, in the light of practical business experience, concluded that the general sales tax was unwarranted. The committee was not coerced, but it was convinced.

Do you not underestimate the difficulty in the general sales tax program presented by the multiple-process industry? Under the income and profits tax laws there is no discrimination against the single process industry; the tax of each industrial unit depends on its profits, not on the form or number of the transactions by which the profit is realized. Thus, if separate concerns each perform one process in a production cycle, each pays a tax on the profits from that one process, while if a great concern performs a number of processes it now pays a tax on the total profit derived from each process. Under a turnover tax, however, the goods passing through small units would be many times subjected to a tax that applies but once to the integrated enterprise. The fact that the small units have, as you point out, been able to survive is a reason not for, but against, levying a discriminatory tax upon them.

General sales tax advocates fail to reckon with the reality that this tax will be heavy. What counts with the business man is net, not gross, and reckoned in terms of net income the smallest tax on turnover may run up to as much as 50 per cent. The placing of this heavy burden, without reference to ability to pay, upon businesses not equally able to shift the tax seems calculated to cause disaster to many, even of the resourceful.

As to the idea that the opponents of the tax confine themselves to theory while the advocates take into account practical considerations, is it not frankly a question of theory against theory, rather than of theory against practice? Neither side has a monopoly upon any particular brand of truth. May we not recall Sydney Smith's definition of orthodoxy: "Orthodoxy is my 'doxy'; heterodoxy is your 'doxy.'"?

"Just a Lie," Says Wells.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A fourth article by H. A. Jones has just been published on this side by The London Evening Standard, and no doubt you have regaled your readers with the same stuff, in which he says I have called Lenin "the beloved Lenin." It is just a lie.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The startling reports of wildcats roaming the woods and highways of Monterey, Mass., is indeed a huge joke to its inhabitants. I, for one, have been hunting in and about the town for over forty years and have never met with one. Instead of a day's record of four cats killed, there have been three bounty claims made in town in the year 1920. Quite a contrast! JAMES MARTIN.

"NOT YOUNG YEAR'S BOAST."

I hold no brief for Youth today—
For unlined faces, golden hair;
I sing not Spring, the buds of May,
Nor Phyllis, ever young and fair.

Unnumbered singers turn that page,
I sing of gallant Age!

For Youth has hope and lusty wings;
To Youth the Muses lend their art;
To Youth the oldest poet sings
A song to Spring from Winter's heart!

Yet brighter than Youth's shining gold,
The courage of the old!

So 'tis not Youth I envy now,
Nor driving, striving, middle years,
But Age well met, his quiet brow,
His wisdom gleaned from time and tears:

Not young Year's boast, great deeds begun,
But old Year's work—well done!

Portraits by Olive Tilton on View at Knoedler Galleries.

At the Knoedler Galleries are four portraits by Olive Tilton to be on exhibition until Jan. 22. Few as they are, they show great variety of method. In the portrait of Mrs. John Dynely Prince the artist is a devoted follower of Holbein, not quite daring her great forerunner's close precision of outline, softening her heart when the matter is one of cloudy hair against a blue background, and allowing herself to remember Leonardo and to forget Holbein when it comes to the modeling about the charming mouth; but nevertheless profiting greatly by her study of the Basle painter. The portrait is beautiful and simple, and quite without the mannerism that might be expected from so frank a turning to a master of consummate manner.

A freer and more modern technique is seen in the pretty portrait of Pyrma Tilton in white with a white muff against a yellowish brown background that serves as a test for the mellowness of the white. The two portraits of Miss Audrey Emery have the warmth and dash and graceful ease that never fail to attract the public, whatever the stricter merits of the work may be. In this instance the ease is supported by the excellent drill in draftsmanship which the artist received in her student period from Raphael Collin, whose beautiful nude, "Floreal," is known to all visitors to the Luxembourg for the charm of its delicate modeling.

FRENCH TAX YIELD HIGH.

Collections in 1920 Amounted to 12,059,000,000 Francs.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Taxation and monopolies in France yielded in 1920 a little more than 12,059,000,000 francs, which was 16 per cent. above the budget estimates and more than 4,000,000 francs, or 52 per cent., above the yield in 1919.

Registration duties were the chief contributions to the increase, especially those on the sale of houses and taxes on transports and amusements. The sale of matches and tobacco showed a strong advance.

The customs receipts were 10,000,000 francs below the estimates, but 7 per cent. above those of 1919. This increase was due to new taxation, imports having slightly decreased, as compared with 1919. The new tax on the business turnover in December yielded the same as in November, 203,000,000 francs. This was under the estimates, but over the monthly average realized since the tax was created, which was 184,000,000 francs.

BAKER IS REDUCING RHINE ARMY BY HALF

Says Our Withdrawal of 7,000 Men Will Cut Germany's Bill, Now $75,000 a Day.

FRENCH WERE EXPECTING IT

One Editor Yesterday Warned His Readers to Look for Total Withdrawal Before Long.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The reduction of the American forces in Germany, commanded by Major Gen. Henry T. Allen, from 15,000 men to approximately 8,000 men has been ordered by Secretary Baker.

No announcement of this important change in the policy of the Administration respecting the American forces on the Rhine was made by the War Department, but the fact was disclosed today, when the text of a letter written by Secretary Baker to Representative James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, a Democrat, announcing that such a reduction had been ordered, was given to The New York Times.

No statement is authorized by Mr. Baker as to when the rest of the American troops on the Rhine will be withdrawn, but he says in his letter to Mr. Byrnes that the question of the ultimate withdrawal of this force is a matter for future consideration. One effect of the Secretary's action will be to reduce considerably the amount Germany will have to pay this country for future occupation of the Coblenz district. As stated by Mr. Baker, this cost has been about $75,000 a day during 1920, or $27,000,000 annually in round numbers.

The Secretary's letter to Mr. Byrnes, dated Jan. 9, follows:

> Dear Mr. Byrnes: In reply to your letter I beg to advise you that our force on the Rhine has been costing the German Government approximately $75,000 per day during the last calendar year. Our army of 225,000 men entered Germany in December, 1918, in accordance with the terms of the armistice, and the force has been continued there to date under the same conditions. Its strength has gradually been reduced until on Dec. 15, 1920, it was 15,306 men. A further reduction to 8,197 men has recently been ordered by the War Department, and this reduction is now under way. The ultimate withdrawal of this force is a matter for future consideration. The armistice provides that the cost of maintenance of the occupying troops shall be borne by the German Government. Cordially yours,
> NEWTON D. BAKER.

Secretary Baker wrote to Mr. Byrnes in response to a letter from the latter asking for the facts as to the size and cost of maintaining the American forces on the Rhine.

When asked why he requested these data, Mr. Byrnes said tonight:

"So much misinformation is being spread regarding the size and cost of the American forces along the Rhine that I decided to write for the facts. Speeches have been made which sought to make it appear, first, that we were maintaining a large force along the Rhine, and, secondly, that it was costing this Government a tremendous sum."

Warns French to Expect Withdrawal.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The withdrawal of American troops from the Rhine is an event which the Journal des Débats warns the French public to expect in the not too distant future. The writer expresses the view, generally current in well-informed circles here, that the decision that Ambassador Wallace should take no further part in interallied councils is in no sense a reflection upon French policy, as the German propagandists are trying to make out.

It is, in his opinion, simply concrete proof of what France ought to know already, that the American public by rejection of the Democratic candidate last November showed clearly, first, its desire to keep free of European entanglements, and secondly its dissatisfaction with the treaty of Versailles and its unwillingness to join America's former associates in keeping watch over the execution of the treaty.

Two months hence a new Administration will enter office and the decision regarding Ambassador Wallace, says the Journal des Débats writer, is due to the very natural desire on the part of Americans that the new President shall have his hands entirely free as far as Europe is concerned.

"We must expect," he continued, "that the recall of the American troops now on the Rhine will not be long delayed. French opinion should be prepared for measures of this kind, which could only cause it emotion if it failed to have a clear view of the situation, which for America is not at all what it was in November, 1918. The day the American soldiers leave the Rhineland the Germans will not fail to try to use their departure for their own propaganda. They will pretend that the United States blames the policy of the Allies and condemns the prolonged occupation of the left bank of the Rhine."

He refuses to believe this to be the case and thinks that if the American withdrawal takes place it will be simply due to "the American wish to be as little as possible engaged in European affairs. That fact it is useless for us to try to hide."

This is the first time that the possibility of the withdrawal of the American contingent from the Rhine has been put bluntly before the French public as likely to occur before long. The idea cannot fail to be rather a shock and will undoubtedly tend, at least for the time being, to strengthen the position of the Nationalist majority in the Chamber of Deputies, which has just overthrown the Leygues Cabinet chiefly because it felt that the Premier was inclined to adopt a too lenient attitude toward Germany. Whoever forms the new Cabinet must take the sentiment of the Nationalists into account, and there is a prospect of reinforced firmness on the part of the French Government with regard to German disarmament and reparations.

PREMIER'S PAY TOO SMALL.

Asquith Says He Found £5,000 Insufficient in Office.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Evidence by ex-Premier Asquith as to the inadequacy of £5,000 per year to discharge the social obligations of a Prime Minister appears in the report of a select Committee on Remuneration of Ministers. The recommendations of the committee already have been published.

Mr. Asquith, who was continuously in office for eleven years, nine of them as Prime Minister, told the committee that he was a much poorer man when he left office than when he entered it. The office of Prime Minister could not be properly discharged on £5,000 yearly, unless the holder had private means of his own, he said. There was much entertaining to be done of all sorts of people, both at home and abroad, and this had to be conducted entirely at the Prime Minister's expense.

Mr. Asquith said that occupation of 10 Downing Street free from rent, rates and taxes was by no means an unmixed advantage. It was a very expensive and very inconvenient house, requiring a large staff.

He was not in favor of giving pensions to ex-Premiers.

APPEAL FOR NEEDY CLOSE TO ITS GOAL

200 BEING CARED FOR

All Cases Are Receiving Help, but Needs for the Year Must Be Guaranteed.

CONTRIBUTIONS SET RECORD

The Neediest Cases received contributions of $245 yesterday, making a total of $108,947.97.

This reduced to $898.96 the sum still needed to make complete provision for one year for the 200 families for whom the appeal has been made.

Exactly one month had passed yesterday since the appeal was made for the Neediest Cases, during which time the daily contributions have averaged about $3,500.

Each day has brought assurance to families that their anxieties and suffering were at an end. Many mothers who feared that any day might be the last under the same roof with their children have been taken completely by surprise with the news that all was safe and well with them for a year at least, and probably for good. Generous men, women and children, strangers to them, had come to their rescue. Some of the families knew they were among the Neediest Cases. Others did not. It was not certain, in view of money conditions, how many would be provided for, and families whose positions were doubtful were not filled with hopes which might not be realized.

Whole 200 Receiving Some Aid.

All of the families of the 200 are receiving relief, and only $898.96 remains to be contributed in order to give assurance for a full twelve months' care and support for the rest. For many of the families provision for the year means that they will go through life united and probably soon become self-supporting again, where they might otherwise be scattered among institutions and perhaps never again be gathered under the same roof.

The contributions of $108,947.97 are larger than those of any previous year. This total is $1,980.82 larger than that of last year. The number of individual contributors this year is estimated at about double that of last year. Contributions running from ten cents to $5 were more numerous by thousands than on any preceding year.

The total sought is based on the minimum amounts required to make decent and adequate provision for each of the 200 families for one year. Every cent of each contribution goes for that purpose. It is never too late to contribute to this cause. In past years, contributions have been received weeks before the appeal was made and months after the publication of the appeal ended.

The Jefferson, Richmond, Va.

Dear Sir:

This $2 is from little Harriet M., of Richmond, a dear little girl, who feels sorry for all the poor little children. G. W. H.

New York City, Jan. 11

New York Times:

I am enclosing my check for $3, hoping it will be of some use to your Hundred Neediest Cases. I am sorry I cannot send more, and I was afraid, when I saw nothing about it in Monday's papers, that I was too late. Now this morning I see it again, and hasten to send.

Mrs. T. D. DIMON.

Other letters accompanying contributions were the following:

Others, Also, Glad to Help.

S. M. B.—"Enclosed please find check for $10 to help in a small way one of the Neediest. From one who is thankful for the bessings of good health and home."

Anonymous—"I enclose a drop for the bucket of New York's Neediest."

Mrs. A. M. Burritt—"Please find check for $5 enclosed, a little further help for some of the Neediest. I am glad the usual amount is nearly made up, as I noticed in today's TIMES."

George H. Richmond—"I see by your paper that you are still short the full amount needed to carry on the work as outlined, so make a further contribution to help. Enclosed you will find my check for $5, drawn to the order of the Hundred Neediest Cases, which apply toward any case as you desire."

"In Memory of Robin and Noel"—"Will THE TIMES please find enclosed a $5 bill, which may serve as a tiny contribution toward the help of 'The Neediest'?"

M. L. Grouard, Warrenton, Va.—"Enclosed find check for $5, which please accept as my slight contribution toward the relief of the Neediest Cases, which you have reported in your daily paper."

No agents are employed by THE NEW YORK TIMES or any of the charitable organizations to solicit contributions for the Hundred Neediest Cases.

No aid is being received by any of the families in the Hundred Neediest Cases under the State Pension law.

Contributions are deductible from income tax returns.

Every cent goes to buy food, clothing and other necessaries, no administrative or clerical expenses being paid from the contributions.

Checks may be drawn to the order of the Hundred Neediest Cases and sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AGED COUPLE WED IN HOME.

Mrs. Susie Thompson and John Himmelman Marry Without "Obey."

An interesting wedding which took place yesterday was that of Mrs. Susie Thompson of Manhattan and John Himmelman of Brooklyn, each of the participants having reached the age of three score years and ten. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. A. Edwin Keigwin of the West End Presbyterian Church, at The Home, 891 Amsterdam Avenue.

The chapel of The Home, at which a large number of elderly women reside, was decorated for the occasion, and following the ceremony there was a reception and refreshments were served. The bride and bridegroom will go to Atlantic City for their honeymoon, returning to make their home in Brooklyn.

The wedding party entered the chapel to the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March. The bride was dressed in gray silk with a hat to match. The ceremony is that arranged for his own use by Dr. Keigwin with the word "obey" omitted. The bride promised to love, honor, cherish and comfort and the bridegroom, instead of promising to endow the bride with all his worldly goods, promised to endow her with his love. Mr. Himmelman is connected with the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A.

TOWN HALL OPENED; PERSHING RAPS WAR

1,600 Attend Meeting of League for Political Education—Faneuil Hall Planned.

GENERAL FOR DISARMAMENT

Also Makes Appeal for Aid for European Relief Council—Henry Taft Speaks.

New York's new Town Hall at 113-123 West Forty-third Street was formally opened last night with a public meeting, at which the speakers were General John J. Pershing, Henry W. Taft, Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, Bishop Arthur S. Lloyd, Mrs. Ben Ali Haggin, John Graham Brooks, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and R. Fulton Cutting. More than 1,600 attended.

The origin of the Town Hall and its purposes, as proposed by the League for Political Education, which is responsible for it, were outlined by Mr. Taft, who presided.

"What is needed in this age," he said, "is some reliable basis for forming opinions upon subjects which more or less directly affect our well-being in the community. That is what the League for Political Education has been doing and proposes to continue to do.

"The League is endeavoring to stimulate those of mature years, and Mr. Ely, the director, and his associates are performing a noble public service. In a republic it inevitably happens that public attention is constantly directed to matters more or less connected with problems of government, which include industrial, financial and purely political questions. We wish to give the opportunity for the free discussion of such matters as these particularly. We would found a later Faneuil Hall, a modern Roman Forum, a Cooper Union, with an even broader purpose. We would have fairly presented both sides in such controversial matters as free trade and protection without advocating either, but we do insist upon free trade in ideas.

"It is in the spirit of these expressions that we open the Town Hall."

General Pershing made an appeal for aid for the work of the European Relief Council in the war-stricken countries, which he followed with an argument for disarmament.

"As we review the effects of the war," he said, "every thinking man and woman must realize the reasons why steps should be taken to prevent another such calamity. One step in that direction is to reduce the expense of armament. All the nations should realize the dangers of the renewal of this competition in building up large armies and navies. One nation cannot reduce her armaments unless all do so.

"The prosperity of our country depends upon an uninterrupted flow of commoditities abroad. We cannot sell when the financial systems of other nations have broken down. The first step to be taken in the rehabilitation of the financial affairs of all nations is to reduce the cost of Government expenses. The safety of humanity in the future depends upon an early consideration of the question of limiting armament."

WOULD ACCEPT STIRES, SLATTERY OR MANNING

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Jan. 12.—The Rev. Dr. Stires of St. Thomas's Church, the Rev. Dr. Slattery of Grace Church or the Rev. Dr. Manning of Trinity Church, New York City, will prove acceptable to the rectors and laity of the Eastern Convocation of the Archdeaconry of Orange if named to succeed the late Bishop Burch as head of the Diocese of New York. This was practically settled today at a special meeting held at the Church of the Good Shepherd in this city, the call having been issued by te Rev. John Marshall Chew, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, the Archdeaconry being at present without an official head.

The qualifications of the three rectors mentioned were extolled by the supporters of each, and in connection with these the advisability of retaining them in active parish work was fully taken into consideration. The names of certain "favorite sons" were proposed, but were quickly eliminated from consideration.

While there was an evident desire on the part of all at the meeting to learn how each parish was likely to cast its ballot, no attempt was made to get such an expression by means of a straw vote. No other meeting of the rectors will be held for the consideration of the subject, which will be definitely settled at the General Assembly in the Cathedral of St. John the Devine, New York, on Jan. 26. The conference continued for upwards of four hours.

MAYOR HYLAN MOVIE STAR.

Drives Around City Hall in Old Auto and Is "Summoned" by Police.

Mayor Hylan was pushed around City Hall Park yesterday in an automobile built in 1897, said to be the third successful car operated by gasoline. The car was brought to the City Hall on a truck and then pulled by a tow line from Park Row to the front of the Hall, where the Mayor got in. Several policemen, assisted by the crowd, pushed him as far as the subway kiosk on Broadway and back again, the Mayor holding the steering bar.

When he returned to the City Hall he was served with a summons by a traffic officer for blocking traffic. That is, he was ostensibly served with a summons, for it calls only for the Mayor's presence in a picture film, the entire affair being a movie stunt.

OUR WOMAN JUDGE SAVES MONTREAL THIEF

Jean H. Norris Visits Canadian Court, Sits on Bench There, Pleads for Culprit.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—Hector Cyr stood shivering in the prisoner's dock in the Court of Sessions this morning making an appeal to be allowed his liberty. He had just been convicted by Judge Jeremie Decarie of the theft of building material from the Rutherford Lumber Company and the Berthiaume Lumber Company. At this point a good angel in the person of Judge Jean H. Norris of the Domestic Relations Court of New York City walked into the crowded court room, escorted by J. C. Walsh, K. C., Crown Prosecutor.

When Mr. Walsh walked into the lawyers' enclosure, escorting Judge Norris, Judge Decarie and all in the court room arose. In a few words Mr. Walsh introduced Judge Norris to the Chief Justice. H. M. S. Caron, who had been chosen on behalf of the French members of the Montreal Bar Association, welcomed Judge Norris, while Dan Gillmor, appearing for the Crown, welcomed the visitor on behalf of the English-speaking members.

Chief Justice Decarie then invited Judge Norris to sit upon the bench with him in order that she might assist him to render judgment in the case before the court. A chair was placed beside the Chief Justice and Judge Norris took her place.

Continuing with his summing up of the evidence, Judge Decarie found the prisoner guilty. His past record was disclosed, but the prisoner pleaded to the Judge that he had a wife and a small child who were dependent on him for support.

"I can give you five years on this charge; you have been convicted before," said Judge Decarie.

At this juncture Judge Norris leaned over and whispered to Judge Decarie. His face broke out in smiles, and a short whispered conversation then ensued.

"Judge Norris has intervened on your behalf," Judge Decarie told Cyr. "Not for your sake, but for the sake of your wife and child; go!"

Judge Norris was then escorted from the court by Mr. Walsh and the Chief of Provisional Detectives, D. D. Lorrain.

Dan Gillmore, who had pressed hard for a conviction against the accused, remarked to Judge Decarie after the visitors had departed: "I have heard of angels looking after people, but this is the first time I have seen it happen."

"We are living in a wonderful age," replied the Judge.

Hutchinson, who died on the 30th day of December, 1920:

Whereas Mr. Horace F. Hutchinson entered into the employ of the Broadway Savings Institution on the first day of March, 1859, and continued actively in connection therewith, as Clerk, Teller, Bookkeeper, afterward Actuary, then Secretary and Treasurer, and on the 14th day of January, 1903, was duly elected its President and held said office until his death, having been continuously connected with the Institution for almost sixty-two years; and

Whereas he was always zealous and jealous over all matters connected with the Institution and its affairs; ever faithful in the performance of his duties; loved the Institution and regarded and acted toward it in all matters as though it was his own, always striving for the best interests of the Institution and its depositors. His carefulness and watchfulness were not confined solely to the affairs of the Institution, but he was always ready and willing to help and advise any of its depositors, and was indeed a friend to many in their hour of need; and

Whereas he was truly a lovable and friendly man, beloved by his associates and employes, and always held in great respect for his integrity, banking ability and soundness of judgment; now therefore be it

Resolved, That by the death of Horace F. Hutchinson The Broadway Savings Institution has been deprived of a loyal and faithful servant and officer, and its depositors have lost a true and valued friend, and the Trustees thereof have each suffered the personal loss of one dear and well-beloved and valued adviser; and that this memorial be recorded and published to testify our appreciation and esteem and as a tribute to his worth, and that a copy be presented to his widow as a token of our deep sympathy for her and the family.

Whereas Mr. Hutchinson had always been faithful in the performance of his duties, zealous for the best interests of the bank, and was a man of exceedingly attractive personality, combined with soundness of judgment, and had been esteemed and beloved by his associates; now therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Mr. Horace F. Hutchinson this Board and its individual members, and this bank and the depositors thereof, have suffered a great loss, and the Directors desire to place upon record this tribute to his memory and to tender to his wife and family their most sincere and respectful sympathy.

NEW YORK NOT IN NEW BOXING BODY

State Commission Decides It Cannot Legally Bind Itself to National Association.

GAVIN ISSUES STATEMENT

Declares I. S. C. Will Adopt New Rules Which Will at Once Become Legal Here.

The State of New York will not be represented in the activities of the National Boxing Association of the United States, which was finally organized and launched as a governing body for boxing in this country at the closing meeting of the convention yesterday in the headquarters of the International Sporting Club. A joint statement issued by the Boxing Commission and the License Committee, governing the sport in this State, revealed that the boxing supervisors in the Empire State, while in perfect accord with the spirit of the convention and the ideals it is hoped to attain, nevertheless did not think they could legally bind themselves to the new order of things and retain their independence and present functioning powers.

After studying the constitution and by-laws of the new national organization the Boxing Commission, of which Joseph Johnson is Chairman, and the License Committee, headed by Laurence McGuire, collaborated in a statement in which they declined the invitation to join the national governing movement. This statement, which includes a declination from Massachusetts officials, too, follows:

Cannot Subordinate Authority.

"The invitation of the newly formed National Boxing Association of the United States to the New York State Boxing Commission and the License Committee to become a member is declined. It is our decision that we cannot subordinate our functions and authority, clearly defined in the Walker law, to the jurisdiction of an outside unofficial body of any character.

"The question of whether we would wish to join, therefore, does not enter. We are sure that we cannot legally do so. This is clearly manifest when one reads Article III. of the constitution of the newly formed association, which says in part:

"'Acceptance' of membership by this Association shall bind such member to abide by all the conditions as set forth and to accept and enforce all decisions of the Board of Directors. Any violation of the constitution * * * shall render such member liable to suspension.'

"It would mean that an official conference could not only suspend the New York State Boxing Commission, but could abrogate the New York boxing statute. One does not have to argue further.

"However, we wish it perfectly understood that we are thoroughly in accord with the spirit of the recent conference as far as it has to do with improvement in boxing conditions in the United States.

"The Walker law and the rules and regulations adopted by the New York State Boxing Commission appear more complete and effective than the constitution recently adopted by the National Boxing Association. The Massachusetts State Boxing Commission has taken the same position and has so notified this commission, as appears from the following communication:

"'New York State Boxing Commission: Massachusetts State Boxing Commission will not be represented at the meeting Monday. This commission is in favor of State Boxing Commission but is not in favor of national control by any organization. This by direction of the Chairman. Signed, Eugene Buckley, Commissioner.'"

This telegram, evidently, was received before the national convention started last Monday.

Will Adopt New Rules.

In spite of this action by the commission, William A. Gavin, Managing Director of the I. S. C., declared yesterday in an address, that his club would adopt the rules and regulations of the national body forthwith. Mr. Gavin reminded the delegates that the existing rules governing the sport in this State were drawn by the I. S. C. and the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control, and that they were compulsory and must be lived up to in all professional boxing contests in New York.

"I now serve notice," added Mr. Gavin, "that the International Sporting Club will forthwith adopt the rules of the Boxing Association of the United States. Therefore, your rules will be operative in New York by law and must be enforced by the New York Boxing Commission. The latter body has nothing whatever to do with the rules. Your rules will be formally adopted at the next meeting of our club."

A statement was given out last night by the International Sporting Club, which follows in part:

"We have just received the amazing information that New York Boxing Commission is unable to give its support to the newly formed organization, the National Boxing Association of the United States. This decision is regrettable because it is the only discordant note that has presented itself since the first meeting of the convention to its conclusion this afternoon.

"New York, with its past, might have waived the consideration of technicalities, taken a broader view and gladly welcomed the opportunity of co-operating with States that have long, clean, and unblemished records in the sport."

Work of Organizing Ended.

The work of completing the organization of the national body was concluded yesterday morning when the convention convened at the I. S. C. headquarters. Walter H. Liginger, Wisconsin delegate, was elected President. The Vice Presidents, in the order of their election, are W. A. Tremblay, Miles City, Mont.; R. T. Burke, New Orleans, La.; E. A. McAuley, Benton Harbor, Mich.; William H. Rocap, Philadelphia. Tex O'Rourke, I. S. C. matchmaker, was elected Secretary-Treasurer. A Board of Directors was elected, consisting of the voting delegates who attended the convention.

It is expected that every particular will be arranged so that the association's career will start about Feb. 1. Suspensions now in operation will continue to their expiration, when the objects of disciplinary action will be restored to good standing in the national body and start anew. Punishment inflicted for rule violation in one State will be observed in all States represented in the association. Champions in the various classes will be compelled to defend their titles within six-month periods when challenged by logical contenders approved by the association. The convention also adopted the maximum price of admission recently instituted by the local officials, which provides for a top charge of $15 for championship battles, and a top of $10 for bouts where no titles are involved. This rule will not be operative in charitable ring enterprises.

An alliance was entered into whereby the signatories bind themselves to subscribe to and abide by the constitution and by-laws and the rules and regulations of the association, and promised to make every effort to effect an adoption of the provisions in their entirety. Delegates from thirteen States signed this agreement. Minnesota and Rrode Island delegates were absent.

It was decided to adopt the rules of the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control and the International Sporting Club governing contests in this State. Several minor changes were made, including provisions for boxers weighing in six hours previous to entering the ring, an eighteen-inch gong, elimination of blowing a whistle ten seconds before the end of a round, a physical examination of boxers within six hours of time for entering the ring, prohibition on wearing white trunks and wearing the American flag as a belt and the elimination of a paragraph in which it is stated that the difference in weight between contestants up to the heavyweight class must be not more than eighteen pounds.

Willard Wires East for Training Quarters for Bout

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 12.—Jess Willard, former heavyweight boxing champion, is considering establishing training quarters in New Jersey for his contest with Jack Dempsey, champion, on March 17. William H. Truby, Secretary of the New Jersey State Athletic Commission, received the following telegram today from Willard, who is at Lawrence, Kan.:

"Is there place there suitable for training quarters? Also quiet place for living quarters? Would like to come East soon."

Truby telegraphed to Willard:

"I have suitable place. Complete gymnasium. Awaiting instructions."

Mr. Truby declared he had in mind places in Long Branch, Red Bank, Trenton and Atlantic City.

ARMY SURRENDERS TO N. Y. U. ATTACK

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 12.—New York University's basketball quintet stopped the Army's winning streak on the court here today, and, incidentally, took revenge for the defeat which the soldiers administered a year ago. The final score was N. Y. U. 22, Army 17.

The game was, without doubt, the hardest and fastest fought contest played on the Army's court in years, and was exciting from the start. The visitors excelled in passing and floor work generally, although the Army caged one more goal from scrimmage than the Violet. Robinson's fine work at centre and the stiff defense put up by Baker and Dulaney were outstanding features of New York's play.

The Violet went out in front during the first minute of play, Holman caging a field goal. Pfeiffer tossed Army's first foul goal a moment later, but the Violet, in the lead 2 to 1, then settled down and soon had an 11 to 3 margin. Just before half time, however, Army spurted, French's two field goals making the score 11 to 7 when the intermission came.

Robinson's keen eye from the foul line kept the visitors in the van during the second period, although the Army, by a rally, registered four field goals and a brace of points from the foul line in this period.

The line-up:

N. Y. U. (22).		ARMY (17).
Holman	L. F.	French
Goeller	R. F.	Vichules
Robinson	C.	Dabezies
Baker	L. G.	Kessler
Dulaney	R. G.	Pfeiffer

Goals from field—Holman (4), Robinson, Baker, French (2), Vichules, Dabezies (2), Pfeiffer (2). Goals from foul—Robinson, 10 out of 16; Vichules, 1 out of 2; Pfeiffer, 2 out of 6.

Substitutions—N. Y. U.: Smythe for Vichules, Forbes for Dabezies, Vichules for Smythe, Smythe for Kessler.

NAVY DEFEATS MORAVIAN.

Middy Five Wins Basketball Match by Score of 36 to 19.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 12.—Although superior speed and team play won for the Naval Academy five in the game with Moravian this afternoon, the score being 36 to 19, Moravian surprised the local contingent with its speed and the strength of its attack, and played fine basketball at every stage of the game. It was the seventh consecutive victory for the midshipmen.

The line-up:

NAVAL ACAD. (36).		MORAVIAN (19).
Lenhart	L. F.	Rice
McKee	R. F.	Mechling
Ault	C.	Turner
Walters	L. G.	Heller
Dickins	R. G.	Horne

Field goals—Watters (4), Davis (3), McKee (3), Lenhart, Ault, Dickins, Turner (2), Rice, Mechling, Hughes. Foul goals—McKee, 5 in 10; Watters, 3 in 7; Davis, 1 in 4; Rice, 9 in 15.

Substitutions—Hughes for Mechling, Davis for Lenhart, Lenhart for McKee, Johnston for Ault, Barnes for Watters, Greber for Dickins, Lenhart for McKee, Davis for Lenhart, Ault for Johnston, Watters for Barnes, Dickins for Greber.

Referee—Mr. McDevitt, University of Pennsylvania. Time of halves—20 minutes.

ARRANGE AMATEUR BOUTS.

Canadian and Local Boxers Will Meet in Garden Jan. 25.

One of the most important amateur boxing tournaments of recent years will be held at Madison Square Garden, Jan. 25, under the auspices of the Metropolitan A. A. U., when the leading boxers of Canada will exchange blows with the cracks of the local district in bouts in eight classes. Plans for the tournament were completed yesterday by President Frederick W. Rubien of the local A. A. U., following extensive communication with Norton H. Crow, Secretary of the Canadian A. A. U. Secretary Crow sent assurances that at least eight Canadian stars will compete in the Garden tournament. It is probable four of the Dominion's Olympic boxers will be included in the representation. Their opponents will be selected from among the title winners in the recent district and State championship tournaments.

The tournament will be conducted under the rules of the International Amateur Boxing Federation. The classes include bouts at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and heavyweight contests.

WILDE IS MADE FAVORITE.

Backed at Odds of 6 to 4 to Defeat Herman Tonight.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Despite the announcement of the British Boxing Board of Control that, in view of the lack of official information regarding the recent decision obtained by Joe Lynch over Pete Herman in New York, it is impossible to render a decision regarding Jimmy Wilde's right to the world's bantamweight championship if he defeats Herman at Albert Hall, London, tomorrow. There is considerable interest in the bout, stimulated chiefly by the Welsh miners, who are backing Wilde to the limit at odds of 6 to 4.

English experts expect that Bombardier Wells will beat "Battling" Levinsky, another of tomorrow's contestants, but even money in the betting prevails. A £1,000 wager was laid on the outcome of the Wilde-Herman bout.

The fighters finished their training yesterday, but Herman must continue workouts to enable him to weigh in at 118 pounds. Herman was barely under the limit yesterday, and the articles necessitate weighing in fifteen minutes before the fight.

BRITTON TO DEFEND TITLE.

Champion Welter Will Meet Bogash's Challenge in June.

Jack Britton, world's welterweight champion, will defend his title against Louis Bogash, Bridgeport, Conn., welterweight, in a fifteen-round bout to a decision at Bridgeport, June 6. Arrangements for the match were reported completed yesterday by Britton's manager, Dan Morgan. The titleholder is said to be guaranteed $25,000 for his end while Bogash is guaranteed $10,000.

USE TELEPHONES IN HARVARD STRATEGY

FOLLOW PLAN IN BIG GAMES

Question of Ethics Not Involved, in Opinion of Crimson Football Authorities.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 12.—Harvard's football strategy in important games for several years has been developed in part over telephone wires while the games were in progress, it was learned today. In the games with Yale and Princeton for the last two years, the game with Center College last Fall and in the intersectional game with the University of Oregon at Pasadena a year ago Crimson coaches, perched on the top of the stands, telephoned criticism and suggestions to supplement the side-line observations of Head Coach Bob Fisher.

From these vantage positions they were better able to diagnose the scheme of opponents' play, especially in the line, than were the coaches on the ground who saw it largely in the mass. The telephones in most instances were field sets rigged up by members of the football squad before the contest.

Harvard football authorities made no attempt to conceal the telephone arrangements in any case, it was said, and as far as they knew the installation was known to representatives of opposing teams. The operation of the telephone was not regarded as involving any question of ethics, as the wire was merely a medium of communicating observations available to any one. In the game at Pasadena, Cal., the Crimson coaches' wire was set up by the linemen of the telephone company at that place, and reports have come east that the University of California used a similar system in its post-season game with Ohio State University two weeks ago.

BOSTON COLLEGE NAMED.

Football Team Adjudged Eastern Champions by Veteran A. A.

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—The Boston College football eleven, victors in every game played last Fall, was hailed as the champions of the East tonight by Governor Cox, the Mayors of Boston and Newton and Judge E. C. Bonniwell of Philadelphia, President of the Veteran Athletes' Association. This organization by vote has declared the team the titleholders of 1920 and on Jan. 26 will formally present a trophy to mark the distinction. Judge Bonniwell announced that the Boston eleven gained the award because it defeated all comers.

Major Frank Cavanaugh, coach of the team, referred to Yale's refusal to meet Boston College again after two successive defeats, and said there was a tendency among the larger colleges to gloat over defeats of smaller teams, sidetrack them if they became too strong and call it sport to concentrate all efforts in one game a season.

Colgate Takes Place of Dartmouth—Game With N. Y. U.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 12—Instead of the annual battle with Dartmouth, Brown will meet Colgate at football next Fall. According to the schedule issued tonight, the list includes games with Yale and Harvard. The schedule follows:

College at Providence; Oct. 29, Yale at New Haven; Nov. 5, open; Nov. 12; Harvard at Cambridge; Nov. 19, Colgate at Providence.

The national Class B amateur 18.2 balkline championship tournament in progress at the Crescent Athletic Club brought out some particularly keen competition yesterday in the afternoon game between Charles Steinbugler and Julian Rice, the former winning by but two points, as the score was 200 to 198.

A strange feature of the game is that the loser's average was greater than the winner; Steinbugler's average was 6 26-29, and Rice averaged 7 2-28. Rice did not get into his stroke until the game had progressed pretty well, whereas Steinbugler distributed his efforts more evenly throughout the game. His high run was 32, while Rice made a high run of 65.

The score by innings follows:

Steinbugler—1 9 2 0 25 0 0 0 0 12 13 23 21 7 22 9 0 2 1 0 6 1 32 11 0 1 7 2 20—Total, 200.
Rice—0 1 3 15 0 12 0 1 1 13 13 4 17 0 0 0 5 9 1 4 1 6 10 21 65 1 4 3—Total, 198.

The other game brought together Sidney Brussel and C. P. Matthew, and lasted for forty-seven innings, with the score 200 to 157 in favor of Brussel, whose high run was 19, while Matthew's was 14.

DOWNS WINS AT SNOOKER.

Defeats Bernstein by Score of 68 to 57.

Play for the amateur snooker pool championship was resumed last night at Doyle's billiard academy, where the A. A. B. A. tournament is in progress, and William Downs defeated Max Bernstein by a score of 68 to 57 in a match which was closely contested from the start.

The winner played well, but received many breaks which proved disheartening to Bernstein. Toward the end of the match Downs made a fluke shot, pocketing the pink. The score was tied at this time, and immediately afterward Bernstein, in attempting a safety, accidentally dropped the white into a pocket, thereby forfeiting seven points. These two breaks virtually won the game for Downs, who is now a decided favorite in his section, as he has won two games from the two strongest players. He still has to play Thomas, Paley and Flynn.

In the balkline tournament also in progress at the same academy, Edward Cressey won from Charles Lammorou by a score of 150 to 64 in forty innings. The winner made a high run of 27, while Lammorou's best effort netted him 12. Games in both tournaments will be played tonight.

LAYTON IS TWICE WINNER.

Champion Defeats Letzler and Kahn at Three Cushions.

John Layton, three-cushion billiard champion, played two games yesterday at Thum's Academy and won both of them without difficulty. The first game was with Joe Letzler and the score was 50 to 32. It lasted for sixty-two innings and the champion's high runs were 5, 4, 4, while Letzler's were 4, 4, 3. In the evening game J. Kahn was Layton's adversary, the score being 50 to 28. Layton made high runs of 7 and 6, while Kahn scored a couple of threes.

Days so Mild Penn Hopes To Row on River Saturday

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—Coach Wright of the University of Pennsylvania crews said today that if the weather continues mild several crews would practice on the river next Saturday.

"This will be the earliest we have ever rowed outdoors, the usual time being the end of February," Wright added. "However, with no ice on the river and the air warm, there is no reason why we should not go out on the Schuylkill now."

I. C. A. A. A. A. ACCEPTS KIRKSEY'S RECORD

Time of 9 4-5 Seconds for 100-Yard Dash Recognized by College Athletic Body.

The time of 9 4-5 seconds for the 100-yard dash, made by Morris M. Kirksey last Spring on the Pacific Coast, has been accepted as a recognized intercollegiate record and standard, according to Thomas Fitz Gibbons, Secretary of the I. C. A. A. A. A. and manager of the 1921 Columbia University track team.

Kirksey was credited with this fast time and record in a dual track meet between Leland Stanford Jr. University and Oregon Agricultural College May 8. Credentials signed by A. D. Browns, the referee of the race; C. B. Wing, the surveyor of the track, and Draper, Angell and Wing, the three timekeepers, accompanied Kirksey's application to the Executive Committee of the Track Association. One of the timers stated that his watch showed the time to be 9 3-5 seconds, but the corrected time left 9 4-5 as the final figures.

Kirksey was a member of the 1920 Olympic team and scored first place for America in the 200-meter event, outdistancing such stars as Charlie Paddock, winner of the century dash; Loren Murchison and Jack Scholz. While his time, recently accepted, is highly creditable, it is unfortunate that Paddock, who covered the 100-meter distance in the Olympic meets, could not have his time put on the collegiate records. The Missouri sprinter, however, never made this good time in a college event, although he is credited with it in other games.

HARVARD SEPTET IN FRONT.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 12.—Harvard's varsity hockey team roundly outplayed the Boston Athletic Association, amateur league champions, at the New Arena tonight, the collegians winning 4 to 1. In the first period the veterans held Harvard to no score, but later slowed up. A few minutes before the end of the match Boston Athletic Association made its only goal.

Captain Bigelow made two of Harvard's goals, both on long shots. He also combined with Baker for another goal, while Buntin, playing as brilliantly as last week, made one of the scores. Both teams, however, played a game that was mainly individual. The summary:

COURT TENNIS TO START.

Professional Tournament Will Open Today at Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 12.—Every prominent professional court tennis player in this country is participating in the professional tournament which will begin today at the Racquet Club, with the exception of Walter Kinsella, who was defeated by Jay Gould for the open championship of this country last year. Kinsella decided that he would rather keep out of the competition, although the winner will play Jay Gould, the open champion of this country and the world's amateur champion.

The number of court tennis courts in this country is pretty well restricted to this city, New York and Boston, so that there are only five professionals playing, two from the Racquet Club of this city, two from Boston, and Punch Fairs, the former court tennis champion of the world.

Play will begin tomorrow morning at 11:30, when Joseph Moss of the Racquet Club will play R. Dufton of Boston. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Jock Soutar of the Racquet Club will meet Otto Glocker of Boston.

The winner of the Moss-Dufton contest will play Fairs on Friday afternoon, and on Saturday the winner of that match will meet the winner of the Soutar-Glocker match. On Jan. 19 and 21 the winner of the tournament will play Jay Gould.

LEWIS TO DEFEND TITLE.

Wrestling Champion Signs for Finish Bout With Daviscourt.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Articles of agreement for a finish wrestling match between Ed (Strangler) Lewis, champion of the world, and Dick Daviscourt, who is known in private life as Decourt, of Texas, were signed here today, the match to take place in this city on Jan. 21.

Daviscourt, a young Texan, was practically unknown in the East previous to last night, when he defeated Lewis in a handicap match, outpointing the champion for seventy-five minutes and breaking the champion's famous headlock fourteen times. Lewis had undertaken to throw Daviscourt and "Farmer" Bailey of Vermont in seventy-five minutes.

GIEBEL IS WINNER IN FURLONG SWIM

Takes Free Style Race for National Championship in New York A. C. Tank.

Leo Giebel, sturdy New York A. C. swimmer who holds national and local aquatic titular honors, last night annexed the Metropolitan A. A. U. 220-yard free style swim title in the annual test conducted in the pool of the New York A. C. Giebel, swimming a straight and true course from start to finish, emerged victorious over Clarence Ross, a clubmate, by a matter of about three yards in 2:35 2-5. A. Hall, Poly Prep School of Brooklyn, finished third.

The championship event was one of a card which attracted a capacity crowd to the Mercury Foot gymnasium. Several hundred spectators watched the race and cheered enthusiastically as the championship event progressed. Giebel, with his long, powerful strokes, was the favorite when the competitors were lined up for the start, and throughout he justified the confidence in his ability. The sturdy Mercury Footer set a strong pace from the start, but failed to shake off his rivals. Ross clung to his clubmate until shortly before the final turn, where Giebel began to pull away to a lead, which amounted to about three yards at the finish.

George Dahm, Mercury Foot diver, gave one of the most impressive exhibitions of his career in carrying off the premier prize in a handicap fancy diving event. Dahm competed from scratch and accumulated the winning total of 93.6 points. Veterans about the pool who have followed Dahm's work closely declared that seldom ever before had the New York A. C. star exhibited such consistency in his work.

Yale's water polo team fell a victim to the crack New York A. C. septet in a game which closed the program. The New Haven collegians went down in a 25 to 10 defeat. The experienced Mercury Footers outplayed their rivals in every department of the game and held the upper hand throughout. Herbert Vollmer produced four of New York's five goals.

The summaries:

220-Yard Swim, Metropolitan A. A. U. championship—Won by Leo Giebel, New York A. C.; Clarence Ross, New York A. C., second; A. Hall, Poly Prep School, third. Time—2:35 2-5.

Fancy Diving Contest, Handicap—Won by George Dahm, New York A. C. (scratch), with 93.6 points; John Davidson, New York A. C. (4 points), 84.3 points, second; Thomas McKee, New York A. C. (4 points), 83.6 points, third.

This is the first time that any Columbia team has been awarded the coveted emblems since 1916, when the baseball men were given miniature gold baseballs, and the first time that any Blue and White water polo aggregation has been thus rewarded.

DATES FOR TITLE SWIMS.

Furlong Race Scheduled for March 1—Century Event on March 3.

The national 220-yard swim for men will be conducted in the New York A. C. pool March 1, and the 100-yard title event will be contested at the Brookline Swimming Club, Brookline, Mass., March 3. Dates for these two events were announced yesterday by Frederick W. Rubien, local A. A. U. President, who is also head of the National Championship Committee. Information was also received at local A. A. U. headquarters yesterday that the Great Lakes Naval Training Station had selected March 15 as the date for the national 500-yard free style swim for men.

WOMEN GOLFERS TO ELECT.

Mrs. Uebelacker Nominated to Head Metropolitan Association.

The annual meeting of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association will be held on Thursday, Jan. 27, at the Biltmore Hotel. The Nominating Committee has selected the following ticket: President, Mrs. C. F. Uebelacker, Hackensack; Vice-president, Mrs. J. E. Davis, Piping Rock; Treasurer, Mrs. M. H. Frayne, Dunwoodie; Secretary, Miss Irma Waterhouse, Ardsley; Executive Committee, Mrs. C. C. Auchincloss, Piping Rock; Mrs. R. Percy Thompson, Sleepy Hollow; Mrs. A. M. Reynold, Glen Ridge.

Two voting delegates are allowed each club in the association.

SOLOMON BEATS MATURO.

Henry Solomon won the third block and the match against James Maturo in the three-cushion billiard contest which has been in progress at Kline's Academy. The final score was 150 to 118.

Both players were in poor form up to the fifteenth inning, when things seemed to change and Maturo made runs of 5 and 4, while Solomon tallied 3 and then missed. In the seventy-fifth inning Maturo, who had required 90 when the play started, had tallied 51 of that number, but, after eighty-eight innings Solomon completed his needed 50 to complete the total 150 points called for in the match.

CONCANNON WINS WITH CUE.

Breaks Tie and Defeats Wolfert, 125 to 41, at Pocket Billiards.

Professional pocket billiardists held sway at Lawlor's academy last night, and the gallery in attendance witnessed a most interesting game between Joseph Concannon and Fred Wolfert, which resulted in a victory for Concannon by a score of 125 to 41. That does not in itself suggest anything particularly interesting. However, at one stage of the game both players were tied at 40. Concannon made the needed 85 with which to run out, while his adversary made but one point.

EAGLE WINS AT ANGLES.

Defeats Turk in Three-Cushion Tourney by 30 to 25.

George Eagle defeated H. L. Turk last night in the New York State three-cushion amateur billiard championship, under the auspices of the N. A. A. B. A. by a score of 30 to 25. The game, which took place in the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn, was spectacular in many respects. It lasted for fifty-seven innings, and Eagle's high run was 6 (an unfinished run), while Turk's high score was 4.

MAJORS AND MINORS REACH AGREEMENT

OWNERS SIGN NEW PACT

Will Not Criticise One Another in Future—Loyalty Clause Added to Players' Contracts.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Organized baseball today swept the last vestige of disagreement from its ranks in a series of conferences which brought signed peace agreements not only between the major and minor leagues, but between individual club owners who have vigorously opposed one another in affairs of administration and policy.

The two major leagues signed the new national agreement making Judge Kenesaw M. Landis Baseball Commissioner with supreme powers, and the minor leagues also signed an agreement with Judge Landis as their ruler, but it differed in one empowering word from that signed by the majors. This difference, it developed, was due to a misunderstanding in the joint meeting of drafting committees yesterday when the agreement was drawn up, and it was announced that the minors later would sign an agreement identical with the one approved by the major organizations.

Besides signing the national agreement, the individual major league club owners affixed their signatures to a contract in which they agreed not to publicly criticise one another or talk about one another, and to accept any decision made by Judge Landis regardless of their personal opinion of it.

Warriors Sign Agreement.

Included in the signatories to this agreement were President B. B. Johnson of the American League and two of the three club owners who have fought his administration, Charles A. Comiskey of Chicago and Jacob Ruppert of New York. Harry Frazee of Boston, the third club owner who opposed Johnson in recent American League disagreements, announced he would sign the contract. He was not present when it was drawn up.

The signing of the new national agreement brought a sharp statement from Judge Landis concerning the powers he must have and led to erroneous reports that he had issued an ultimatum giving the club owners fifteen minutes in which to make changes he demanded. The Judge did not set a time limit, but did tell the club owners that his powers must be supreme.

When the copy of the new national agreement was brought before the league representatives it contained a section saying that the Commissioner, after investigating any affair he considered detrimental to baseball, could "recommend such action as he deemed advisable."

Judge Landis interrupted the reading of the document to say that this must be made to read "take such action."

"You have told the world that my powers are to be supreme," he said. "To give me the power merely to 'recommend' takes all power out of my hands. I will retire from the room, gentlemen, and you can discuss this matter. But I want you to know that either I must have power to take such action as I wish or else you had better seek a new Commissioner. I wouldn't take this job for all the gold in the world unless I knew my hands were to be free."

Change Is Quickly Made.

On motion of President Johnson, the major leaguers voted to substitute the word "take" for "recommend," but it was found that the minors were not in official session and the matter would have to go through their Drafting Committee again.

Representatives of minor leagues in a standing vote assured the Judge that they had considered "recommend" the same as "take" in that they were bound to abide by his decisions, but that as soon as the agreement could be formally taken up again the word would be changed and they would sign.

Tonight the major leagues signed the contract with Judge Landis, making him Commissioner for seven years at $50.000 a year. The national agreement will remain in effect so long as Judge Landis is Commissioner.

Judge Landis, however, has stipulated that his salary of $7,500 a year as Judge should be deducted from his baseball salary, so he actually will get only $42,500 a year from baseball.

The new agreement also provides for restoration of the draft, with the prices scaled down from $5,000 for Class AA leagues to $1,000 for Class D. The American Association and the new International Leagues remained out of the draft, while the Pacific Coast League, the other Class AA organization, went in.

New players' contracts, covering what the club owners termed the "ethics of the game," were approved by the majors. One clause in the new form of contract provides that the players pledge his loyalty to his club and "pledges himself to the American public to conform to high standards of fair play and good sportsmanship." The player also promises to abide by all decisions of the commissioner and to keep himself in good physical condition throughout the season.

Plan for Players' Trials.

With the various league and inter-league disagreements settled at today's baseball meetings, the club owners, Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, Baseball Commissioner and the State's Attorney's office tonight began formulation of plans which it was expected would result in an early trial of the men indicted for conspiracy in the alleged throwing of games in the 1919 world series and which it was hoped would stamp out gambling and game throwing in baseball.

George Gorman, Assistant State's Attorney, who has been placed in charge of the baseball case, announced that the indicted men would be arraigned about Feb. 1 and that an immediate trial would be held so that the case could be disposed of before the baseball season opened. The American League appropriated $10,000 to be used in the prosecution of the men, and Judge Landis issued a statement saying that even if the men were found not guilty they would not necessarily be allowed to return to organized baseball.

The minor leagues started their campaign by voting to take action against players who have taken part in games on the Pacific Coast with Fred McMullin, an indicted Chicago White Sox player, and by suspending coast players recently indicted.

Mr. Gorman, in announcing his plan to have the men arraigned by Feb. 1, said he had been reading the Grand Jury testimony and that its length had delayed the case. The testimony totaled more than 500,000 words, he said.

"Whether the accused men are found guilty or innocent, the trial will result in the stamping out of gambling," said Judge Landis, "for suitable action will be taken against any men who have not acted justly in fulfilling their contracts."

CONTINENTALS MAKE OFFER.

New League Wants Engle or Lalonge to Manage Boston Club.

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—The Continental Baseball Association today announced that negotiations had been opened with Clyde Engle, former Red Sox player, and Mikey Lalonge, formerly a catcher on several organized baseball clubs, for the management of the team which the association plans to place in this city. Engle is now Director of Athletics at the University of Vermont.

Harry O'Donnell, a catcher under suspension by the Philadelphia Athletics, has been asked his terms as a player, it was said.

Secretary George M. Riley of the Continental Association also announced that "Eddie Bohon of Darby, Pa., is dickering with President Lawson to transfer the Camden, N. J., franchise to Philadelphia."

To Omit Collegiate Indoor Championships This Season

The I. C. A. A. A. A. has come to the decision not to hold the indoor intercollegiate championships this year. Although the constitution of the association calls for an indoor track contest each year, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Harvard, Princeton and Dartmouth voted against the project for this season. Columbia, Yale and M. I. T. were in favor of the races. Unfavorable conditions are given as the reasons for omitting the event this year.

RIDING CLUB TRIO WINS POLO MATCH

One of the cleanest played, speediest indoor polo games ever witnessed in this city took place last night at Durland's Academy, it being one of the senior handicap events of the January tournament and between the Riding Club of New York and the Durland Foxhunters. The Riding Club trio won, the final score being 15½ to 12½.

The Foxhunters had to allow their opponents four goals on handicap, and the final difference of but three goals between the two teams, handicap included, demonstrated how well the Handicapping Committee has done its work. Four periods of lively polo kept the large gallery enthusiastic and the many well-directed though difficult shots for goals as well as the clever riding off and other fine points in evidence demonstrated that indoor polo possesses quite as many opportunities for brilliant play as does the outdoor variety.

Both teams gave evidence of what is quite as important as individual brilliancy and that was team work, though, on occasions when desirable the backs showed cleverness forward and vice versa. For the Riding Club, Dr. Blackwell did the best all round work and scored the greatest number of goals, while Harriman showed up very well for a comparatively new player and R. A. Grannis proved to be a most dependable back. For the Foxhunters George C. Sherman was all over the tanbark, driving home shots from difficult angles without apparent effort, while Major Nelson proved to be a sturdy No. 2 and did some very clever riding off, as well as driving his share of goals. A. W. Kinny not only played his position of back in perfect form, but managed to drive the ball home on several occasions.

At the end of the first period the score was 8 to 1½ in favor of the Riding Club, four of the eight being by handicap. Harriman, Blackwell and Sherman each scored two goals and half was deducted against Sherman on a foul. In the next chukker Harriman and Blackwell and Kinny each tallied one and Nelson two, and so it went to the end.

Speaker and Dunn attended the annual meeting of the Cleveland club yesterday, at which Speaker was elected a director.

COLUMBIA TENN. IS WINNER BY INCHES

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 12.—In a finish that was so close it was decided by inches, J. H. Baker's gelding, Columbia Tenn., got up just in time to win the Merchants' Handicap, a six-furlong dash, which served as the chief attraction at the Fair Grounds today. He got up in the last few strides to take the decision from Muskallonge by a nose, while Rapid Day, the favorite, finished third under a hard drive.

The race brought out a field of nine of the best sprinters here and was a good contest all the way. Muskallonge raced to the front in the first furlong and led all the way to the last sixteenth, but had to be pretty well used up to hold the advantage. When Columbia Tenn. closed strongly in the stretch Muskallonge could not keep pace with him. The two hooked up at the eighth pole and fought it out all the way to the finish. Rapid Day was a disappointment and lacked early speed. He did not become a factor until the horses were in the stretch, when he moved up to third position, and made up considerable ground before he crossed the wire. Lad's Love and Bullet Proof were never contenders, and the latter was far back all the way, finishing a bad last and running far below the form he had displayed in earlier efforts during the Winter season.

St. Isidore had little trouble in gathering the long end of the Pelican Purse, at a mile and seventy yards, when he led home Biff Bang and others by a margin of four lengths. There was some jamming right after the start and several of the horses suffered interference, which cost them a chance to make a better showing. Among these was Biff Bang, but he hung on gamely, and once clear made a strong finish.

BRINDELL JURY BOX FILLED IN TWO DAYS

Remaining Eight Chosen After Sixty of the 100 Talesmen Were Examined.

UNTERMYER OPENS TODAY

Defendant Charged With Extorting $5,000 From Contractor by Threat of Strike.

The trial of Robert P. Brindell, President of the Building Trades Council, will get under way actively this morning when Samuel Untermyer will outline the prosecution's case. Brindell is charged with having extorted $5,000 from Max Aronson by threatening to call a strike on a realty project on which Aronson was engaged.

The jury box in the Extraordinary Term of the Supreme Court was filled yesterday afternoon, the last juror being chosen at 4:18. Eight jurors were chosen yesterday and four the previous day. Justice John V. McAvoy is presiding at the trial.

The names of the jurymen follow:

TAYLOR, JOHN, salesman, 220 West Ninety-eighth Street.

Mr. McLaw, a bank teller, was asked if he knew any reason why he could not serve on the jury, or whether he was acquainted with any one in the case. He smiled and said that Louis Marshall, Mr. Untermyer's law partner, once made a complaint against him but said "it was a good lesson" for him. He was satisfactory to Mr. Untermyer as well as to Martin Littleton, counsel for Brindell.

Mr. Jackson was found satisfactory to Mr. Littleton, although he said he was acquainted with Mr. Untermyer's son Alvin. He was certain he could listen to the testimony impartially and render a fair verdict.

A curious coincidence in the examination of talesmen was that three of the men on the panel knew Albert B. Unger, one of District Attorney Swann's assistants.

A man who paid no attention to the news columns but who read the editorials carefully was challenged by the people. He was George H. Hardin, a chemist for the New York Sugar Trade Laboratory.

Daniel C. Turner, sales manager of the Washburn Wire Company, was satisfactory, to the prosecution, although he said his company was run on the open shop basis. He was challenged by the defense.

Warren J. Morris thought he would be disqualified because he was superintendent in the apartment house at 46 West Seventy-third Street, where Wright D. Goss, indicted head of the Empire Brick and Supply Company, resides. He was friendly with Mr. Goss "to a certain extent" and recalled that in 1911 he was a member of the Elevator Constructors Union. His former relations with the union, he thought, might affect his consideration of the case "a little" and he was excused by the Court.

In all 60 of the 100 talesmen on the panel were examined before the jury was chosen.

There will be no session tomorrow, when both Mr. Littleton and Mr. Untermyer will be in Albany engaged in an argument on the case before the Court of Appeals.

TO AID BUILDING INQUIRY.

Three Special Assistants to Work With Rand and Kresel.

Colonel William Rand and Isidor Kresel, Special Assistants to Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer to handle the building trades cases in the Federal courts, made the following announcement yesterday:

"The Attorney General has appointed to assist us in the building inquiry Joseph Sapinsky, Ben A. Matthews and Rush Williamson. These gentlemen have been appointed Special Assistants to the Attorney General. Mr. Sapinsky is now a Special Assistant in the packers' case and Messrs. Matthews and Williamson are now Assistant United States Attorneys under Colonel Caffey. Mr. Matthews will resign his position as Assistant United States Attorney to enter upon his new work."

Senator C. C. Lockwood left for Albany yesterday determined to press the Legislature to recreate the Lockwood committee with powers to examine insurance companies and financial institutions.

Mr. Untermyer may see Governor Miller tomorrow in Albany, where he will appear before the Court of Appeals to argue on a phase of the Brindell case.

The Citizens Union, through its Chairman, William Jay Schieffelin, yesterday sent a letter to the members of the Legislature urging that the resolution enlarging the powers and scope of the Lockwood committee to investigate banks and insurance companies be approved at once. The letter states that the committee already has accomplished more substantial results than any other legislative committee in recent years and that there should be no hesitation "in ferreting out crime and corruption wherever it may be found."

APPRAISER'S CLERKS TAKEN IN DRUG RAID

Prisoners Said to Have Had $5,000 Worth of Narcotics—Smuggling Is Suspected.

Two men from the United States Appraiser's Stores on Christopher Street were arrested and more than $5,000 worth of opium and other narcotics seized last night by police and agents of the Department of Justice who have been at work for months in an effort to stop the smuggling of drugs.

One of the men from the police squad of Special Deputy Police Commissioner Carleton Simon reported yesterday that he had found a man who admitted that he had had eight cans of opium to sell, but who said that the drug had passed out of his possession. The man was Harry Fay, 45 years old, of 2,796 Eighth Avenue.

Fay was arrested last night and men were sent to search his rooms. They were reported to have found quantities of silk, opium and other narcotics. In seeking a man believed to have been an accomplice of Fay the police went to the home of William Kennedy at 66 James Street. There they said that they found eighty pounds of crude gum opium valued at more than $5,000. Kennedy was arrested and taken to Headquarters with Fay. Kennedy was a clerk in the Appraiser's Stores and Fay a checker.

Two other men were arrested last night by detectives of Dr. Simon's squad, who reported that they found about $500 worth of drugs in a flat at 310 East 107th Street. The men were Joseph Russo of that address and Harry Glazer of 852 Eighth Avenue.

Exchange of photographs and fingerprints of persons selling narcotics in cities throughout the country began yesterday with the receipt of eight photographs by Dr. Simon, in charge of the Narcotic Squad, from the police of Baltimore.

Dr. Simon said that this marked the beginning of a nation-wide campaign to put a stop to the traffic, and that two of the photographs received by him had been identified as those of notorious drug venders connected with a band in Brooklyn. The eight men, the Deputy Police Commissioner said, were arrested recently in Baltimore, and that data in connection with the band would be sent to Baltimore. About $50,000 worth of drugs was said to have been confiscated at the time of the arrest.

TAXING HOTELS DE LUXE.

New French Law Is the Occasion of Some Curious Classifications.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The new French luxury tax law divides hotels into two classes: hotels de luxe and ordinary hotels. Hotels de luxe must pay the Government a tax on their receipts. The idea of the lawmakers was that the rich Frenchmen and wealthy tourists who stopped at the palatial establishments could well afford to contribute to the support of the Government, whereas it was not desired to tax the hotels used by less fortunate folk who lived permanently in smaller hotels or who used them in their travels.

However, the hotel proprietors of the district of Mans complained to the Government that the local tax authorities didn't know the difference between a hotel de luxe and an ordinary hotel. An investigation has revealed what were the standards used by the local authorities in deciding what was a hotel de luxe. It was ruled that if a hotel had toilets with running water it was a hotel de luxe. Another was put in the same class because it had a telephone. Opposite the name of a third hotel classed as taxable was written: "It has a directory."

The agent responsible for the classification when asked where he obtained his novel standards said:

"Well, I had to find one hotel de luxe in each district or they would have said I wasn't doing my duty."

ATTENDANCE GROWS AT BIG AUTO SHOW

Fiat Cars, the Only Foreign Models Exhibited, Draw Many Admirers.

Automotive Engineers Elect David Beecroft President, to Succeed Col. J. G. Vincent.

Many prominent automobile engineers attended the various sessions of the annual meeting yesterday of the Society of Automotive Engineers in the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street. David Beecroft was elected President, succeeding Colonel Jesse G. Vincent, who was one of the leading designers of the Liberty engine early in the war. Colonel Vincent, in retiring, said that lighter automobiles with a much higher gasoline mileage than is now obtainable were bound to come in the near future.

George J. Mercer, an engineer of the Saxon Motor Company, said that the body types which will predominate this year will be the five-passenger touring car, the two-passenger runabout, the five-passenger sedan and the four-passenger coupé, with the seven-passenger sedans and touring cars in limited numbers.

The attendance at the show in the Grand Central Palace, judging from the crowd yesterday afternoon and evening, seems to be increasing as the week's exhibition draws to a close. More attention is being paid to an inspection of the various chassis. One of the most interesting and best finished chassis is that of the new eight-cylinder LaFayette. It weighs only 2,575 pounds, although its apparent strength gives the impression of greater weight. Polished steel, knurled aluminium, glowing nickel and burnished copper are so combined in the chassis as to give an unusually striking effect.

In addition to the chassis, three complete cars are displayed, a sedan and two touring cars. The touring car reflects the influence of British refinement, with Cinnabar running gear, jet black body and black Victoria top, with tan broadcloth lining. The sedan body is maroon, with upper part black.

Next to the LaFayette exhibit on the third floor is that of the new eight-cylinder Lincoln car, shown this year for the first time. It is designed by Henry M. Leland, one of the veterans in the motor industry, who was responsible several years ago for the design of the present Cadillac car. Two finished cars, a suburban limousine and a touring model, are shown, in addition to a beautiful chassis, finished in white enamel.

Fiat Is the Only Foreign Car.

Considerable interest is being shown in the Fiat exhibit, the only foreign car in the show. Two finished models are displayed, one being the small four-cylinder five-passenger touring car on a 104-inch wheel base. Only a few of this type have arrived in America from the Italian factory at Turin. It is one of the smallest four-cylinder motors in automobile use and, although rating at only 12 horse power, has a maximum speed of from 40 to 45 miles an hour and a high gasoline mileage capacity. The second car is a six-cylinder, seven-passenger touring model on a 134-inch wheel base. A stripped chassis of this type is also shown.

In the Briscoe booth are two open and two closed models, one model in each case being new and the other having many improvements. The open cars are a standard five-passenger model and a compartment roadster with some novel features. This has a two-passenger body with a rear baggage compartment completely enclosed. Access is gained through a door on the right side of the car, which, when opened, shows ample space for salesmen's samples or a touring outfit. Another model is a roomy three-passenger coupé.

The Velie four-passenger speedster has a wheel base this year lengthened to 122 inches, so as to obtain the long, low, racy lines so desirable in this type. A high cowl and diminished windshield reduce the resistance of air currents and emphasize the speedster qualities. Low-hung fenders follow the circumference of the wheels and individual steps displace the customary running board.

The Westcott has a good display, with models of the larger six and the lighter six. The latter include a roadster, five-passenger touring car, four-passenger coupé and a five-passenger sedan. The closed cars have custom-built bodies of aluminium, with interior fittings in hardwood.

One of the visitors to the show was Edward B. Hague of Utica, President of the New York State Automobile Association. Mr. Hague said that the State association was strongly advocating the enactment of a law requiring all drivers of motor vehicles throughout the State to be licensed and a more rigid control maintained over the issuance of operators' licenses.

Several conventions and luncheons of motor representatives were held during the day, among them being those of the Franklin officials and distributers and the Stevens-Duryea factory force. In the evening the annual dinner of the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association was held at the Hotel Commodore. The Studebaker and Paige companies will give dinners tonight.

Tissue paper or iron castings, pins or auto bodies—practically all materials of any size, shape, or weight, can be moved by the Lamson Systems of mechanical conveyance.

They can be applied in almost any factory or business concern to carry materials from the receiving department through the various processes of manufacture and into the railroad car for shipment. Every foot of the way they speed up production, lower costs of manufacturing as well as trucking, and save costly floor space.

Let the Lamson engineers survey your factory

They will tell you frankly how much a Lamson System would benefit you. They will devise a system to fit your plant, and if necessary (though this is rare), build special conveyors for your work.

Should they convince you that a Lamson System will pay, it can be installed unit by unit without interference with production, and each unit will begin to pay for itself from the moment it starts to work. Write for literature, or send for a Lamson engineer.

CALDER OFFERS BILL TO CONTROL COAL

Would License Operators and Give President Wide Powers in an Emergency.

REGULAR REPORTS ON COST

DRASTIC EMERGENCY PLAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—A bill which seeks to regulate the coal industry of the United States and declares the ownership, production, sale and distribution of coal throughout the country to be "charged with public interest and use" was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Calder of New York, Chairman of the Committee on Reconstruction, which has just concluded an investigation of the bituminous coal industry.

The bill is drastic in terms. Among other things it seeks to compel coal operators and others engaged in the coal business to give to the Government, at stated intervals, complete reports as to their business activities. It gives to the President of the United States in any period of emergency the right to fix maximum prices, to direct production and distribution and, if need be, to engage in the sale of coal to the people.

Senator Calder explained that it was the opinion of the committee that additional legislation would be necessary, but added that the committee was now of the opinion that the proposed legislation should be promptly considered by Congress. The bill, he said, sought to do away with profiteering in coal through a Federal licensing system and by other means, the law to be administered under the joint direction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Trade Commission and the Geological Survey.

"Primarily," said Senator Calder, "this is a bill to provide for current, regular, impartial publicity by reports through Government agencies of the essential facts concerning the coal industry and trade for the benefit of all concerned, instead of having the facts gathered by those in the industry and used or divulged only as suits their whim or purpose.

"Our investigation has disclosed, first, that even after enjoining a Government agency, the Federal Trade Commission, from gathering such facts for general use and dissemination, the bituminous coal industry, through their national association and its branches, has gathered from its members all that the Federal Trade Commission requested and many more items, and, second, that while these facts were then known to the coal operators they have induced biased and self-serving publicity propaganda, even boasting of having gotten their story out through the Associated Press as Associated Press news.

Publicity Check to Profiteering.

"The committee believes a regular and impartial disclosure of the facts of the industry by districts as to supply and mine costs and prices will do much to prevent continuance or recurrence of profiteering.

"To enforce the giving of accurate figures the bill proposes a licensing system of all operators and dealers, conditioned normally only on the furnishing of the required information. In any emergency threatening either unreasonable prices or shortage of coal supply and public health the President is authorized to fix thereupon maximum prices, commissions and margins over the whole or any portion of the United States, as the situation may warrant, and he may then revoke the license of any one charging higher than the maximum prices fixed, and each such excess charging is also made a misdemeanor.

"This section also authorizes the President to deal in coal and control its production, movement and distribution, so as to put the Government, and not those self-interested, in control in such an emergency when the usual laws of trade are in suspense, but limited only to the continuance of the emergency and to the protection of the public health.

"While profiteering has been both proven and admitted, there exists a controversy as to exactly who is responsible and to what extent. For example, as to the 900,000 tons purchased by the War Department in the spot market in 1920, the figures show that an average mine price greater than a reasonable original mine price separated such price from what the Government was forced to pay, to wit, an excess of $3.80 per ton average for the whole amount bought. How many resales and profits this represents in the different instances only a complete tracing of each carload will disclose.

"To meet such a situation (and the committee feels that such legislation will be helpful on the high cost of living in other lines) the bill has a provision taxing brokers' sales, above a certain margin, for the sale of coal had direct from the producer, and taxing such sales to a much greater point on subsequent or useless pyramiding sales between dealers. This is calculated to drive coal in a direct channel from producers to consumers and keep it out of the whirlpool of endless commissions and margins.

Inside Sales Prohibited.

"To prevent profiteering through subsidiary or affiliated concerns, a practice which has become quite general, the bill provides against such interested inside dealings by provisions similar to Section X. of the Clayton act prohibiting such dealings in the case of railroads.

"The bill is based on the public health and welfare, on interstate commerce, and on the taxing powers.

"The bill does not set up any new Governmental machinery, but utilizes the experienced agencies in existence, chiefly the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Geological Survey. It lessens duplication and provides for co-ordination, thus lessening rather than increasing uselessly the burden put on industry. It also provides power to classify those in the industry, with power to grant reasonable exemptions by class where the burden would be too great and of little or no value.

"Individual names and price and cost data are not to be divulged under penalty except in cases of profiteering, when the names and prices must be made public, or under other exceptional circumstances, and then only on resolution signed by a majority of the responsible commissioners.

"The committee and its staff have quite carefully considered the provisions of the bill and have taken considerable counsel on them, and we believe its prompt enactment will be a distinct forward step and will accomplish much both as a remedial and preventive measure."

The proposed law gives to the Federal administering agencies the privilege of access, for the purposes of examination or copying, to any documentary evidence of any person or corporation that may be the subject of investigation. The authority is also given to require by subpoena the attendance of any witness and the production of all documentary evidence relating to any matter under inquiry. In case of disobedience the aid of the Federal courts may be invoked, and the failure to obey the orders of the court will be punishable by contempt proceedings.

Furthermore, a refusal to attend or testify at an inquiry is declared to be an offense that may be punished with a fine of not less than $1,000 or more than $5,000, or imprisonment for one year, or both.

The wilful making or causing to be made by any person or corporation of any false or misleading entry or statement in any report or other document coming within the jurisdiction of the Federal agencies is to be punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000, six months in prison, or both, while any operator or dealer who operates without license, or after such license has been suspended or revoked, may be punished by a fine not to exceed $5,000 or sent to prison for two years, or both. Licenses required by the act are to be issued by the President. It is provided that no license shall be required of an operator or dealer whose gross sales during the last fiscal year were less than $50,000.

Hold Danish Count and Wife At Spokane for Deportation

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 12.—Count and Countess Vigo Holstein Rathlou of Denmark, the latter formerly the wife of Dr. Roy A. Miles Collins, killed in Portland in 1909, were arrested here today by United States immigration authorities and are being held for possible deportation.

According to United States Immigration Commissioner Gowan, the pair entered the United States, presumably through Canada, last September after they had been refused admission in 1916.

He said the Countess Rathlou eloped with Rathlou from her husband in Portland in 1903, and that Dr. Collins's second wife, when placed on trial a year after for his murder, declared that she had killed him because of his love for his former wife.

According to Mr. Gowan, the Count and the Countess left the United States in 1915 and on their return were refused admission.

CROWDS OF TOURISTS AGAIN SEEN IN ROME

Mild Winter and Reviving Transportation Bring Back the Activity of Pre-War Days.

ROME, Jan. 12.—The Eternal City is rapidly assuming its pre-war aspect. Not only have the swarms of guides, couriers and sellers of postcards and mosaics, which had entirely disappeared during the war, again appeared on the scene, but those shops which almost exclusively catered to tourists have again opened their doors, unearthing big lots of souvenirs which had been buried in back rooms during the four long years of war. The English language is again being heard all over town, in the big fashionable hotels, in any tearoom, at the opera house, &c. The mild weather, the mildest which Rome has known for years, and the bright sunshine have done much to attract foreigners. Cafés and restaurants are filled with customers consuming refreshments at little tables on the sidewalk, as is the custom here, as though it were Spring or Summer.

Among the prominent Americans in Rome are Mr. and Mrs. Glasgow of Richmond, Mrs. Williams of Washington, and daughter, Mrs. Dorothy McCombs; Henry Russell, former director of the Boston Opera House, and wife, and Alfred Klots of Washington and wife.

TURKS ROUT GREEKS IN SMASHING ATTACK

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Turkish Nationalists have broken through the Greek front in three places, threatening to turn all positions and throw back the Greeks on the coast, bottling them up in Smyrna, according to private dispatches received at the Foreign Office tonight.

Mustapha Kemal succeeded secretly in concentrating heavy forces, withdrawn from the Armenia front, against the Greek lines and launching a sudden and swift attack, smashing the Greeks' resistance and effecting big captures of prisoners and material.

The Greek left wing was menaced in the encirclement and it is reported that a general retirement was ordered.

In the Broussa sector the Turks have captured Kara, Kili and Bazerjik, and still are advancing, according to reports.

Sunderland Firm Takes Job of Removing Wreck of Cunarder.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Commissioners of the Northen Lighthouses have accepted the bid of a Sunderland firm to blow up the wreck in the Firth of Forth of the Campania, formerly of the Cunard Line. This is believed to be the largest job of its kind which has ever been undertaken.

The Campania, equipped as a seaplane carrier, was damaged in a gale in 1918 and sank off Burnt Island Harbor. She has been abandoned by the Admiralty and is now a danger to navigation.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 12.—The fourteen seaplanes engaging in the San Diego-Panama flight have reached La Union, Salvador, according to messages received at the naval air station today.

The planes are now only 805 miles from their destination at Balboa and have successfully traversed 2,242 miles of coast line since leaving here on Dec. 30. It is expected that they will reach the Panama Canal zone by noon on Sunday.

JAILED SCHWARTZ FOR FREE SPEAKING

Moscow Reds Seized Him and Wife After He Had Repeated Views to John Reed.

SOCIALIST PARTY EXPLAINS

Says He Did Not Go to Russia as Its Representative, but on His Own Initiative.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Frank expressions of disappointment over conditions in Russia, together with assertions that American workmen would never pursue Soviet methods, are declared in a supplementary statement by M. Schwartz, the American Socialist and a resident of San Francisco, to have been responsible for his four months' imprisonment in Bolshevist jails in Moscow.

As told yesterday, Schwartz and his wife were arrested on Aug. 6 and released on Dec. 3, and Mrs. Schwartz died in Reval on Dec. 20 from the effects of the hardships she endured. Schwartz went to Moscow last June and attended the second congress of the Third Internationale. In his statement yesterday he said efforts were made to disguise the real situation in Russia, but that he detected the conditions which prevailed.

"I was broken-hearted by what I saw," he said today, "and realized what a terrible misconception my wife and I had of the Soviet Government before we arrived in Russia. We were cold and could not conceal our disappointment. The Bolsheviki came to realize our condition. Wilhelm Dittmann, Herr Crispien, Ernest Daumig and Herr Stoecker, four German Socialist leaders who were delegates to the Soviet congress, knew we had visited many sections of the country and that I spoke Russian. As a result, they asked me my opinion of the situation. I spoke frankly, telling them it was unnecessary for me to discuss miseries which were apparent to even a casual observer.

Expected Revolution Here.

"My frank statements probably led to our troubles. Later Boris Reinstein of Buffalo, N. Y., and a prominent Socialist leader, asked me when a revolution would take place in America and how the Communist Party was progressing there. I told him frankly I did not think American workmen would ever adopt Russian methods and that there was no Communist Party in America. He repeated my remarks to John Reed, the author, who died last Fall, who came to me and asked me to repeat my statements. I explained to him that I did not say there were no Communists in America, but that I had asserted the Communists did not have a party organization.

"On the night of Aug. 6 at 11 o'clock an armed guard came to my hotel and arrested my wife and me, throwing us into separate jails. For two months we received no suggestion relative to the charges lodged against us. My wife could not speak Russian and suffered from her solitary imprisonment. At the end of two months I was called before M. Feldman, Chairman of the committee in charge, who asked me if I would report to American workers that it was a mistake that I had been imprisoned, hinting that I would be released if I should give this promise. I told him I might forgive the wrong I had suffered, but was sure my wife never would, and I asked to see her.

"After a long delay she entered. She was emaciated and miserable and did not recognize me, as I formerly wore no beard, and now I appeared before her with my face covered with long gray whiskers. I asked her not to cry and worry and she indignantly protested, declaring she had no tears left and could not possibly cry because of the great injustice which had been done us by the very persons for whom we had worked for many years.

"M. Feldman said we would be released immediately, but there was another long, weary wait before orders were received for us to prepare immediately to go to the station."

Mr. Schwartz was asked to give his opinion as to whether the United States should begin trading with Soviet Russia and he replied:

"Frankly, I cannot form an opinion on that subject. It would undoubtedly save hundreds of thousands of lives to raise the blockade, but it would also strengthen the Bolsheviki, afford them greater war supplies and give them an opportunity to boast that they had achieved a great victory in their effort to create a world revolution. I have weighed the question carefully and cannot decide which course the United States should pursue.

"I am going to America to tell the workers there the actual facts about the Russian situation and have confidence that the cool heads there will arrive at a wise decision as to our attitude toward the so-called Soviet Government. I do not regard it as a government at all, and I have worked the best years of my life trying to bring into existence a government of the sort Lenin and his associates say they have created."

Schwartz No Envoy of Party.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—A statement explaining that Mr. Schwartz went to Russia not as an accredited representative of the Socialist Party of America but solely upon his own initiative was issued here tonight from the publicity department of the National Socialist Party.

SAY ALLIES ARMED SOVIET.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The Russian Constituent Assembly here met in camera this afternoon to discuss General Hoffmann's plan for utilizing German troops to crush the Bolsheviki. The Social Revolutionaries, Cadets and former Duma members unanimously opposed the plan, stating that the Germans would overrun Russia if they were ever permitted entry.

This action supported the French policy, but the Assembly then registered against the French by condemning any outside military interference in Russia.

Secret information, received from Petrograd and Moscow and presented to the Assembly, forecast the overthrow of the Soviet by next Spring unless the Bolsheviki scored military successes in the meantime. The members fear that the present situation may force Lenin and Trotzky to launch an offensive to hold the masses in check.

A blockade of Russia is opposed because it would starve women, children and the common people, who are innocent of the Red crimes, but the Allies were urged to prevent the shipment of munitions.

The Allies are held responsible for the Soviet's military successes, on the ground that they sent huge shipments of munitions to Denikin, Yudenitch, Kolchak and Wrangel, all of which were captured and utilized by the Bolsheviki. It was agreed that if the Allies had maintained a "hands off" policy the Bolsheviki would have collapsed long ago through lack of war munitions.

LAY BRITISH RIOTS TO REDS.

"Unemployed" Outbreaks Said to Be Engineered by Russians.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Recent attempts by so-called unemployed to seize town halls and start riots cannot be attributed to genuine unemployed, but were instigated by Russian revolutionists, according to The Evening News, which claims to have found the headquarters of the Red organization that is engineering trouble in England.

A news article states that the Russians have a committee headed by a young Russian woman with an office off a city road in the business district. Some of the committee's funds have been raised in England, but the bulk comes from Russia.

Wade Convicted of First Degree Murder; Slayer of Nott Takes His Fate Calmly

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 12.—Elwood B. Wade was convicted of murder in the first degree here late tonight for the killing of George E. Nott in Nott's home in this city on Aug. 29, 1920. The jury had been out six hours.

Sentence will be pronounced at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The penalty in this State is hanging.

Wade took the verdict with a smile on his face. He calmly turned to Deputy Sheriff Frank Fassenalla and spoke quietly to him. William H. Comley, chief counsel for the defense, was at his side soon after the verdict was announced and shook hands with him.

While the youth was calm and undisturbed, Elbert O. Wade, his father, who was the only member of his family in the court room at the time, was noticeably affected. Deep sobs shook his frame, and tears flowed freely as Sheriff Simeon E. Pease placed his arm on the elder Wade's shoulder.

Judge Hinman's charge was long and painstaking in detail. He pointed out to the jury that one of two verdicts might be returned by them, "not guilty on the ground of insanity," or "guilty of criminal homicide."

"You must be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt," the judge said, "that the defendant was sane within the legal meaning of the term, that is to say that he realized what he was doing and the consequences of his act. You must be careful to remember that a man who is stupid or dull is not necessarily considered irresponsible."

KING ADMITS CRISIS IN GREEK FINANCES

But Thinks Allies Won't Try to "Squeeze Greece" or Favor Turkey.

DESPAIRS OF AMERICAN AID

Asserts That the Army's Morale Has Not Been Affected by Ousting of Venizelists.

ATHENS, Jan. 11 (Associated Press).—King Constantine said today that he did not believe the British wished a revision of the Sèvres Treaty with Turkey, but admitted that he had received no direct intimations to this effect. He asserted that the morale of the Greek Army in Asia Minor had not been lowered by the substitution of Constantinist officers for men who held commands under the Venizelist régime, and said he did not expect an attack upon Greek forces around Smyrna by the Turkish Nationalists and Russian Bolsheviki.

"Finance is the most difficult problem before Greece," he continued. "There is no reason to suppose that the Allies will attempt to squeeze Greece under the unfair arrangement made when Greece was very poor, and the matter may be arranged to the mutual advantage of the nations. There seems to be little hope that Americans will aid financially. They might be willing to advance money as a matter of business, but might not wish to do so at present, wishing to stand firmly by France and Great Britain."

When asked whether it would be necessary for the Greek Government to recall Venizelos in order that the country might avail itself of his abilities, the King did not appear enthusiastic.

"That matter," he declared, "is for the voters to decide. I am a constitutional King and not a member of any party. The Venizelists lack a majority in Parliament, but should elections give them a majority M. Venizelos would be free to return if he desired."

"The activities of the Greek army depend upon the Allies," said Constantine in discussing the situation in Asia Minor. "I may go to Smyrna soon to inspect the troops, but not to lead operations. If the Bolsheviki make a Spring campaign it will be against Poland or Rumania. They cannot fight everywhere. The condition of the Greek army was not injured by the substitution of Constantinist generals for those who have been in command. A number of Venizelists have resigned, but they have been replaced by men who served in the Balkan War who are trained soldiers. Some officers who have resigned were young and possibly were promoted for unmilitary reasons."

Referring to the Greek hope for the occupation of Constantinople, Constantine said: "Would we be able to hold it if the Russians wanted it?"

"I know but little about the 'Little Entente'—Rumania, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia," said the King, "but if that entente was really planned to prevent wars in the Balkans, I am in favor of it. The world has had enough of war for the present."

APPEALS TO BRITISH FOR OPEN NEWS LINES

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Joseph Pierson, Chairman of the American Publishers' Committee, who is now in London, having been sent here for the purpose of urging the need of improved facilities for news transmission between all parts of the world, especially Great Britain, France and the United States, made the following statement to the London Press Association today:

"It is the contention of the British and American newspapers that the peace of the world rests on an understanding of peoples and that the greatest organized method of creating understandings is the unhampered exchange of public information through the press. Also remember the most efficacious antidote to the false propaganda which now deluges the world is the widespread transmission of truth. England is closest to us in news exchange. However, since the Paris conference the newspapers of the world have endured congestion and confusion almost as obstructive of the exchange of public information as in the war.

"The American Publishers' Committee has sent a representative for the purpose of establishing pre-war conditions and better. Better facilities are possible, and in fact exist between the United States and France.

"The committee was fortunate in securing the energetic co-operation of the Newspaper Proprietors' Association of London, which is well aware of the Atlantic transmission barriers, and we hope we have secured the sympathetic consideration of the British Post Office. We are asking that England develop wireless facilities to work with American stations and that cables be cleared for certain short, definite day and night periods for the swift transmission of news under the organized management of newspapers and news associations. Definite proposals for relief have been made and we consign the cause to the kindly interest of the British Government and a kindred people."

WANTS 'GREATER HAMBURG'

Free State Finds That Its Present Territory Affords Inadequate Harbor Facilities.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Striking evidence has just been afforded of the recent declaration of Sir Alfred Booth, Chairman of the Cunard Company, that "Germany is preparing to return to her old place in the shipping world." It is found in the decision of the Hamburg-American Line immediately to increase its capital by 100,000,000 marks in 6 per cent. preference shares.

The use to which the money is to be put is significant. It is the intention "to exchange from time to time the new shares for shares of other companies." In other words, by a gradual process of trustification, similar to that already in operation in other great industries, it is hoped to enable the German mercantile marine to present a united front in challenging the world to a contest for its old position. In bringing the scheme before the shareholders, the Chairman of the line said:

"The first object is to protect the company against the danger of passing under foreign control. One illustration of the reality of this danger is the fact that, although the traffic of the port of Hamburg has already reached nearly half of its pre-war proportions, the Hamburg-American Line has not really any tonnage of its own. This shows how many foreign shipping companies have obtained representation in Hamburg."

Anticipating criticism, he said there was no wish to concentrate Hamburg shipping in one hand, but added: "At the same time, it is the duty of German shipping companies not to go in for mutual competition, but to share with each other the various fields of labor."

As a start in the policy which this declaration, after all, only half contradicts, it is intended to "exchange" 20,000,000 marks of the new capital with the Hamburg-South American Steamship Company.

It was also stated by the Chairman that the well-known agreement with the Harriman Company of the United States was working extraordinarily satisfactorily. Already a weekly cargo steamer service is in operation, and the first passenger steamer from New York is expected at Hamburg in the next few days.

He concluded his speech by assuring the shareholders of his complete confidence in the future, of which he adduced the proposal to increase the capital was a clear proof.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—The Government of the Free State of Hamburg will approach the Federal Government and the authorities of Oldenburg and Prussia soon with a project for the development of "Greater Hamburg." Hamburg's dock and harbor facilities have become inadequate, since no fewer than sixty-seven foreign steamship companies operate branches here or make Hamburg their permanent headquarters. Of these twenty-two are English and eleven Dutch. The American Line has leased a long stretch called Rosshofenquai for twenty-five years, and the Royal Steam Packet Company, the Cunard Line and one Dutch line are now negotiating for leases of waterfront of equal magnitude.

The Hamburg Government feels that the port needs extension, which can be assured only if the proprietary rights along what is generally known as the Port of Hamburg are consolidated under its own direction. At present Hamburg, Altona and several smaller places share these rights. With the consent of the Federal Government they may be induced to become part of Greater Hamburg and the third largest port in the world.

ATTACK TROOP TRAIN AND DUBLIN POLICE

Bombs and Rifle Fire Send Dubliniles Scurrying in a Main Thoroughfare.

DUBLIN, Jan. 12.—In a wild stretch of country in County Donegal Sinn Feiners, numbering more than 100 men, today derailed and ambushed a troop train. This is the first deliberate and organized attack on troops in transit by train in Ireland. Full details are lacking, but an official communiqué issued this afternoon says:

"A troop train proceeding to Dungloe, County Donegal, was ambushed this morning near Kinclassagh Road. It was derailed by large boulders placed across the lines and heavy fire was opened upon it. According to the latest information it reached its destination without casualties to its occupants, but the train was riddled and all the windows were broken."

The train crew is said to have put the train back on the track while the troops fought off the ambushers.

A scene of wild confusion and panic was created this afternoon in Bachelor's Walk, a leading Dublin thoroughfare, following an attack on a lorry containing auxiliary police. Shortly before 5 o'clock lorries laden with auxiliaries passed through at a rapid rate, and suddenly there was fierce rifle and bomb firing. Having taken up a position in the lane ways abutting on the main street, the attackers were able to disappear quickly after firing some shots at the lorries. The auxiliaries returned the fire, and rifle shooting continued for a considerable time.

There were miraculous escapes. An auction was proceeding at the time and bullets whizzed past the heads of women and others engaged in purchases. A stampede was caused and in the rush many persons were injured. An official account states that four bombs were thrown at the lorries and that the assailants withdrew at once. The cadets opened fire with carbines. One man was seen to be hit, but was taken away by his comrades. One cadet was injured by a bomb splinter.

Sinn Fein M. P. Sentenced.

DUBLIN, Jan. 12.—James J. Walsh, Sinn Fein Member of Parliament for Cork, who escaped from Mountjoy Prison a year and a half ago and was rearrested on Jan. 5, has been officially informed that he has been sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

The day before his escape from prison he was court-martialed for delivering an alleged seditious speech, and it is for this that the five-year sentence has been imposed upon him.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The long-awaited report of Major Gen. Strickland on the Cork conflagration will never be published in its entirety, as submitted to the Government by the General, it is learned in an authoritative quarter. The report has not had a final Cabinet consideration, and, consequently, it is uncertain when even the abbreviated findings will be published.

DECISION DELAYED ON MAYOR OF CORK

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—A peculiar situation has arisen in connection with the attitude of Secretary Wilson of the Labor Department over the request of the State Department for the deportation of Donal O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, for violation of American passport laws because he entered this country as a stowaway without a passport. Acting Secretary Davis of the State Department yesterday decided that O'Callaghan had come into the country in violation of American passport laws and that there was no reason why an exception should be made in his case, and Mr. Davis wroite a letter to Secretary Wilson giving the necessary order for the deportation.

No action, so far as can be ascertained, has been taken by Secretary Wilson looking toward the deportation of O'Callaghan. The matter is understood to be still under consideration in the Department of Labor, with no prospect of Secretary Wilson's decision being announced before Friday. Meanwhile O'Callaghan has come to Washington, and the unofficial commission investigating conditions in Ireland tonight announced that O'Callaghan "will tell the story of the burning of Cork and the events leading up to it before the commission tomorrow when the commission resumes its hearings at the Hotel Lafayette."

Secretary Wilson, sitting with his departmental advisers, gave a hearing today to former Judge J. H. Lawless of Norfolk and Michael Francis Doyle of Philadelphia, counsel for O'Callaghan, who obtained assurance that no decision would be taken by the Labor Department concerning deportation or non-deportation before next Friday, when O'Callaghan's counsel will submit a brief in their client's behalf. Consideration of the brief, it is believed, would further postpone action by the Labor Department in carrying out the State Department's order.

Society Here Urges Deportation.

The American Society of Reconstruction, with headquarters in the Hotel Plaza, yesterday joined the Allied Loyalty League, of which James M. Beck is President, in a protest against the admission of Lord Mayor Donal O'Callaghan to this country. The organization forwarded a letter to Secretary Colby, in which Mrs. Robert M. Nelson, President pro-tem, said:

"The American Society for Reconstruction protests against making any exception to the general rule in the case of Mr. O'Callaghan being admitted to this country, and urges his immediate deportation. He comes here representing a movement that was allied with Germany during the whole of the recent great war, and at present the said movement is carrying on the most insidious propaganda in the United States against England, our greatest and stanchest ally.

MAN FAILS TWICE TO DIE.

Pulled From Subway Tracks, He Slashes Throat With Knife.

Saved from death by the emergency brakes of a subway train, Edward Rekauley, 26 years old, of 319 East Forty-ninth Street, fought with an ambulance surgeon who was taking him to Bellevue Hospital. The surgeon seized a penknife with which Rekauley had slashed his throat in a second attempt to die.

Rekauley was seen lying on the tracks of the City Hall subway loop by Motorman Hays, who stopped his train within five feet of the man. Hauled to the platform by Hays, Rekauley exclaimed that he wanted to die. At Bellevue Hospital it was said that, while his condition was serious, he should recover.

Arrest Italian Captain; He Bars Liquor Search on Ship

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 12.—Sheriff King Graham, armed with a warrant to search the Italian steamer Monte Santo for liquor, could not obtain permission to board the vessel in the harbor today, Captain F. Sterlese refusing. Later he returned with twelve Deputies and placed the captain under technical arrest for interfering with an officer. The search was then made, but no liquor was found.

The warrant was issued by the Municipal Court after the County Attorney had given his opinion that the Sheriff had a legal right to search a foreign vessel in the harbor. Sheriff Graham said that much liquor had been brought ashore by members of crews of Greek and Italian ships arriving here.

Consular Agent Gaspare Vervena said tonight that the captain had lodged no complaint of the Sheriff's action with him and that if he did so the matter would be referred to the Italian Consul at Boston.

Junkers Will Oppose It as Sovietizing Factor — New Force of 100,000 Now in Being.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—Dating from the opening of the year, Germany's new army is in being on the lines laid down in the Treaty of Versailles—that is, based on voluntary service, with a total establishment of 100,000, including 4,000 officers. Subject to these principal conditions, the Government has considerable freedom in the construction and running of its military machine, and at this moment its advisers are drafting for early submission to the Reichstag what is called a "law for the provision of a defense force."

By this measure the President of the republic is vested with supreme control of all the national troops, ten divisions strong. For the proscribed General Staff there is substituted a General as head of the army and an Admiral as chief of the navy, while the War Ministers of the individual States within the republic are incorporated in a new Federal Defense Ministry.

Twenty-one infantry regiments, eighteen cavalry regiments, seven independent squadrons and seven artillery regiments. This force is divided into two group commands of three divisions of cavalry and seven of other arms. Allotted to what is called a defense district, each division is composed of three infantry regiments and an artillery regiment, with a pioneer battalion, sanitary and other subsidiary units. In each division the infantry and artillery are under command of an infantry leader and an artillery leader respectively.

The armament within certain limits is strictly defined and controlled by the Entente. Neither the navy nor the army is allowed to make use of flying for any fighting purpose. To the latter also is forbidden the use of tanks and gas, and while practically it has no heavy artillery, as the term is understood in these days of giant guns, every contingent is also restricted in the number of machine guns, mine-throwers and other arms which may be allotted it.

Whether regarded as a luxury or a necessity, Germany's new army is certainly a very expensive one. The Government contemplates an annual expenditure upon it of 5,000,000,000 marks.

One specially interesting institution supposed to be in accordance with the spirit of the times is embodied in the outline of the new army law. It provided for the creation of what is called an army council, a term whose meaning must not be confused with its usual military significance. Its members will be elected from the force itself, each rank having representation, and its mission is to act as an advisory council to the State Defense Minister.

PLUNGES TO HER DEATH FROM A LONDON TOWER

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Countess da Libeira Grande, a member of a well-known Portuguese family and the friend of ex-Queen Amelie, met a tragic death this afternoon by falling from the parapet of the campanile of Westminster Cathedral, a distance of nearly 200 feet.

The Countess, who for the last ten months had been living in London with her husband and son and daughter, had been suffering from neurasthenia and insomnia and was missing from her home. A little before 3 o'clock, while the afternoon service was in progress at the Cathedral, the Countess, who was unrecognized by the attendants, presented herself at the entrance to St. Edward's Tower and, paying the admission fee of sixpence, mounted the steps in company with other visitors, whom she passed on the way up the staircase, going to the parapet, which is bordered by a balustrade more than four feet high.

Just what happened there is at present a matter of conjecture. Owing to the height of the tower, few people, if any, witnessed the tragedy.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—An estate valued at £996,492, in normal times about $4,982,460, nearly all of which is bequeathed to charities, has been left by David Martin Currie, who died in September at the age of 84. A brother of the late Sir Donald Currie, he was a familiar figure in art salesrooms. He bequeathed to the Victoria and Albert Museum at South Kensington all his works of art, including arms, armor, bronze, Sevres and other porcelain, missals, tapestry and other things, which were on loan at the museum. The rest of his works of art, which include some exceptional pieces, are to be sold.

Mr. Currie left large bequests to hospitals and charitable institutions, including one bequest of £25,000, nine bequests of £20,000 each and three of £10,000 each. After the payment of some legacies half of the residue is divided among some of these institutions.

AUSTRIA TO OFFER PLEA TO HARDING

CRISIS OVER WAGE DEMAND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 12.—Professor Joseph Redlich has just been delegated by the Austrian Government to proceed to Washington and confer about the Austrian situation with American statesmen and financiers and also with President-elect Harding.

Dr. Redlich, who is well-known in America from numerous lectures there, will sail within a few days.

BERNE, Jan. 12.—Professor Joseph Redlich arrived here from Vienna this morning, announcing that he was on his way to the United States to inform President-elect Harding of Austria's commercial, financial and political situation. Mr. Harding, according to Professor Redlich, has agreed to receive him.

Professor Redlich hopes to raise a loan in the United States, declaring that Austria finds the machinery of the League of Nations too cumbersome.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Austria is negotiating with a British banking syndicate for the establishment of a new Austrian bank of issue to replace the Austro-Hungarian Bank, which is in liquidation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—It is virtual national bankruptcy which has forced the Austrian Government to serve notice on the principal allied and associated powers that it cannot continue the administration of the nation after Jan. 15.

Word has reached Washington in official advices that the final step compelling the Austrian Government to take this action was a demand by Government clerks for an increase of 1,000,000,000 crowns a month in salaries, Jan. 15 being the date fixed for the expiration of their ultimatum. The increase was demanded on account of the depreciation of the Austrian crown.

It was learned at the State Department that a conference of representatives of the former parts of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, including Czechoslovakia, Hungary and those regions ceded to Serbia, which conference is also to be attended by representatives of the allied powers, will be held in Vienna at an early date. The United States Government has been invited to be represented, but the indications today were that this country would not accept, as the problem to be worked out is one in which the United States is held to have no immediate interest, and it is felt that it can be solved best by those who are more directly concerned.

The conference will consider Austria's desperate situation and seek to find remedies. It is possible that the allied Governments will find it necessary to intervene in Austria if the population is to be saved from starvation.

Experts have figured out that a credit of $100,000,000 could pull Austria through the emergency, although it is thought that a credit, unless accompanied by a comprehensive plan for solving the Austrian question, would not be the nation's salvation but only convert it into pauperism. Great Britain at one time engaged to advance $50,000,000 to Austria provided the United States would create a similar credit, and the plan was favored by President Wilson and the Secretary of the Treasury, but Congress did not approve, although Austria obtained from this country several millions of dollars' worth of food supplies through the United States Grain Corporation.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 12.—The publication of Lady Norah Bentinck's articles on the Hohenzollerns in exile has aroused a storm of indignation on the part of the ex-Kaiser and the entire Hohenzollern interest, as well as his former host, Count Bentinck, at whose castle the events described took place.

Count Bentinck hurried to The Hague to confer with the Foreign Minister and the Premier, after which conference it is understood that the Government instructed the Netherlands Minister in London to deny the statements contained in the articles.

It is understood that the Dutch Government is highly incensed, considering their publication a breach of etiquette and good faith, since guests at Amerongen were always requested to tell nothing of the doings at the castle. Count Bentinck asserts that not even the servants gossipped during William's stay, in spite of tempting bribes offered by American journalists.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The Schola Cantorum.

The Schola Cantorum entered upon its twelfth season under Mr. Kurt Schindler's direction last evening, with its concert in Carnegie Hall. Mr. Schindler's tireless energy in seeking unfamiliar fields of choral music led him this time to Russia, and the concert was devoted to songs and choruses of Russian composers and also settings of Russian folksongs. In the solo songs Mme. Nina Koshetz, soprano, was heard.

Mr. Schindler's tireless energy is matched by his unquenchable enthusiasm, which sometimes has led him into giving in his programs far too much, and too much of the same kind. That was in some degree the case last night. The program began with a series of four choral numbers from three of Rimsky Korsakoff's operas; there were six songs by Rachmaninoff, followed by six anthems by the same composer, sung for the first time in America, from the "all night vigil," a service preceding the great holidays. Songs by Metner, Stravinsky and Moussorgsky followed, and a group of Russian folksongs and dances for chorus.

Rimsky Korsakoff's choruses have undergone much modification at Mr. Schindler's hands—the addition of male voices (representing the orchestra) to female choruses, and the insertion of variations being noted. They are charming choruses and were effective enough in Mr. Schindler's way to suggest a desire to hear them in Rimsky Korsakoff's, with an orchestra.

The chorus sang these and the other numbers with an excellent finish and precision not always or wholly familiar in its previous concerts. The quality of the voices is good, though not of the greatest brilliancy and warmth, and the female voices outshine the male, which have hardly the weight needed for the balance. The singing of the chorus, however, indicated an improvement that could not be other than gratifying to its friends.

For the six anthems by Rachmaninoff Mr. Schindler could not find praise enough in his program note. They are indeed noble and dignified pieces of sacred music of the highest type; and they were sung in a style wholly suited to them. But six in such a concert were too many, and they palled before the last was finished. In these Mr. Schindler had the assistance of Dr. John Philip Foley's boy choir from St. Stephen's Roman Catholic Church, and of Judson House, tenor, in several solos.

Mme. Koshetz, who made her first New York appearance on this occasion, is an opera singer as well as a singer of songs, of note in Russia. Her voice seems to tend somewhat toward the mezzo quality and range. It is hardly notable for richness, color or beauty; its upper tones are among its least agreeable ones. Nor is the vocal technique always of high finish. But there is a dramatic quality in the voice that responds closely to Mme. Koshetz's strongly dramatic temperament. In this respect she produces some remarkable effects.

Some of Mr. Rachmaninoff's songs were sung for the first time in this country and gave pleasure by their poetical expressiveness. A singularly beautiful effect was that of the "vocalise" song by Mme. Koshetz without words—an attempt to treat the human voice instrumentally, and yet with due consideration for the nature of the instrument. A "Pastoral" by Stravinsky practically an experiment in the same direction. Mme. Koshetz sang three songs by Moussorgsky in a very realistic manner; doubtless the manner the composer intended for them; it gives a certain non-musical effect and induces speculation as to how much the music really adds to the declamation of the verses. Mme. Koshetz was much applauded for her singing and was many times recalled. So was Mr. Schindler.

It was announced that after the concert a collection would be taken up for the European Relief Fund.

Throng Hears Verdi's "Don Carlos."

Verdi's "Don Carlos" drew a practically sold-out house at its third performance at the Metropolitan last evening, the cast again including Mmes. Ponselle and Matzenauer, Messrs. Martinelli, De Luca and Didur. Mr. Gatti-Casazza, who staged the revival so lavishly for an opera of the older sort, was the most gratified among all those concerned in its apparent popularity with the public. Mr. Papi conducted the music, and the French and Spanish court scenes were applauded.

MISS BARRYMORE STILL ILL.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 12.—Miss Ethel Barrymore, who has been confined to her apartments in the Sinton Hotel here for the last week, suffering from articular rheumatism, was removed to Christ Hospital today, by order of her physician, Dr. Oliver P. Holt. Dr. Holt said that her condition was by no means critical, but that it was essential tha she should have hospital treatment.

When Miss Barrymore arrived here a week ago last Monday at the head of the company presenting "Déclassée," she was suffering from the malady, having been attacked with it while playing in Chicago. She was advised then to cancel her engagement at the Grand Opera House here and undergo treatment, but insisted upon appearing. She gave two performances while visibly in pain, but was forbidden by her physician to continue further. Her engagement at Columbus for this week was canceled, and now the rest of the tour may have to be called off.

Miss Barrymore is accompanied on tour by her three young children. They remain at the hotel under care of a maid. The members of Miss Barrymore's company also remain in Cincinnati awaiting the outcome of her illness.

HAROLD MORRIS APPEARS.

Young Texas Pianist and Composer Wins Last Audience at Debut.

Harold Morris, a human being at the piano, which is rare, and a Texas composer, rarer yet, whose works have been performed by orchestras in this city, Cincinnati and Los Angeles, made instant friends of a large audience at his first recital yesterday in Aeolian Hall. He played antique arrangements by Brahms, Busoni and Godowsky; Brahms's sonata in F minor, Op. 5; some Chopin pieces, and modernist impressions by Cyril Scott and the late Charles T. Griffes, whose "Night Winds" especially pleased his hearers.

Mr. Morris is a tall, spare youth, of remarkable grace, without affected gesture at the piano. He is not hypnotic, not a highbrow casting his spell over the Brahmins, but he played the sonata, which was his most serious number, with intelligent appreciation, clear as to outline and genuinely musical in detail.

Grace George in 'The New Morality.'

Grace George, it is announced, will be seen at The Playhouse in the near future in a series of productions at matinees, the first of which will be the late Harold Chapin's comedy, "The New Morality." With Miss George will appear Ernest Lawford, Lawrence Grossmith and Katharine Cornell. "The New Morality," which has recently been produced in London, will be acted at The Playhouse on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons during February. As her second offering Miss George will present a comedy from the French of Paul Geraldy.

One price—fixed and inflexible —50c for service

McBRIDE'S are trying to stabilize the theatre ticket business by establishing firmly the policy that fifty cents above box office price is the proper value of the best theatre ticket service.

The very foundation of this business is our reputation for squareness and service and that's something that no premiums could induce us to sacrifice. There are no evasions—no excuses. Our fifty cent policy is unalterable—no matter how much the traffic will bear.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The pressure has increased generally east of the Mississippi River, and an extensive area of high pressure had its centre Wednesday night over the Ohio Valley, and it is moving eastward. The pressure has fallen rapidly over the plains States and the Rock Mountain region, and there are indications of an area of low barometer developing over the West Gulf of Mexico.

The temperature has fallen generally east of the Mississippi River and in the West Gulf States and it has risen decidedly over the Northwest. Temperature readings were below zero Wednesday morning in Wisconsin, Minnesota, the east portions of the Dakotas and in Wyoming.

Within the last twenty-four hours light local snows occurred in the region of the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley, Middle Atlantic and New England States, and there were rains in the West Gulf States and the Pacific States, except Southern California.

In the North Atlantic States the weather will be fair and colder on Thursday, followed by increasing cloudiness, rising temperature and snow by Friday night. In the Middle Atlantic States the weather will be fair and colder on Thursday and becoming unsettled, with rain or snow, on Friday. In the South Atlantic States the weather will be cloudy and somewhat colder on Thursday, followed by rain Thursday night and Friday.

In the East Gulf States and Tennessee there will be rains Thursday and clearing weather Friday, without decided change in temperature. In the Ohio Valley and lower lake region cloudiness will increase Thursday and probably be followed by local snow and warmer Thursday night or Friday. In the upper lake region the weather will be partly cloudy and warmer on Thursday and unsettled on Friday.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Northern New England—Fair and colder Thursday. Friday fair, with rising temperature.

Southern New England, Eastern New York and New Jersey—Fair and somewhat colder Thursday. Friday increasing cloudiness and warmer, probably followed by snow by night.

STEEL INDUSTRY REMAINS SLUGGISH

A Few Plants Resume Operation, but Little New Business Is Reported.

CORPORATION PRICES FIRM

Output 90 Per Cent. of Capacity, With Independents Running Only 25 Per Cent.

In its weekly survey of the iron and steel industry, the Iron Age sees no development of particularly encouraging factors. Thus far it is asserted the turn into the new year has brought little change. Some few plants are reported to have resumed operations, but it is predicted that such activity will not be of long duration unless there is a decided change in the volume of new business.

This publication in discussing various phases of the situation says in part:

"In the Pittsburgh and nearby districts independent companies are running at about 25 per cent. of capacity, the good work of the pipe mills pulling up lower percentages in other lines. Wage reductions at a number of Pittsburgh and Youngstown plants are looked for this month.

"The Steel Corporation continues to operate most of its mills at more than 90 per cent. of full capacity, with indications that this condition will be maintained through the Winter. The daily average of 50,000 tons of product holds up and new bookings are somewhat under the 25,000-ton daily rate which was reported for a good part of December.

"How long the Steel Corporation price level will be held is an uppermost question. In the few tests that have come, the corporation has adhered to its schedule, though on plates in particular other makers have quoted 2.50c., representing a cut of $3 per ton. The size of the corporation's order book argues for its continued refusal to reduce its prices, even though competitors may quote lower. The unwillingness of buyers to place large orders until the result of the whole process of price readjustment is clearer may work against serious cutting for a time. There is no present indication of free contracting from any source.

"In some cases foundries serving the automobile industry have been asked to ship castings on orders suddenly canceled last Fall. On the other hand is the complete stoppage of shipments on contracts of the Ford Motor Company.

"Agricultural implement manufacturers are on a reduced scale of operations. One important interest has orders on hand equal to but one-third those of one year ago."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"Iron and steel plant operations present a true index to the continuation of sluggish trade conditions. A wide margin continues to separate the rate of production of the independent works and those of the Steel Corporation, with the latter still at 80 to 90 per cent. and showing some of the best records for sustained output in their history. How long as this disparity can be maintained, however, is questionable, in the light of the heavy loss in unfilled orders reported by the leading producer in December.

"The composite market average of the Iron Trade Review this week shows a further reduction to $42.15. Last week it was $52.75 and in December $53.45."

JAPAN'S TRADE BALANCE.

Exported More Gold and Less Goods Than She Imported in 1920.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Japan closed the year 1920 with an unfavorable balance of trade of 391,848,000 yen, said a cablegram, received today by the Department of Commerce, from James F. Abbott, commercial attaché at Tokio. The year's exports amounted to 1,928,864,000 yen, while the imports were 2,320,712,000 yen.

The total gold imports for the year were 393,911,000 yen, while the gold exports were 3,896,000 yen.

Japanese exports for December amounted to 67,893,000 yen, while the imports were 81,683,000 yen.

MELLON LEAVES THE P. R. R.

Pittsburgh Banker Resigns on Interlocking Directorate Issue.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—The Pennsylvania Railroad announced today the acceptance of the resignation of A. W. Mellon, the Pittsburgh banker, as a Director in the company. Mr. Mellon was elected a director last February.

"Mr. Mellon's resignation," the company announced, "was presented so as to save both himself and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company from any possible embarrassment that might arise because of the stringent and as yet undefined requirement of the Federal laws which became effective on Jan. 1, 1921, respecting so-called interlocking Directors, and so as to give him more time to devote to other companies in which he is a Director."

Applique Trimmings in Favor.

Appliqué flowers and fruits, rather than single blossoms or wreaths, are most in favor as Spring millinery trimmings in this market at the present time. Flat appliqué trimming made of georgette, covered with silk, is seen in a number of attractive designs. Flowers fashioned out of heavy "all-over" lace and dyed in many shades are used to decorate hats in sombre colors. Among the popular fruit trimmings for Spring are clusters of berries. Large single fruits are used to some extent, being sanctioned by leading French modistes.

United Fruit Surplus Is $45,314,084.

The United Fruit Company, in a report to the Boston Stock Exchange for the eleven months ended Nov. 30, 1920, shows a surplus, after interest and charges, but before income taxes, of $45,314,084, or the equivalent of $90.62 a share on the capital stock.

ALL 'GROSS INCOME' MUST BE REPORTED

Taxpayers Are Required to Account for Every Dollar Received in Returns.

DEDUCTIONS ARE ALLOWED

What "Income" Includes for Four General Classes Is Defined by Tax Bureau.

The term "gross income," used in the Federal income tax laws, has proved one of the commonest stumbling blocks to those who have to make out returns. Although the term is of paramount importance to the taxpayer, as it is the basis upon which the return is made, the number of inquiries received by the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the local offices of the Internal Revenue Collectors indicate that much perplexity exists among taxpayers as to the correct application of the rules affecting "gross income."

Practically every dollar received by the taxpayer during the year 1920 must be shown in his return as gross income, according to the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The taxpayer, in arriving at net income, upon which the tax is assessed, is allowed certain specified deductions, such as business expenses, losses and depreciation, but the returns must show the gross income.

"Any form of compensation for personal services rendered by the wage earner is income, including salaries, wages, commissions, fees and bonuses, pensions paid retired employes, and tips. Payment for personal services may be paid for partly in cash and partly in board and lodging. In this event a fair value must be placed on the room and meals, and the amount reported as income.

"Promissory notes received in payment for services, and not merely as security for such payments, constitute income to the amount of their fair market value. When services are paid for in something other than money, the fair market value of the thing taken in payment is the amount to be included as income.

"The gross income of the usual business consists of the gross profit on sales, together with income from other sources. The return must show the gross sales, purchases, and cost of goods sold. To reflect net income correctly and to ascertain gross income inventories are necessary at the beginning and end of each taxable year.

"The lawyer, doctor, architect, actor, author, dentist, clergyman, and other professional man must include in his return of gross income all fees, salaries, and other compensation for professional services.

"The farmer is required to report as gross income all profits derived from the sale or exchange of farm products, including crops and livestock whether produced on the farm or purchased and resold. Where farm produce is exchanged for groceries, merchandise, or other articles the fair market value of the article must be reported as income. A farmer who rents his farm on the crop-share basis must report such income for the year in which the crops are sold. Profit derived from the sale or rental of farm lands must be reported.

"Within the meaning of the Revenue act the term 'farm' includes stock, dairy, poultry, fruit and truck farms; also ranches, plantations and all land used for farming operations. Individuals, partnerships or corporations that operate or manage farms for profit, either as owners or tenants, are designated famers."

These items, affecting taxpayers generally, must be included in the return of gross income:

Interest received on notes and deposits in banks, including savings banks. Cash dividend on stock. Profits received from the sale of property, real or personal. Partnership profits; partnerships as such are not subject to the income tax, but each individual partner must pay a tax on the income from such partnership. Royalties from mines, oil and gas wells, copyrights and franchises. Income received from fiduciaries, that is, amounts received from incomes of estates, trusts, &c., through trustees, administrators and executers.

U. S. Steel Corporation Gives List of Welfare Activities Since 1912.

The eighth annual bulletin of the United States Steel Corporation's Bureau of Safety, Sanitation and Welfare, which is profusely illustrated, shows that from Jan. 1, 1912 to Sept. 30, 1920, they had expended $81,162,943 in welfare and allied activities. The various items are as follows: Welfare, $14,011,487; sanitation, $14,724,964; accident prevention, $7,538,241; relief for injured men and the families of men killed, $23,662,627; employes' stock-subscription plan, $11,246,859; pension fund payments in addition, in excess of income provided by permanent pension fund, $1,978,765; and for creation of permanent pension fund, $8,000,000. Total pension payments to employes have amounted to $5,408,597 for the period mentioned above, this amount not being included in the total of welfare payments.

As a result of the corporation's safety program the number of accidents per 1,000 employes was reduced 54.06 per cent., as compared with 1906, when the program was inaugurated. On the basis of the 1906 accident figures it is estimated that 29,550 employes have been saved from injury since then. The statement shows that the number of dwellings and boarding houses constructed and leased to employes at low rents is 28,260. Twenty-six churches, fifty schools and nineteen clubhouses have been built.

Making Men's Wear Accessible.

The factor of accessibility has been recognized as of prime importance where the merchandising of men's wear is concerned. Large stores have moved around their clothing and furnishings departments in order to find the location most suitable for getting results. It is said that the success obtained by a leading store of the city, which a short time ago turned over an entire floor to men's wear, has been due in large measure to the operation of express elevators which take customers directly to the department. This feature has been stressed in the advertising of the department.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Silk Association of America places stocks of raw silk in local storage warehouses as of Jan. 1 as 34,891 bales of Japanese, 341 of Italian and 9,304 of other varieties, making a total of 44,536 bales. On Dec. 1 there was a total of 48,357 bales.

John M. Biggins, resident buyer, 1 East Thirty-third Street, now represents the following stores: Denton Company, Cincinnati, Ohio; the Edward Wren Company, Springfield, Ohio; J. B. Mosby & Co., Richmond, Va., and the Fashion Company, Lafayette, Ind.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ..7¾@8 per cent. for the best names
Tuesday ...7¾@8 per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gray Hosiery Leads for Spring.

Judging from the amount of business that has been booked in it to date for Spring delivery, gray silk hosiery is going to have everything its own way during the coming season. It is far and away ahead of brown, which comes second. Four shades of gray are being sought by buyers of the higher-priced lines of hose. They range from a light, silvery hue to a shade approximating that known to the trade as "smoke." The present demand for prompt delivery goods is limited, but what there is of it is said to be well diversified.

Local Drug Demand Improves.

Manufacturers of fine chemicals are offering products at prices which are attracting buyers this week, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. Several of the principal acids have been reduced, among other articles. Buyers are also in the market for crude drugs now. Prices are weak, owing to large importations, which quickly replace the lots that are sold. The market for essential oils is so inactive that quotations have no meaning. When several textile mills resumed operations last week the dye market was strengthened, and a steadily increasing demand is expected from this direction.

Gray Goods Still Rising.

Prices for the active constructions of gray goods continued to rise in this market yesterday. Eastern mills sold 38½-inch 64-60s freely at 8¾ cents for nearby deliveries, and the Southern mills did the same thing at a quarter of a cent a yard less. In the case of 38½-inch 60-48s, also for nearby shipment, Southern goods were disposed of in a liberal way at 7¼ cents. Eastern mills asked 7½ cents for the same construction, and some business was reported on that basis. Sheetings sales for the day included 48-square, four-yard goods at 8¼ cents and 56-60s of the same weight at 9 cents. Active trading in clothing specialties, especially twills and sateens, continued. For 39-inch 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens buyers paid 13½ cents.

New Silks Appearing.

Some late-season novelties are now to be had in the silk trade, although quite a few houses are well along in their preparations for the Fall. One manufacturer has brought out what is know as an embossed crêpe and is also showing samples of satin crêpe. The brisk demand for cantons has developed some original ideas in this construction, although the fine, staple fabrics have the call. Crêpes made of Italian silk and featuring a high gloss have also been prepared for the trade. There is very little market at present for the low grades of georgette, but the finer qualities are finding a renewed demand.

Back to Hand-Loomed Fabrics.

Incidental with the Pilgrim celebration, there has sprung up quite a business in hand-loomed materials and those manufactured to resemble such fabrics. This has been referred to before in connection with women's outergarments. The vogue, however, has now spread over into the men's wear trade, and such materials are being utilized not only for sports wear but also for business suits. Hand-loomed cheviots and homespuns, worsted crashes and tweeds have created quite a place for themselves in the smart tailoring establishments. The loose garment designs in fashion are said to help the exploitation of such materials.

Fewer "Jobs" From Now On.

It has been a matter of surprise to buyers just arrived in the market to find such small surpluses of women's ready to wear about. Large cash offers for such merchandise have proved disappointing in the amount of goods brought out of hiding. Those in close touch with the situation have noted the rapid dwindling of closeouts and specially priced merchandise. They ascribe the scarcity of jobs to a cleaning up of dress goods owned by manufacturers, which have been drawn upon for months without replenishment. This, perhaps as much as any other factor, has reduced the quantity of surplus garments. The uncertainty of fabric values, as well as high money rates, kept the garment manufacturers out of the dress goods market until their surplus stocks were exhausted.

Eyes on Woolen Values.

With the improvement which has taken place in the demand for men's clothing manufacturers are somewhat fearful of the effect on their business which might come from further reductions in woolens. They want no heavyweight opening just yet, with the likelihood of revised material prices, because they figure such a circumstance might disturb the buying of their customers. The retail clothing buyers are known to be keeping a close watch on values in the woolen market, and any further break might well be the signal for another cessation of trade. The reductions which are being made from day to day in mill quotations are not regarded as important enough to affect retail purchases of clothing, but an opening or an important price cut would, in the opinion of the trade, prove unfortunate.

Bleached Goods Quoted Higher.

A wholesale price of 17½ cents was put on 4-4 "Fruit of the Loom" bleached muslins yesterday by Converse & Co. of this city, selling agents for B. B. & R. Knight, Inc. This was an advance of half a cent a yard over the revised figure announced a week ago Monday, and at which orders for a large quantity of merchandise that had been sold on memorandum were confirmed. According to market comment, the rise was undoubtedly due to the stiffening of gray goods prices here. All indications yesterday pointed to corresponding advances on competing lines in the very near future.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

It was evidence of the wholesome change which has come in the financial community's mental attitude since the turn of the year that yesterday's moderate reaction on the stock market in sterling exchange rates and in Liberty bonds should have been accepted as a normal incident. In particular, the high "borrowing premiums" on certain speculative industrial shares and the excited bidding-up of their prices came pretty much to an end. It could not have continued legitimately much longer, but the possible danger had existed that the incidents of the first two days of the week might have tempted other speculative groups to continue forcing up such stocks, with the idea of arousing the public's speculative appetite. This is clearly no time for anything of the sort, and Wall Street itself was relieved when it found that the experiment was not being tried.

Yesterday's stock market was by no means weak. Notably in the low-priced railway shares and in a number of the industrials, there were respectable advances. The decline of 4¾ points in Crucible Steel, after its 22-point rise in the two days when the "bear crowd" were struggling out of the trap which they had set for themselves, was a natural reaction; so also were the declines in other industrial stocks whose recent advances had been somewhat violent. The bond market, meantime, although displaying again some of the irregularity which has been a daily experience this month, continued on the whole to reflect a steady and confident demand, both for numerous railway bonds and for bonds of foreign Governments and cities. It will be particularly interesting to see how this general investment market will be affected by the large new borrowings of foreign Governments which are impending. Experience does not indicate that such new issues will depress an existing market if the supply of available investment capital is abundant and the attitude of investors favorable. Both conditions are apt to be promoted and not retarded by a season of financial and commercial liquidation; always provided that the underlying state of affairs is sound.

Sterling exchange had lost at one time yesterday nearly 5 cents out of the 24-cent gain which had been scored since the year began, but it closed well above the day's lowest. On the Stock Exchange, the call money rate held at 6 and 7 per cent. again, but, as on Tuesday, offerings at a lower rate were made through money brokers. A 4 per cent. rate was quoted in this way yesterday; also a lower rate than the generally accepted quotations on time loans. The prospect of a general and positive lowering of money rates possibly depends on the attitude of the Federal Reserve. It will not be overlooked that the New York Reserve Bank's rate for rediscounting commercial paper still holds at 7 per cent., the high-record rate to which it was advanced on the 29th of last May, and that even for loans secured by Liberty bonds the rediscount charge is 6. Under absolutely normal circumstances rates at a central bank, here or in Europe, should be slightly below the open market. Discount rates of the London joint-stock banks have for several weeks been a fraction below the Bank of England's official 7 per cent. minimum, but we saw last week how quickly the sharp first-of-January decline in Lombard Street quotations was checked and reversed by the unchanging attitude of the Bank.

In that case it was plain enough that the Bank of England had no intention of reducing the cost of money and thereby increasing the inducement for use of credit, when its own ratio of reserve to deposits was only 8⅞ per cent. and when its 7¾ per cent. ratio of the week before was the lowest of the whole war period. The case of the Federal Reserve is not precisely the same. Nevertheless, although the system's percentage of reserve to notes and deposits was last week the highest in thirteen months, it was still barely 4 per cent. above the lowest ever touched and was lower than any percentage reported in the system's history prior to December of 1919. Its rediscounts, notwithstanding the recent large reduction, were still $527,000,000 greater than at the beginning of last January and its note circulation larger by $355,000,000. It is the Reserve Board's correct policy to adjust this position of its own to the general business situation before making any drastic change in its official rates. Whether it can entirely control the open discount market remains to be seen.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 12, 1921.

Money on call on the Stock Exchange opened, renewed and was high at 7 per cent., shaded to 6 per cent. around midday and remained at that figure until the close. Off the Stock Exchange it was reported that demand funds were loaned as low as 4 per cent. In time money, which has been quoted nominally for some time, there was a drop of ½ of 1 per cent. in the rates for both classes, to 6½@7 per cent. It was reported that some ten-day money was put out at 5½ per cent. Despite the easing in both call and fixed-period money, no change was reported in the rate for prime-name commercial paper, first-class names discounting at 7¾ per cent. and on others 8 per cent. was the rate. Bankers' acceptances, however, are working to lower rates.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Europeans All React — Only South Americans Show Improvement.

All of the European exchanges reacted downward yesterday. Sterling, on very scant demand and a fair amount of offerings, broke approximately 5 cents in the pound in the early trading and then rallied only about 1 cent in the afternoon, and the Continentals, as a general rule, followed this performance. The Latins and the Scandinavians both were lower, even the rate on Denmark, which had stood out the preceding day, joining in the downward swing.

Aside from the Europeans there were very few changes. Quotations on most of the Far Eastern countries were unchanged and business in this department of the market was very quiet. The South American exchanges, however, were the strong feature of the day, but even here the advance was not uniform, for the Brazilian quotation at the close of business showed a small net loss.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Future of the Market.

There were not a few yesterday who felt a certain degree of relief that the rapid forcing in of shorts had quieted down. In the parlance of Wall Street it is an easy matter to "spoil" a market, and the violent upturns which were taking place in some issues were looked upon a bit dubiously by those who were thinking rather of the future of the market than the present. This is not to say that any sympathy was expressed for the shorts. That never happens, but on the part of those who are conservative there is the desire to see a good market without such a boisterous demonstration as often takes place. It is realized that the ultra sharp upturn nearly always develops an aftermath of sharp recoil, often stifling a market that has possibilities of normal development along lines of reasonableness. The more moderate situation which prevailed yesterday was, therefore, hailed with a degree of satisfaction in that it appeared to check a heedless rush which might end in disaster. It was perhaps this sentiment which turned speculation into the rails as against further heavy pressing of the shorts in the industrials.

Steel Corporation Earnings.

The time is not far distant when the earnings of the United States Steel Corporation for the last quarter of 1920 will be announced. Already there is discussion of what the display will show, and, as is always the case, there is a variety of opinion in the financial district. Generally speaking, it is held that the Corporation will show a net of something approximating $45,000,000. The basis for this lies in the continued high operations of the company during the fourth quarter. It is probable that the average of the Steel Corporation was about 85 per cent. of capacity for the period and in December 90 per cent. ruled. Shipments were heavy and there was no change in prices as compared with earlier months of the year. It is believed that the Steel Corporation will show about $17 a share on the common stock for the full year of 1920.

I. C. C. Appointments.

With two actual vacancies now to be filled in the Interstate Commerce Commission and two more coming after March 1, as two of the present Commissioners were recess appointments, there is a good deal of speculation as to the new Commissioners. It is not believed that Commissioners Potter and Ford, the recess appointees, will step out, but that they will be reappointed; but such action will leave two vacancies to be filled. The name of John J. Esch, who leaves Congress at the end of the present session, has been receiving a good deal of attention, and it is the feeling in some quarters that he will be a Harding candidate. In railroad quarters the appointment of Mr. Esch would be generally approved.

Low-Priced Rails a Feature.

The low-priced railroad shares were a feature in yesterday's trading and continued to move away from the general list as they have at different times since the latter part of 1920, it being apparent that the professionals were switching from the industrials, which recently have cost them a good deal. A glance at last prices in the week ended with Dec. 24, 1920, shows what the appreciation in market value has been since then. The following stocks are representative of the low-prices group:

	Dec. 24, '20.	Yest'day's Close.	Net Gain.
Missouri Pacific	16½	20½	4
New Haven	16⅝	22⅞	6¼
Pere Marquette	15¾	19	3¼
St. Louis Southwest	22¾	28½	5¾
Do pf.	34	39⅝	5⅝
Southern Railway	18½	24	5½
Wabash	7¼	8⅝	1⅜
Do pf A	19½	23	3½

While no outstanding improvement in the general railroad situation has occurred to bring about this forward movement, it is not to be lost sight of that many students of the railroad situation believe that eventually railroad rates established by the Interstate Commerce Commission will produce a return of 6 per cent. on the aggregate value of railroad property, as prescribed in the law. This conviction is deep-seated, and a great many unfavorable events will have to occur before it will be shaken to any appreciable extent.

Railroad Retrenchment Coming.

Word that the Reading Company had announced that in the near future employes in the roadway department would work only five eight-hour days a week instead of the customary six, was received yesterday as further proof that the railroads are starting their retrenchment campaigns laid out for this year. That other companies will take similar action is the general expectation, while it is expected that in other instances much more drastic cuts will occur. In the case of Reading it would appear that the company is trying to retain employes on less time rather than lay off men and continue the six-day week with smaller forces.

Foreign Bonds.

One of the outstanding features of yesterday's bond market was the strength of the foreign issues. The business done in these securities, while not of excessively large volume, was, nevertheless, on a steadily rising level, and at the close of the day gains of a substantial fraction to more than a full point were common. In view of the fact that it is generally regarded as certain that a very considerable amount of new foreign business soon is to be arranged, this strength is all the more remarkable, and the explanation for it, in all probability, is the usually high character of the issues which already have been marketed. Long term, twenty to twenty-five years, coupled with the 8 per cent. coupon, seems to be a pertinent argument whenever the general investment market is at all good.

German War Loan.

Sale of 75,000 marks of the German Government 5 per cent. war loan bonds at auction yesterday, at a price of $12 per 1,000 marks, indicates that even the German war issues are advancing, along with most other securities. Yesterday's price was equivalent to approximately 82 5-16 of par, and the price compares with the recent London price of 77½. In these bonds, of course, the major appeal is the speculation in mark exchange, and how much of the rise may be traced to this and how much to other causes would be difficult to say. A demand for the bonds might be created which would lift them, in percentage, purely because of a growing desire to "play exchange." When these bonds were put out during the war the offering price was 98½.

The Cuban Situation.

While little or nothing has been said recently regarding the prospects for a Cuban loan in this market, and because of this there has been a growing belief that the loan negotiations had been abandoned, one banker familiar with the Cuban situation said yesterday that there still would have to be some sort of assistance given to the Island. Sale of this year's sugar crop, he explained, would not give the Cubans all the funds they require to put their house in order, and, soon or later, a loan will have to be arranged.

Commodity prices are declining and as a result the income from fixed interest bearing securities is increasing in purchasing power.
Sound investments are now selling at prices which will assure high interest rates over a period that should be marked by declining interest rates and higher bond prices.

ICE CONSOLIDATION DENIED.

No New Concern to Be Formed, Says Treasurer of Ice Service Co.

M. J. Sheehy, Treasurer of the Ice Service Company, Inc., commenting on a reported consolidation of the Ice Service Company, Inc., and the National Ice and Coal Company, Inc., and the further report that possibly a new corporation might be formed to take over the business of both companies, said yesterday that no consolidation or merger of these two companies had been effected and that no new company had been organized or was contemplated.

The Ice Service Company, Inc., has acquired a controlling stock interest in the National Ice and Coal Company, Inc., and to this extent there has been a merger of interests. The two companies will continue, as heretofore, to operate independently.

January Investments

WE recommend for investment purposes the purchase of seasoned, long-term bonds of American corporations. Many such issues are now selling at prices materially lower than those prevailing under normal conditions in the pre-war period.

While we will make no attempt to predict the course of securities prices, we have faith in the United States and its industries. The same energy and enterprise which made America the greatest industrial nation of the world will bring her industries back to a normal basis in a reasonable time.

Investors who buy sound securities at the present level will obtain a substantial yield for a long period, and may enjoy a handsome profit when interest rates decline to the low basis which always comes with industrial prosperity.

Pulp And Paper Securities

The Canadian pulp industry is analyzed in detail in our pamphlet, which will be sent upon request.

IN judging the merits of securities issued by pulp and paper mills the investor should satisfy himself as to the following essential features of such corporations:

The property of the company should possess an ample supply of pulp wood sufficient for a period of from 20 to 50 years. Sufficient water power should be available to supply continuous hydro-electric energy to operate the mill. The plant should be in proper geographic position to deliver raw material at the mill cheaply and to transport the finished product readily to the shipping centers. The management should be thoroughly experienced, and lastly, there should be sufficient working capital to insure proper operation.

We should be pleased to recommend the securities of a Canadian company conforming with the above requirements.

RAIL EARNINGS FALL 41.8% BELOW HOPES

Class One Roads Show Operating Income of $57,741,937 for November Under New Rates.

IS ONLY 3.5% OF VALUATION

Income Should Reach $320,957,000 to Make 6 Per Cent.—All Districts Behind.

Net railway operating income for November of the Class 1 railroads was $57,741,937, or 41.8 per cent. below the amount which it was estimated would be earned under the increased rates fixed in August by the commission in accordance with the Transportation act, according to figures made public by the Association of Railway Executives yesterday.

"The tabulation," according to the association, "is based on reports from 200 railroads with a total mileage of 229,754. Upon the basis of this operating income the carriers would earn annually approximately 3½ per cent. on the value of their properties as tentatively fixed for rate making purposes by the commission. This is 1.1 per cent. below that estimated on the basis of October earnings. To have realized a return of 6 per cent. on their valuation as provided by the Transportation act, the railroads should have earned $99,286,000 as their November quota.

"Total operating revenues for November were $568,697,087, or an increase of 34.6 per cent. over those for the same month last year, which, however, was marked by the coal strike. Total operating expenses were $485,466,885, or an increase of 29.2 per cent. compared with the same previous month. While the net railway operating income is an increase of 170.8 per cent. over that for November, 1919. This increase is principally due to the strike of bituminous coal miners during that month one year ago, which greatly reduced the freight tonnage.

"Compilations show, however, that for the first quarter since the expiration of the guaranty period on Sept. 1, the net railway operating income totals $210,507,735, which is $101,449,265 less than was estimated would be earned under the rates fixed by the commission and effective on Aug. 26 last. On the basis of that net operating income for the three months period, the carriers would earn 4.1 per cent. annually. To have earned 6 per cent. upon their tentative valuation, their net operating income should have been $320,957,000 during that period.

"As in the case of September and October, the net operating income in every district fell below the 6 per cent. return during November. Calculating on the basis of the showing for November, the railroads in the Eastern district would earn 3.6 per cent. upon their tentative valuation, the Southern district 3.12 per cent. and the Western district 3.96 per cent."

BIG FOREIGN LOANS UNDER WAY HERE

Announcement of $100,000,000 Arrangement for France Expected This Month.

BELGIUM WANTS $25,000,000

Scandinavian Countries Also Look to America for Money—Investment Market Better.

The improvement in the general investment market within the last week or ten days has become so great that bankers believe the next month or six weeks will see a considerable amount of foreign financing consummated. The volume of business of this kind said to be "in sight" totals more than $150,000,000.

The first offering, it is believed, will be the $100,000,000 French Government loan, and it would not be surprising if it were announced before the end of the month. French requirements in this market for 1921 will be in excess of $100,000,000, and if a loan for that size is arranged now it is expected that the French Government will be back in the market again before the end of the year.

A loan to the Belgian Government also is expected to be announced within the next few weeks. No size has been placed on this loan, it is understood, but bankers say it is likely to be for $25,000,000. This operation is expected to be completed before the end of February.

Scandinavian countries and some of the Scandinavian cities, also, are known to be anxious to borrow here. The first transaction for this group is expected to be for the benefit of Norway. This country borrowed $20,000,000 here last October at 8 per cent. for twenty years, and is expected to make a similar proposition to American investors within a short time. Sweden, too, is spoken of as a potential borrower. Sweden did not come into the American market last year, but in June, 1919, borrowed $25,000,000 for twenty years at 6 per cent.

The first instalment of the Swiss program, calling for $25,000,000, is another transaction which is likely to be taken up at no far distant time; in fact, some bankers incline to the belief that this will be among the first of the foreign operations.

South American countries and States have been carrying on negotiations with local bankers for some months, and some of these negotiations are likely to come to fruition within the next month or six weeks, if not sooner. The Government of Chile and the Brazilian State of Sao Paulo are said to be the strongest probabilities among this group.

How to Build Up a Fortune by Systematic Investment

REGULAR, systematic investment is the basis of most large fortunes. By laying aside a comparatively small amount of money each week or each month, every man may build up a comfortable fortune. For example, $10 a week, put by regularly and invested safely at 6%, will amount to $20,000 in a little over 20 years.

KAHN PLAN TO YIELD $4,350,000,000 TAX

BASED ON 33% MAXIMUM

Favors Test of Gross Sales Levy—Hoover Asks Trade Board's Support or Relief.

Tax revision was discussed by Otto H. Kahn before the New York Board of Trade and Transportation yesterday afternoon. He submitted tentative estimates of taxes which he said might reasonably be expected to yield $4,350,000,000 next year. Included in his estimates was $1,000,000,000 which he suggested could be produced by individual income from surtaxes, based on a maximum income taxation of 33 per cent., a figure that almost coincides with the 32 per cent. estimate submitted to President-elect Harding last Sunday by Senator Reed Smoot of Utah. Mr. Kahn advocated also a turnover tax on commodities, to be placed on every sale from producer to consumer.

The taxation program and the estimated yield submitted by Mr. Kahn follow:

Individual income from surtaxes (based on the assumption that the maximum of income taxation is to be, say, 33 per cent.—this reduction from the present rates to be effected either indirectly, by the somewhat complex and intricate method of an abatement of surtaxes on income saved and reinvested, or which is preferable, directly, by a commensurate revision of the surtax schedule)	$1,000,000,000
Corporate income tax at the rate of 15 per cent., but leaving the rate at 10 per cent. in the case of public srvice corporations, and discontinuing minimum exemptions	850,000,000
Estate duties. (I have included this item, though I think that inheritance taxation ought to belong to the States and not to the Federal Government)	100,000,000
Turnover tax on commodities at the rate of one-third of 1 per cent	550,000,000
Customs	550,000,000
Internal revenue, such as tobacco, beverages, transportation, excise, stamp and special taxes, &c. (This estimate is somewhat less than the aggregate produced by these taxes in 1920. It is based on the idea that certain existing minor taxes which have been found particularly irksome and relatively unproductive shall be abolished and, on the other hand, that some stamp and similar taxes can be increased and that certain new taxes of this nature may be devised)	1,300,000,000
Total	$4,350,000,000

If it should be found that a lesser amount of revenue than here estimated was needed for the coming year, he suggested that the more burdensome taxes be reduced accordingly, but he said he still favored a practical test of a gross sales or turnover tax.

Herbert C. Hoover, in an appeal for the $30,000,000 fund to aid Europe, said that with the exception of Russia, Bolshevism had practically disappeared from Europe. Russia's neighbors had rejected Bolshevism, he added, because of its failure in Russia.

OUTCRY IN BRITAIN ON TELEPHONE RISE

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Lord Burnham and Lord Riddell headed a deputation representing the Newspaper Proprietors' Association and news agencies which called upon Postmaster General Illingworth today to protest against the projected increase in telephone rates. Mr. Illingworth, in reply to various speeches by members of the deputation, maintained that the increased scale of charges was justified by the increased costs of service, and intimated that the new rates would be put into effect notwithstanding the outcry which had been raised throughout the country by representative bodies.

While Illingworth is strictly within his rights in increasing the telephone charges, the complaint is made that the decision to take the step without reference to Parliament is an exercise of bureaucratic authority to which the country submitted during the war, but which will not be tolerated now, and persistence in which will bring up for early discussion the whole question of governmental ownership and control of public services.

NEW OIL COMPANY FORMED.

Mid-Colombia to Develop Million Acres in South America.

F. B. Parriott, President of the Transcontinental Oil Company, announced yesterday that arrangements had been perfected by the company for the organization of the Mid-Colombia Oil and Development Company, chartered under the laws of Delaware, with an authorized capitalization of 1,600,000 shares of no par value stock, to take over from one of the Transcontinental Oil Company's subsidiaries upwards of 1,000,000 acres of land in Colombia, South America, on which development work is now under way.

The Transcontinental Oil Company, through its subsidiary, will own 1,200,000 of these shares; 200,000 shares will remain in the treasury of the new company and the remaining 200,000 shares will be offered for subscription to stockholders of the Transcontinental Oil Company at $5 per share. This entire offering has been underwritten by a group of oil men and others to the extent that it may not be subscribed by Transcontinental Oil Company stockholders, the underwriting group having agreed to pay for all such stock $5 a share without commission or compensation.

It was stated that the company's purpose was to proceed with the immediate and rapid development of the properties.

CHICAGO GRAINS ALL AT NEW HIGHS

May Wheat Leaps—March Tops Anything Since Nov. 10—Corn Up in Sympathy.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Wheat advanced sharply today to a new high on the present upturn on March, which sold at $1.82½, or 6 cents over the low point, while May was at a new high on the crop. The market was easier early on scattered selling, part of which was attributed to foreign account, but the local element were caught short; and the removal of hedges against sales of 500,000 bushels for export, combined with stop loss orders and buying credited to covering for a leading Eastern trader, caused the sharp bulge.

Net gains at the last were 4 to 4½ cents, with March making the highest close since Nov. 10. Corn advanced ⅛@⅝ cents in sympathy with wheat, the strength in which more than offset heavy hedging sales. There was also big buying credited to a New York trader. Oats were ¼@⅝ cents higher and rye 2@2⅝ cents higher.

Sentiment after the close was not as bullish as during the day. The belief prevailed that profit taking had been very extensive and that the technical position was weakened to an extent that makes reaction due. The general belief, however, is that prices will ultimately work much higher, although the uncertainty as to the Argentine tax situation is more or less a factor.

Minneapolis mill bought 50,000 bushels hard winter at Omaha today and took 30,000 bushels yesterday, it being understood that these were the first purchases of the crop. This buying had considerable influence on the market here, as a good part of the wheat bought by exporters of late has come from Nebraska, and competition between millers and exporters is expected to result in higher premiums. The premiums were unchanged here today but were 1 cent higher at Minneapolis.

The bulk of the receipts at Kansas City were bought by the Armour Grain Company. Wichita, Kansas, sold 50,000 bushels wheat to Texas mills, so far this week. Profit taking by exporters who did not care to take a delivery was responsible for the weakness in Buenos Aires. It is understood that Italy is being forced to pay for wheat in gold in this country in order to stabilize exchange.

An excellent demand prevailed for cash corn from exporters, sales in all positions in the West aggregating 525,000 bushels, including a good quantity after the close, while at the seaboard and Gulf sales were estimated at 500,000 to 600,000 bushels, the largest day's business so far. American shorts have been good buyers in Buenos Aires and are said to have about completed there. Cables say very little old corn remains for export in Argentina and the balance is cornered by a few strong houses.

Primary receipts of wheat so far this week aggregate 3,987,000 bushels, against 3,769,000 the previous week and 3,204,000 last year. Shipments, 2,167,000 bushels, against 2,171,000 the previous week and 1,720,000 last year.

Arrivals of corn have been 4,295,000 bushels, against 4,436,000 the previous week and 3,267,000 last year; shipments, 2,132,000 bushels, against 1,298,000 the previous week and 1,326,000 last year.

GARY SEES STEADY GAIN IN BUSINESS

SOME PRICES YET TO FALL

Finds Growing Disposition Among Producers and Sellers to Submit to Reductions.

In discussing the business outlook yesterday Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, sounded a decidedly optimistic note. It was his opinion that there was nothing of an unfavorable nature on the horizon. He told, however, that further decreases in selling prices were necessary in certain lines, but added that there was a growing disposition on the part of producers and sellers to submit to such reductions as were necessary to bring a return to normal volume of business.

With relation to the steel industry he said that the buying of the moment was being done from the standpoint of necessity, but the Steel Corporation had been able to secure a satisfactory volume of business considering the times, and he added with a smile that he hoped this would enable the corporation to continue the payment of interest and the usual dividends.

"I think I am justified," said Judge Gary, "in saying that so far as my information extends, there is nothing unfavorable on the business horizon. Certainly at present the tendency is toward improved business conditions. This does not necessarily mean that there is a decided increase in volume, but it does mean that the general aspect, including the temper of business men, is better. If that continues we are certain to have decided improvement wtihin a comparatively short time.

"The principal reason for apparent dullness in some lines is that the purchasing public is waiting for such information as will influence them to conclude bottom prices have been reached. It should be evident to every one that in certain lines or departments further decreases in selling prices are necessary, and therefore likely to be reached. I have heard of cases where lower prices have been fixed by retailers than the prices they paid to the wholesalers for the same goods, which shows a disposition to make adjustments, which have been determined upon for the purpose of computing readjustments, promptly disposing of stocks and of getting into a financial position which will enable the retailers to proceed in the regular way.

"But another important thing to be remembered is that a reasonable supply of the necessities of life of themselves involves large expenditures of money, and in this country, unlike most other countries, there is enough money to make purchases for that purpose. Even though people generally are economical, as they ought to be, and I hope will be, still they should and will make enough purchases to supply their necessities as to bring a substantial prosperity."

SEES BRIGHT DAYS AHEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—George M. Reynolds, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Contineal and Commercial National Bank, told the convention of the Illinois Manufacturers Association today that he believed that business had "turned the corner" and that a few more months would bring "the sunlight of better times and better days."

For a rapid and permanent recovery he urged these changes in the present order of things:

Restoration of Liberty bonds to par value.

Repeal of the excess profits tax.

Russian Gold Sent Here.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 12.—Despite the control exercised over exports by the Dutch authorities, large shipments of Russian gold, believed to have been consigned to propaganda agents in the United States, are known to have been smuggled recently out of Holland for New York. The gold was traced from Sweden to Holland and later is understood to have turned up in the United States.

IV. The friend or relative acting as executor under a Will often "takes sides" and shows partiality in disputes arising among dissatisfied heirs.

MONEY GOES LOWER ON 'OUTSIDE' MARKET

Demand Loans Are Arranged at 4% and Ten-Day Collateral Call Loans at 5½%.

EXCHANGE CALL RATE IS 6%

The decline in money rates in the so-called "outside" market continued yesterday when demand loans were arranged at 4 per cent. and ten-day collateral loans were negotiated at 5½ per cent. On the Stock Exchange no call loans were made at less than 6 per cent. and the day's opening, high, and renewal rate was 7 per cent., which has been the renewal rate on every business day since Dec. 1. Time money loans for most maturities were quoted yesterday, more or less nominally, at 6½ per cent. to 7 per cent.. The latter reflects a concession of about ½ of 1 per cent.

Bankers hesitate to admit that the relatively low quotations which have been recorded the last two days in the outside market indicate a real lowering in rates. They say that the money which is being loaned in this way is extremely small in amount and they insist there is little real significance attached to the transactions. Nevertheless, a majority of opinion inclines to the belief that the trend of money rates is toward lower levels and most observers would not be surprised to see some concessions made in the regular money market before long.

Some of the bankers hold that no drastic reduction can be looked for until the Federal Reserve Bank reduces its rediscount rates, both on Government obligations and on commercial paper. They point out that the member banks in the New York district still are borrowing very heavily at the central institution, and that pretty much the same condition prevails in other districts. At the end of last week these borrowings in the local district amounted to $873,267,337, while in all Federal Reserve Banks members were borrowing $2,607,349,000. Of the amount being loaned by the New York Reserve Bank, $439,305,202 was on commercial paper, on which the Reserve Bank charges 7 per cent., and until this is greatly reduced bankers do not look for any decided lowering in the open market rates on similar obligations.

However, the belief obtains in many places that whether the Reserve Bank maintains its rate or reduces it, money rates in general will have to come down if bankers are to find employment for their funds. Until last year, which was a period of abnormal money conditions, the trend of the money market was downward in the early Spring. The average movement of money for the last twenty years, except 1920, shows that time rates have declined about 1¼ per cent. between December and February, while call rates have declined about 2½ per cent. in the same period. There is every reason to believe, many bankers contend, that this year will be no exception to the rule and that by next month rates will be substantially below where they are now.

WINTER CROPS DOING WELL.

Lack of Snow Over Growing Wheat, but Mild Weather Prevents Damage.

The past week was unusually mild and pleasant in all the interior valley States and Winter grains and grass made a good advance. The mild and pleasant weather favored outdoor activities and much plowing was accomplished throughout the South and even as far north as Kansas, Ohio and on light soil in New York State. Some picking of cotton was accomplished during the week under mostly favorable weather conditions, but this work continued to make slow progress.

The ground continued bare of snow in the principal wheat-growing sections of the country, but at the same time mild and comparatively uniform temperatures prevailed generally and there was very little damage reported as a result of alternate thawing and freezing. Wheat has a good color in the lower Missouri Valley, where it has made sufficient growth to furnish much pasturage, while it has been sufficiently mild in the southern Great Plains to promote a continuation of growth.

Aguirre Sugar Company Gains.

COTTON FLUCTUATES, BUT IS UP AT CLOSE

Covering and Hedge Buying Bring Rally After Selling Forces a Drop.

The cotton market presented a difficult problem for analysis yesterday. In the first place, sentiment, which had been growing bullish for more than a week and which had received something of a shock on Tuesday, was decidedly mixed. This probably detracted from the ordinary buying power, and when Liverpool cables again came in lower than due and Wall Ctreet houses started a drive against the list shortly after the opening nearly everybody went over to the short side and selling became general.

This forced prices down to their lows for the day, 25 points down for January to 40 points down for July. Then, after the early selling had run its course, covering started, and early in the afternoon quite a lot of hedge buying in the near months turned up and the market rallied sharply. The recovery in March, for instance, was an even 100 points, while January, May and July rose 85 to 90 points on this upturn. That made the market look "good" again, and sentiment began to switch back to the so-called constructive side. But a late selling wave took nearly half of the mid-afternoon net gains away again, and at the close prices were up only 25 to 40 points for the late months and 60 for January.

Trade reports were not so good as they have been, and advices from abroad were unfavorable. The Manchester yarn and cloth market was dull, and the Liverpool market for spots was rather heavy, 51 points down for the day. The unsettled conditions on the Continent, of which the Austrian trouble is the latest manifestation, probably hurt market conditions in England, and the reaction in the foreign exchange market here was emphasized probably more than it deserved. The undertone of our market, however, continued firm.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.

Oct.	16.01	16.40	15.72	16.18@16.20	15.93

The local market for spot cotton was steady, up 60 points to 18.10c for middling upland; sales 500 bales.

ACTIVE BIDDING FOR CITY REALTY

Successful Auction of Tenement Properties in Various Localities.

ALL SOLD AT GOOD PRICES

First Big Sale of the Year Indicates Soundness of the Real Estate Market.

An encouraging view of future real estate conditions was shown yesterday at the auction sale held by Bryan L. Kennelly in the Vesey Street salesroom. About a dozen Manhattan properties, chiefly tenement structures, in various localities were offered in addition to some Bronx plots. Not only was it the largest aution sale of the new year, but the large attendance indicated a genuine demand for good income paying properties. The seating capacity in the room was fully occupied and the active and rapid bidding clearly demonstrated that the real estate market is in a sound condition, despite the fact that almost every other marke has felt the severe reaction of the past few months.

Three four-story tenements at 255 to 259 Ninth Avenue were purchased by John J. Clarkson for $35,700. A four-story tenement at 472 Ninth Avenue went to Max H. Rankperk for $23,000, and, after lively bidding, the Goldberger Manufacturing Corporation acquired the four-story tenement at 131 West 14th Street for $25,750. The same company also purchased two five-story tenements at 2,102 to 2,106 Third Avenue, northwest corner of 115th Street, for $45,800.

The four-story tenement at 180 Third Avenue went to G. Newman for $13,750; 522 Ninth Avenue, southeast corner of Thirty-ninth Street, a 4-story tenement, was bought by Abe Abramson for $26,950; two five-story tenements at 352 and 354 West Thirty-ninth Street went to Luigi De Maio for $21,350; four-story tenement at 855 Second Avenue went to Max Levy for $16,000, and 161 East Ninety-ninth Street, a five-story tenement was bought by Joseph Hauser for $16,000; H. C. Klauber paid $35,000 for the four-story dwelling at 331 West Thirty-fourth Street.

In the Bronx, the one-story building at 1,030 to 1,036 Longwood Avenue, southeast corner of Southern Boulevard, was purchased by the Goldberger Manufacturing Company for $16,300.

THE MORTGAGE MARKET.

H. A. Kahler Takes Optimistic View of Conditions in Annual Report.

In his annual report to the stockholders of the New York Title and Mortgage Company, President Harry A. Kahler says: "The drastic liquidation and shrinkage of capital values in the securities markets have emphasized the soundness of guaranteed mortgages and are drawing many investors back into the mortgage market. Guaranteed mortgages and certificates make a growing appeal to those investors whose first consideration is the preservation of principal intact. At the close of the year, while fee title transactions were less active, the volume of mortgage business is increasing."

The statement of the New York Title and Mortgage Company shows net earnings for 1920 of $477,496.02 on a capital of $3,000,000.

GIFT OF HECKSCHER FAMILY

Six-Story Building Will Be One of the Finest of Its Kind in the World—Well Endowed.

Plans were filed yesterday with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings providing for the erection of a $2,000,000 home for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, to occupy the block on the east side of Fifth Avenue from 104th to 105th Street.

This structure, which will be one of the finest and most complete of its kind ever erected, was made possible by the $4,000,000 gift of Mr. and Mrs. August Heckscher for the relief of children, announced Nov. 9, 1920.

Ground will be broken at once by Mr. Heckscher for a six-story fireproof building with about 125,000 feet of floor space. When completed the entire property will be turned over to the Children's Society with an endowment sufficient to provide maintenance expenses of about $60,000 a year.

Always cramped by lack of facilities and at present without property of its own the society will now have room to care for at least 400 children and perhaps more, or about twice as many as are now in its leased quarters in the Inwood section.

With the plans filed yesterday August Hechscher was given as the owner of record and Maynicke & Franke, architects.

In the plans of the building the architects have included a tunnel under Fifth Avenue that will enable the children to reach the Park without crossing the thoroughfare. Permission of the city will be asked for this feature of the building, which would open through the embankment directly before the botanical gardens there. An entrance also is to be constructed at the rear so that buses carrying children to the building can drive into the basement and there unload.

PAN-AMERICAN REDS ATTACK GOMPERS

LIVELY DEBATES EXPECTED

Domestic Problems of Many Latin-American Nations Come Up for Consideration.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12 (Associated Press.)—Resolutions were received today by the Pan-American Federation of Labor Congress, a motion having been adopted that all resolutions must be submitted before 5:30 o'clock this afternoon. Sessions of the Congress thus far have been rather tedious, but animated debates are predicted when the Resolutions Committee presents its report. This report, if adopted, would reflect the federation's attitude on many phases affecting labor and the constituent members of the organization.

The secretary's report, which in reality represented the report of the Executive Committee, comprising President Samuel Gompers, Secretary Canuto Vargas and Treasurer James Lord, was informally discussed yesterday afternoon, and there were indications that it would prove a fruitful source of debate, as it touched on domestic problems in Chile, Peru, Mexico, Nicaragua and San Domingo. Comment on occupation of San Domingo by United States marines was again heard when Carlos Gracidad, a Mexican delegate, referred to the section of the Secretary's report dealing with the efforts of the American Federation of Labor to secure native rule in the island, and requested that the present Congress make a renewed protest, "as there is danger that the same force may be applied in Mexico."

Every word uttered from the chair or by delegates must be translated, and as a result the work of the convention has been greatly retarded. Mr. Gompers, as chairman, has insisted upon exact interpretations, and yesterday criticised the report of the Credentials Committee as "unfair" because it was rendered in Spanish only.

Radical agitators who last week threatened to provide at least some excitement to the sessions of the Congress, have not been particularly active, although the delegations are daily flooded with Soviet and Communist literature, which is largely a personal attack on Mr. Gompers, who is asserted to be "unrepresentative of the laboring masses." A radical protest to the Congress has been abandoned, according to one leader, it having been decided to wait until the Congress adjourns, when, it is said, "there will be more to discuss than at present." Newspapers of this city, with the exception of El Democrata, are friendly toward the Congress.

The American delegation, headed by Mr. Gompers, paid a formal call on Plutarco E. Calles, Secretary of the Interior, last evening for the purpose of thanking him and the government for courtesies which had been extended. General Calles told the delegation that the Government encouraged such meetings as the Congress and was willing to give all possible aid to the Pan-American organization.

DUNLOP TIRE SHUTDOWN.

BUFFALO, Jan. 12.—The Dunlop Tire and Rubber Company has practically suspended operations. At the office of the company this statement was given out today:

"The Directors of the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Corporation have decided that general conditions in the automobile industry are such that they are justified in slowing down their program until conditions improve. April 1 is the probable date of resumption of activities, although it may be much sooner if the conditions justify."

Approximately $36,000,000 has been spent by the company since building operations were started a year and a half ago.

LOSS AT PROFIT SHARE MILL.

Harvard Company to Carry Deficit in Hope of Gain Later.

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Jan. 12.—The Harvard Knitting Mills, at which a plan for equal sharing of profits and losses by owners and workers was put in effect a year ago with a distribution of 20 per cent. of the annual payroll, has no profits to share this year. In announcing this today the company said that business conditions in recent months had turned early profits into net losses for the year.

Under the plan the 550 employes share the losses, but the deficit will be carried by the company for the present, and the amount of it will be marked off the profits of the next prosperous year.

ALL WOMEN IN COURT CASE.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 12.—For the first time in the local courts all the principal actors were women when Mrs. Australia Crape today appeared for arraignment in criminal court.

"What is the charge?" asked Common Pleas Judge Florence Allen.

"Second degree murder," replied Assistant County Prosecutor Eva Jaffa."

"Not guilty," pleaded Mrs. Crape.

The trial will be held later.

The Automobile Show Forecasts Your Prosperity—Share It

Ten Billion Dollars Worth of Work To Be Done

Money, materials, and men are now ready to start work that has been neglected for three years.

The railroads must spend a billion dollars for repairs and improvements.

Every locality is short of school buildings, houses, etc.

One city alone has sixteen million dollars available for sewers and water mains.

Hotels are needed everywhere.

Prices have been so high—men have been so busy at other things and money was so engaged in other enterprises that public work has not kept pace with our needs.

Now workmen are eager for the jobs. Money seeks investment in such directions.

What Charles M. Schwab Says About It

"Never in our lifetime," says he, "have the shelves of the world been so bare. And I want to go on record as saying nothing could be healthier for American business than the very condition through which we are passing.

"It merely means that America has closed up its war factory and is jigging up for peace production!"

Such Periods Do Not Last Long

Remember the things said about hard times when war ended.

Some predicted it would take two years to demobilize four million soldiers, for they said without jobs for the released men all activity must stop.

And Merchants did stop buying. Lower prices were prophesied. Factories felt it and slowed down.

But within six months we were at full production in all lines without enough workers to meet the needs.

The National Automobile Shows were held in January and February, 1919, just at the time when the most dire predictions were being made and when soldiers were coming home by the tens of thousands.

Our industry revealed its faith then.

We feel and show greater confidence now that prosperity for you and all of us is fast returning.

Transportation More Important Now

Production was the demand then.

Now distribution is of first importance. And economical distribution is impossible without the automobile.

Its influence touches every activity.

It extends to every cross-roads. Without it city transportation lines would break down under their increased burdens. The farmer would be unable to do his work or to deliver his goods to market.

Railroad lines would be deprived of the feeders that bring goods to them over every highway. Living costs would rise and land values would fall.

Requires a Million Automobiles For Replacements Alone

Can you imagine this city without automobiles?

Will anyone who has ever owned an automobile long endure without one?

Every article that people use will be wanted and people will find ways of getting them once that need is manifested.

We do not beat the drum of hollow optimism.

Go to the Automobile Show if you would share our confidence.

To the Uninitiated

TO the uninitiated, the terminology of the tax regulations must be difficult of comprehension and almost impossible of interpretation.

For the taxpayer to keep himself informed not only of existing requirements but of the host of new amendments and rulings is both unwise and unsafe. Even for the accountant, without a specialized tax department, such concentration is difficult.

From the very beginning this organization has maintained a staff of tax specialists whose service is a complete unit in itself.

THE 1920 FAVORITES AT THE METROPOLITAN.

The Curator of The Metropolitan Art Museum reports that Rembrandt's painting, "The Noble Slav," and Dal Libris "Madonna and Child With Saints," were the popular favorites there in 1920. Both pictures are reproduced in this week's MID-WEEK PICTORIAL; 105 etchings. On news stands, 10 cents.—Advt.
